Part Time Farmers Socially Acceptable

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

ITHACA, NEW YORK—A leading agriculturalist told the Northeast Farm Communicators Council here this week that he expects a growing division of agriculture into two groups of farmers. Speaking on the topic of "What's Ahead for Agricultural" Dr. Kenneth Robinson, Professor of Agricultural Economics Cornell University said the one group will be a relatively small group of efficient farmers that utilize the latest technology to produce the cheap food you buy in the supermarket. The other larger group will farm part-time and therefore will not be nearly as dependent on agriculture for their income.

Dr. Kenneth Robinson

"I think this is socially desirable," Robinson said. "The part-time farmer cares for the land, buys supplies locally, but does not need maximum production for income to add to the surplus. European countries and Japan already have this kind of farm situation," Robinson said.

"I don't recall when there has been such a wide spread among dairy farmers in their ability to cope with what's happening. There will be survivors. In the northeast we don't have the very depressed land prices that exist in the midwest. This helps banks and other creditors. Therefore, we don't have nearly the secondary depressant effect on communities that are dependent on agriculture. Some farms are doing very well even with the low prices. And other farms are in extremely difficult situations."

"I would like to project a lot of optimism for agriculture but I don't think the facts warrant a lot of optimism, at least for the next few years. A lot of what happens is going to depend on government. The role of government is going to be especially influential for a small group of commodities such as grains and dairying. What happens in Washington will effect these commodities very much. For other commodities however this is not true. Market forces will tell the story in fruits, vegetables and poultry products. About one half of the receipts that come from

New Technologies To Increase Milk Production

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LANCASTER — Until now, most of the increases in milk production have been attributed to advances in management, genetics and sire proofing. But now, new technologies that can produce dramatic increases in production are coming to the forefront.

Among those new technologies is bovine somatotropin, which can produce results that would take years of skilled breeding and continued advances in nutrition and management to achieve, Dr. William Chalupa, a professor at the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine, said at a veterinary nutrition forum in Lancaster Wednesday.

Studies have shown that bovine somatotropin, or bovine growth hormone, can increase milk production anywhere from 10 to 40 percent, Chalupa said.

Reports of increased milk production resulting from somatotropin date back to the 1930s, but it has been only in the last four or five years that the product has been the subject of intensive research efforts. Chalupa was part of one such study done at the University of Pennsylvania.

In that study, injections of somatotropin were started between day 28 and 35 of the lactation and continued through day 305. The study showed an average increase of 6.6 kilos of fat corrected milk or a 27 percent increase in milk production.

In a similar study at Cornell University, cows were injected with somatotropin starting at day 84 of the lactation and continuing for 180 days. This study showed an average of 9.4 more kilos of milk per day for a 34 percent increase in milk production.

The animal's production potential may have an effect on response to somatotropin, Chalupa said. The cows in the Cornell study had a slightly higher production potential and "the responses, in fact, were a little bit greater," he noted.

Second CRP Signup Nets 13,000 Acres

HARRISBURG — USDA officials were disappointed enough with the response to the first Conservation Reserve Program signup in March to schedule a second signup for May 5 to 16.

Following the tabulation of results at its Harrisburg office this week, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service reports that both the number of bidders and acres fell slightly short of the March tally. The number of acres accepted should be much higher this time, however, since the bids are more in line with what USDA is willing to pay, says ASCS conservation program specialist, Richard Pennay.

The goal of CRP is to take the nation's most highly erodible land out of production. Acres qualifying must be planted to trees or other permanent vegetative cover and cannot be used for hay production

Farm and Home Scholarship Winners

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster County Correspondent

LANCASTER — Fourteen $1,000 scholarships were presented to local high school seniors by the Lancaster County Farm and Home Foundation this week.

The scholarships were awarded to five students planning to major in agriculture, four planning to major in home economics and five planning to become nurses.

Money for the agriculture and home economics scholarships is provided by the Elmer Esbenshade trust fund, established at the time of the organization of the Foundation. Nursing scholarship money is provided by the Foundation. Recipients are selected on the basis of financial need, scholarship and leadership.

Conestoga Valley High School was represented by four recipients and J.P. McCaskey and Lancaster Mennonite had two each. The remainder of the seniors were from other county schools.

Those who will major in home economics include:

Melissa K. Snader, 18, is the daughter of Estella Snader, 140 Ronks Road, Ronks. A senior at Conestoga Valley High School, she will attend Messiah College and

Ag Forms Basis For Teaching Grade School

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

ITHACA, NEW YORK—"Because people don't know about agriculture, they cause problems," said Betty Wolanyk, Extension Associate Cornell University. These problems show up in the voting booth and in the fewer number of students enrolled in agricultural courses. While agribusiness has demand for 60 thousand people in related jobs we have a short fall of 13 thousand people each year. Speaking on the subject, "Ag in the Classroom", Wolanyk asked the question, "Why don't people understand agriculture?"

"In 1930 ag illustrations were used in textbooks. But writers today don't have an agricultural background so they don't use these examples. Whether it's math or science, ag illustrations are not used or are used with facts that are not relevent to today's agriculture," Wolanyk said. "In addition, commercials use animated scenes and historical type people. Society has a problem of stereo typing farmers. The farmer is wrongly portrayed as either stupid or he's rich or he's probably poisoning the public with chemicals."

The ag in a classroom program is trying to change these attitudes by teaching elementary children where food comes from. "It's easier to create attitudes than to change them," Wolanyk said. Ag in the classroom is a concentrated effort. Examples like one drug in four that is used in medicine has a farm product as a base. One in 52 people is a farmer. Examples of how ag uses life cycles or how ag interupts life cycles can be used as examples in science.

"We want to use agriculture as an environment for teaching. Teachers like the idea and have responded enthusiastically to the first news releases about the program. Agriculture has been important to history as well as technology. The teachers can use this material to make the classroom more interesting for the students," Wolanyk said.

Many parts of Lancaster Farming Territory received much needed rain this week so the growing corn at the corner of Hagars and Lime Valley Roads should be a few inches taller by now. The trees and the bank barn and silo frame a nice scene looking south of Strasburg. Photo by Everett Newswanger, Managing Editor.

Eastern PA and NJ Poultry

Wednesday, May 21, 1986
Report Supplied by USDA

Market Comment: Prices were unchanged to as much as one cent higher. Buying interest was fair and not as aggressive as recent weeks due to continued negative price relationship with canner type pack. Producer offerings were adequate and in fair balance with current processing needs. Five to six pound mid-size live fowl was priced at 16 cents FOB processors for movement from the New England section.

Prices Paid at Farm:

Light Type Hens: 9-11½, mostly 10-11½.

F.O.B. Plant: 11½-14, mostly 13-14.

Delmarva Poultry

Thursday, May 22, 1986

Market Comment: Demand for ready to cook whole birds was fairly good, but the inquiry was lighter on product was available in some quarters. Parts were in much the same position as whole birds and clearances were a bit more difficult. Less than trucklot asking prices were one cent higher at 61-68 cents, and processors could maintain their normal mark-up but no more than that. Live supplies were moderate. Weights were desirable to occasionally lighter than desired. Slaughter schedules were moderately heavy. The undertone was steady.

Estimated slaughter of broiler fryers in Delmarva:

Estimated 5/22 1,992,000; Actual 5/15 1,995,000.

Actual 5/20 1,959,000.

Average Weights 5/20 4.40, 5.13 4.42.

OPINION

A Call To Rewrite The Book

Diet and health/nutrition books seem to sell without much effort these days and apparently it doesn't matter if correct information is contained in these books. We recently read about one such book that has been on the New York Times' best sellers list for 35 weeks. The book sells for $16.50 and contains an incredible misrepresentation of facts about eggs.

From this one paragraph you can see the low credibility of both the authur and the publisher. We print it here only to remind you again of the importantance of promotion programs operated under the direction of farm producers in todays market place.

Here is that paragraph from "Fit for Life" by Harvey and Marilyn Diamond. "You may be wondering if eggs fare any better than flesh foods as a source of protein. Actually high-quality protein is not what we should search for. High-quality amino acids are what we need to produce the protein we must have. Unless eggs are eaten raw, the amino acids are coagulated by heat and thereby lost. Even if they are eaten raw, eggs are laid by hens that are fed arsenic to kill parasites and stimulate egg production, and you ingest some of that virulent poison. Also, eggs contain much sulfur, which puts a heavy strain on the liver and kidneys. The beautiful human body does not require anything that stinks for its survival. Eggs stink. Just drop one on your driveway on a hot day, and let it sit there for about eight hours, then take a big whiff of the effluvium. There's no difference between that and putting eggs in your body at 98.6 degrees for eight hours. The next bowel movement after the consumption of eggs will certainly bear this out. Excuse me for being rude, but the facts must be acknowledged."

This paragraph is so bad that it probably should not even have been reprinted, here. United Egg Producers board members now are looking at options and considering what can be done about such abuse.

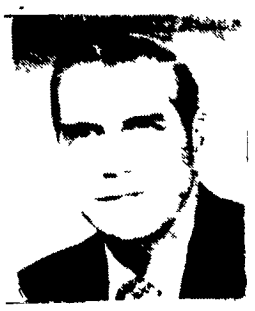
The book's lack of credibility has not gone unnoticed. A story in USA Today said nutritionists were calling the book "bizarre" and the the male author's "doctorate in nutritional science" came from an unaccredited correspondence school.

The American Dietetic Association is working to institute a book review program triggered in part by inquiries about "Fit for Life," the newspaper report says.

Recently we were treated to a realy good egg promotion treat when Howard Helmar, known as the "Omelet King", gave his humorous, inspiring and informative presentation about eggs at the Twentieth Anniversary Celebration Banquet of Plain and Fancy Egg Ranch. Before the end of the evening all of the 180 guests had made their own delicious egg omelets.

We can assure you Howard Helmar's eggs don't stink. And with his knowledge of the nutritional benefits of eggs and his persuasive way of presenting the facts it would be a good turn of events if sometime we could get the Diamonds into one of Helmar's presentations.

After they ate one of those delicious egg omelets so easily prepared under Helmar's instruction, the Diamonds might even make a public retraction of their erroneous facts. They may even rewrite their book.



NOW IS THE TIME

To Be Aware Of Rabies

Pennsylvania has had cases of animal rabies for many years but the last several years have seen a real increase. Rabies is transmitted through a bite of a rabies-infected animal, also through exposure of an open wound, a fresh abrasion, scratch, or mucous membrane to virus infected saliva from a rabid animal.

The symptoms of rabies in animals may vary from a quiet depressed state to a furious erratic behavior pattern. If you are bitten by any animal, wash the wound thoroughly with lots of soap and water, then immediately see your physician for medical treatment.

In cases of human exposure, the suspect wild animal should be humanely killed and the head taken to a laboratory for examination. Be sure it's packed in ice and delivered within 24 hours so as not to damage the brain. Deliver to Department of Health and Welfare, Pickering Way and Welsh Pool Road, Lionsville, PA 19343. Phone ahead for more information - 215-363-8500. Large animals (dog size and larger) should go to B.A.I. Laboratory at Summerdale, Pa. 17093, phone 717-787-8808.

There is a danger that unvaccinated pet animals could contact the disease through exposure to rabid wild animals. Since there is no practical way to eliminate the potential contact, have your pets vaccinated by a veterinarian.

To Check Stored Pesticides

The shelf life of most pesticides, when stored in their original container, is usually several years. The greatest problem with stored pesticides comes from freezing temperatures. Cold winter temperatures may cause a breakdown of the emulsifier in liquid materials. These materials may not mix properly when added to the spray water.

To determine if the pesticide will still mix properly with water, follow this easy procedure: (1) place ½ pint of water in a small container, (2) add ½ teaspoon of the pesticide, (3) shake or stir thoroughly (you should get a milky mixture), (4) let stand for about one hour. The spray mix should remain an even milky mixture. If an oily scum or layer forms on top, or if a layer of curds appear on top, don't use the material.

To Check Water Supplies

Water is one of our most important resources, and it should be checked periodically. Many families depend on wells for their water supply. But they pay little attention to the water unless the pump fails or the well runs dry. Your water should be tested annually to determine its quality.

It is important to test water following any reconstruction or addition to the water supply or its distribution system. Water supplies should be checked whenever a disease occurs that may have been caused by unsafe drinking water. If water changes in taste, odor or appearance for no reason, it should be tested.

There are many tests and analyses that can be used. Two of the most important are for nitrates and bacteria.

To Be Aware of Ticks

The tick season is here. These pests may be on almost any dog or person that walks through uncultivated fields or woody areas from May to September.

Ticks await their victims on low-growing shrubs and on tall grass. They attach to, and feed on the blood of dogs and humans as well as many other animals.

To control the American dog tick, first clean the area of tall grass and weeds on which the ticks await their victims. Also treat bushes 20 to 30 feet on either side of paths with either Sevin, Diazinon or Lindane. The dog should also be treated with a 5 percent Sevin dust at weekly intervals, or as needed, to control ticks.

WHO'S GOT THE SPIRIT?

Background Scripture: 1 Corinthians 12 through 13.
Devotional Reading: 1 Corinthians 2:6-16.

It is strange what people do with the gifts God gives them. No sooner does he give them something special than they find some way of perverting the gift. Instead of the blessing it was intended to be, the gift becomes a bone of contention between God's children. Instead of gratitude, the gifts often inspire pride. Intended to enrich the human community, the gifts often become the source of division in that community.

Consider the gifts of the Spirit. In the early church God blessed the followers of Jesus with wonderful spiritual gifts: the utterance of knowledge, wisdom, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, tongues, and interpretation. Given for the enrichment of the early Christians, the gifts soon became a cause for dissention and bitterness in the church. Instead of uniting congregations, the gifts seemed to divide them. Instead of making people more thankful to God, they seemed to become more prideful. Instead of inspiring love, the gifts engendered hostility.

ONE IN MANY

The list of God's gifts may not be quite the same today, but the situation is — people still pervert his gifts and thwart his will. Therefore, Paul's powerful message to the Church at Corinth is still very very timely for us and our situation. In 1 Corinthians 12, Paul recognized the great diversity of gifts, varieties of service, and ways of working, but emphasized again and again that there was but one Spirit, one Lord, one God as source of that diversity. Instead of being separated by our variety of gifts, we are united by our common source.

Paul emphasized that all the gifts given to us from this common source are intended, not just for the enjoyment of the few, but to employ for "the common good." Thus, if you have a spiritual gift from God it is for the purpose of helping someone else. And, in fact, everyone is given some gift that is needed for "the common good." To be sure, some gifts are more spectacular, some more rare, but all of us are given something to contribute to others. So, just as we are one in the Source of our gifts, so we are also one in our need for each other's gift.

STILL MORE EXCELLENT

If you must contend over what is the highest of all God's gifts, says Paul to the Corinthians, then concentrate on that which is "a still more excellent way" — the peerless gift. For, without this gift, all the other gifts are useless. And what is this gift that is higher than tongues, prophetic powers, the understanding of all mysteries, and faith that can move mountains? The answer: love — the love that puts all these gifts at the disposal of others.

For the person who has everything else, love is still the best of all gifts. For without it, they have nothing.

Omaha Weekly

Report Supplied by USDA

Slaughter steer and heifer prices turned 1.50-2.00 lower from last week's closing levels. A sluggish beef trade coupled with an expanded slaughter and the upcoming holiday period proved too burdensome for maintaining last week's price levels. Buyers were still rather selective with best demand on those steers under 1300 lbs. and promising relatively few if any yield grade 4's. Slaughter cows 1.00-1.50 lower. Slaughter bulls steady.

Estimated 5 day receipts 7,900 compared to 8,911 last week and 10,912 last year. Slaughter steers accounted for 50 pct of receipts, slaughter heifers 40 percent, slaughter cows 6 percent and feeder cattle 2 percent.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: Closing sales choice 2-4 1100-1300 lbs. 55.50-57.00. Mixed good and choice 2-3 1100-1250 lbs. 54.00-56.00. Few good 51.00-54.00.

SLAUGHTER HEIFERS: Closing sales choice 2-4 950-1150 lbs. 54.50-56.00. Mixed good and choice 2-3 950-1050 lbs. 52.50-54.50. Few good 50.00-52.50.

Average of LS 214 detailed quotations for choice 900-1100 lb. steers 55.80, 1100-1300 lbs. 56.58. Average cost all slaughter steers this week 56.25, average weight 1196 lbs. compared to 56.59 and 1204 lbs. last week. Average cost all slaughter heifers this week 54.93, average weight 1064 lbs. compared to 55.15 and 1060 lbs. last week.

SLAUGHTER COWS: Breaking utility and commercial 2-4 35.25-38.50. Cutter and boning utility 1-3 36.00-40.50. Low to average cutter 32.75-36.00.

SLAUGHTER BULLS: 1-2 1500-2300 lbs. 45.50-50.00, low dressing kinds 43.00-45.00.

Pork: Red Meat or White?

Nearly all consumers see beef as being a red meat and consider chicken and fish to be white meats. A National Pork Producers Council study reports some disagreement about pork's color, however. A surprising 37 percent of consumers surveyed viewed fresh pork as a white meat and 9 percent weren't sure. Pork up to this point has traditionally been called one of the red meats by the meat industry itself.

USDA Weekly Reports Begin

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Wednesday the USDA began issuing weekly reports showing purchases of red meat by USDA, the number of cattle slaughtered and the number of dairy cattle sold for export under the dairy termination program. This weekly report was mandated in the settlement of the National Cattlemen's Association's suit.

USDA figures show an estimated 36,300 head of cattle in the program were slaughtered during the week ending May 3. This figure includes all cows, heifers and calves in the DTP, according to the USDA spokesman.

An estimated total of 293,100 head have been slaughtered since the beginning of the DTP on April 1.

Meat purchases by the government reached 10.7 million pounds for the week ending May 7. This meat was purchased in the form of canned beef, bulk-frozen ground beef, smoked hams and frozen choice beef for a domestic purchase cumulative total of 69 million pounds.

Indian Visitors Surprised by Americans' Friendliness

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster County
Correspondent

LANCASTER – "Americans are more friendly, more smiling and more loving than I expected. We are getting much more than we deserve." These observations were made by Udendra P. Waghray, one of 29 Ambassadors from India spending two weeks in the Lancaster area through the Friendship Force Exchange.

Several of the Ambassadors, who are staying in homes for their two-week visit here, have agricultural backgrounds, not surprising in a country in which 70 percent of the people are employed in agriculture. India has a population of 723 million people and has land area about one third the size of the United States.

Udendra, who is being hosted by Keith and Kathy Vogt of Marietta, said he did not expect Americans to be so friendly or that hosts would spend so much time with their guests. He also said he thought they might not receive as much respect because they come from a country that is poorer than the United States.

Similar comments were voiced by Jhina Padam Singh and Mahendra S. Patel who were spending the first of their two weeks with Earl and Doris Hummel, Landisville. Jhina operates about 10 acres of orchards with two of his sons and Mahendra grew up on his father's 60-acre farm.

Mahendra says truthfully, "We had some apprehension about how we would find Americans. We have been absorbed as family members and have a fantastic family here."

Jhina agrees, "We have festivity all the time. We are completely indebted to Doris for all she does for us. We are simple people, and are all children of God." Both men agreed that they would not choose to come as tourists, but liked the Friendship Force exchange because they could actually live in a home in this country.

Also visiting with the Vogts, who operate a grain hauling business, is Dilip Kumar Patel, who is a wholesale vegetable grower from the state of Gujarat in western India. Dilip is enjoying the lush agriculture in this area, and has had the opportunity to go to the wholesale vegetable auction in Leola.

Dilip grows vegetables on seven acres of land in the west central state of Gujarat, a major agricultural area of India. His father grows vegetables on five acres. Their crops includes such local vegetables as cabbage and cauliflower as well as mangoes. He said bananas and sugar cane are also major crops in his area.

A member of a cooperative, Dilip hires seasonal help as necessary to work the crops. Labor is cheap and readily available in that populous nation. However, Dilip makes a universal statement about the agricultural economy, when he replies to a question about the prices he receives. "I would like to make more money," he said.

Dilip purchases hybrid plants for planting and when he needs a tractor for working in the fields or for hauling his produce to market, he hires one. Most of the work is done by hand.

His comment about the Lancaster County countryside is, "It's beautiful. In India it is mostly flat."

Udendra agrees, "In India it rains just once a year during a three or four month period. There is not as much greenery there."

To compensate for the lack of rainfall, Dilip irrigates his crops.

The India delegation began their trip by spending three days in London and two days in New York, and both young men agree that Lancaster Countians are friendlier than the city people with whom they came into contact. Waghray says, "This is a beautiful place to live in. There is a lot of land available and a lot of nice people. They are very 'helping natured.' They laugh a lot and smile a lot."

Kathy Vogt quickly notes that the smiling and friendliness seems to come forth from both sides. She said that during a trip to the Capitol on Monday to meet Governor Thornburgh, the Indian visitors were very outgoing.

The food served here is quite different from India. Udendra explains, "Your diet contains a lot of protein, and we take a lot of carbohydrates." Indian food is more highly spiced, though he admits than in India there are more and more foods being introduced from other cultures. Udendra lives in Andhra Pradesh in south central India.

Jhina, who has a degree in horticulture, raises apples, cherries, apricots, almonds, peaches, walnuts, hazelnuts and citrus fruits on the land he operates with the help of two sons. While they farm about 10 acres, he said the average farm may be about three acres. His orchards are located in Himachal Pradesh, north of Delhi, within view of snow-capped peaks of the Himalayan Mountains. Indeed, the chief minister of that state is an agriculturist, Shri Vir Bhadra Singh, who has a special interest in apple cultivation.

His home state has a lot of agriculture, and it is from 5,000 to 17,000 feet above sea level.

His agricultural products are sold wholesale in New Delhi through agents on commission. He said that markets in his country are mostly open air markets with the exception of an air-conditioned market, called the Baliki Bazaar, founded by Indira Ghandi's late son.

Jhina noted that his orchards are managed with two to three extra people helping on a regular basis. During harvest and other busy times they hire up to 30 additional workers.

Jhina is quite proud of his accomplishment in growing almond trees in a climate which features 65 inches of rainfall annually. Usually, those trees can't take that much water, but he works in changing the structure of the soil to permit it to have proper drainage. He said he also grafts trees "for a perfect union" of the stalk and the budding branch. A careful spray program is also important to his success. "I have built up resistance in my trees, and I have standardized from the beginning to marketing, and have built up a reputation."

Because of the value of land, Jhina said his orchards look like "a veritable jungle." Nonetheless, in a trail blazing experiment, he managed to grow cauliflower both for its fruit and seed among the trees while their leaves were off. He said he did it to show others that it would work, and he received a premium price for his seed.

While Mahendra works now in graphic design, he is in close touch with his family. Two of his brothers farm with his father, also in the Gujarat state, in western India. They grow cotton, wheat, mangoes, peanuts and bananas.

Mahendra points out that bananas produce a crop once every 14 months, and the crop is worth 18,000 rupees per acre. There are 13 rupees to $1. Cotton yields about 6,000 rupees per acre. Cotton takes about six months to grow and is rotated with wheat or corn.

Mahendra said that eight to 10 employees work on his father's farm regularly, and during the busy season they employ 40 to 50 additional workers.

Doris Hummel, Landisville, poses with her two Indian visitors near their favorite tree, a magnolia. Mahendra S. Patel, center, is graphic designer who grew up on a farm in the state of Gujarat, and Jhina Padam Singh, owns about 10 acres of orchards in the state of Himachal Pradesh.

The diet for many of the visitors is vegetarian, and Mahendra explains that rice and pulse, the edible pods of peas, beans or lentils, comprise a large part of their diet. His father-in-law produces spices like fennel for sale.

Deepakbhai T. Patel is visiting on the Dauphin County dairy farm of Tom and Tiz Williams, and will spend his second week with Creedon Bixler, a technician for Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, to give him wide exposure to Pennsylvania agriculture.

Deepakbhai, whose home is also in the state of Gujarat, raises sugar cane, banana, mangoes and vegetables on 35 acres. He also wholesales his produce.

He owns two Holstein cows and two Jersey cows, and his family uses the milk.

Jhina pointed out that they too have two milk-producing cows, but they also milk a "she-buffalo". According to Jhina, the buffaloes, milk has 6.5 percent butterfat content, which is higher even than Jersey cows. He said the original Jersey stock has been crossbred to help them withstand the rigors of the Himalyas. Mahendra said they have about four buffaloes from which they use the milk, and they keep bullocks for doing the field work.

Udendra expresses the feelings of many of the visitors when he explains why he chose to visit the United States through the Friendship Force Exchange. "A tourist can see places, but they cannot meet the people. We can read a lot about America, but I wanted to see how the American behave, how they go to the grocery store and how they live."

For these Indian visitors, the glimpse of the agriculture in South Central Pennsylvania is interesting, but the opportunity to live with families is an experience they will cherish a lifetime.

Deepakbhai T. Patel, center, is being hosted by Tom and Tiz Williams, left, who operate a dairy farm in Dauphin County, and, in the second week, by Creedin Bixler, Cumberland County. Deepakbhai operates a 35-acre farm in India, raising sugar cane, bananas, mangoes and vegetables.

Keith and Kathy Vogt, Marietta, are hosting Friendship Force visitors Udendra P. Waghray, left, and Dilip Kumar Patel, both of India. The Friendship Force Ambassadors will stay on the Vogt farm for one week before moving to second week hosts.

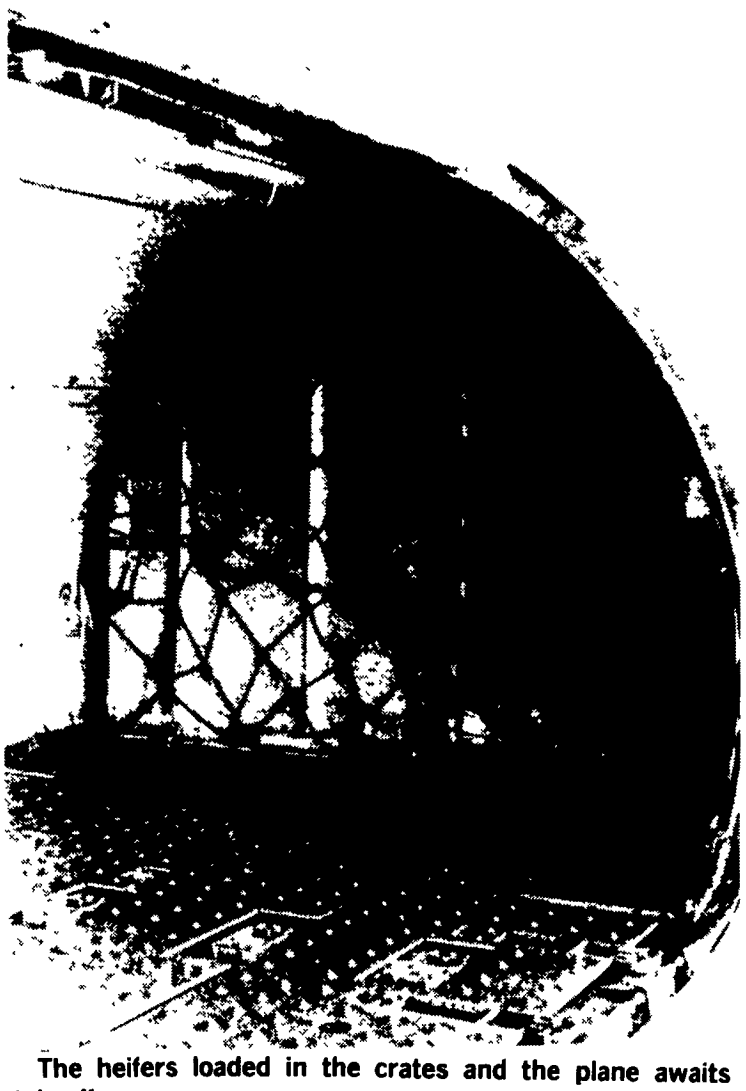
Heifers Fly From Lar

HARRISBURG — The old ad encourages people to fly the friendly skies. Recently these skies have turned villainous and more and more people are choosing to stay home.

One group of beings that isn't intimidated by the state of world affairs and may actually be aiding in global peace, took off from Harrisburg International Airport this week. This group, 90 bred heifers, flew from the airport crated like eggs, bound for Jordan.



The heifers loaded in the crates and the plane awaits takeoff.

Almost half of the airborne heifers were donations from farmers participating in the buyout program; this is one of the first organized exportations of such animals. However, plans for this shipment were in the works prior to the Dairy Termination Plan.

Over two years ago Jordan contacted Heifer Project International for a shipment of 200 Holstein heifers. The first phase was completed in the fall of 1985, with the balance being filled earlier this week.

HPI, a non-profit organization, relies on heifer donations from farmers to fill these requests. Projects are not initiated by HPI, rather they respond to appeals from grassroots farm groups.

The recent planeload received an unexpected boost from the DTP. "Many farmers have spent years developing improved cattle and rather than have them slaughtered, they chose to donate them," explained John Dieterly, director of HPI's Mid-Atlantic Regional Office in Maryland.

A local program participant, J. Clayton Charles, Lancaster, explains, "Rather than see the animal slaughtered, I prefer to have them exported where they can do some good for someone else." Relating the adage, "Give someone a fish and you help him for a meal. Teach him to fish and you help him for a lifetime," Charles noted he will probably donate again next year prior to the dispersal of his herd.

Lancaster County farms were scheduled to send 13 heifers on this flight, joining approximately 20 heifers from the remainder of Pennsylvania.

The Clare Oberholtzer and Albert Breneman Farms, previous donors from the county, were donating to this trip also. Both families agreed they felt it was an opportunity to help someone else.

Oberholtzer compared this program to FFA's heifer chain which was responsible for providing him with a heifer during his FFA years. HPI, like the FFA program, requires new heifer owners to give the first born female to someone else in need of an animal.

Prior to exporting the animals, they had to be centralized and checked over. For this trip they were congregated at the Pennsylvania Holstein Association's barn outside of Middletown.

This facility was chosen for its central location for the seven states sending animals, and, "It has one of the finest quarantine and export preparation facilities anywhere," Dieterly noted. The Holstein Association has been very supportive of our efforts, he added.

Bill Nichol, executive secretary of the association, spoke at Sunday's dedication for the animals. He offered praise for HPI and noted that this organization assisted in opening the export market to Turkey by helping to establish its dairy industry through these projects.

At the PHA barn the animals were sorted, weighed and inspected by Dr. Rossow, a federal veterinarian. Before any animal can be exported, certain health requirements and mountains of red tape must be cleared, Dieterly

For shipment to Jordan, the heifers had to meet tuberculosis and brucellosis requirements, similar to the requirements of our country. Some of the donated animals did not pass Rossow's examination. Either physical ailments, such as lameness or ringworm, or an incomplete brucellosis test caused the flight reservations for a few animals to be cancelled.

An incomplete brucellosis test, Rossow explained, "does not mean there is a problem with the heifer. The titer, or antibiotic response, of an animal is not compatible with the requirements."

"They just happen to have a stronger reaction," Rossow commented.

Grounded donations will be used in domestic projects which account for 25 percent of HPI's activities, Dieterly explained. "We have projects in Maine that are begging for good animals like these," Dieterly said.

Unfortunately, in the case of the DTP heifers that were cut, they will be slaughtered in 15 days in accordance with the regs of the buyout program.

Farmers in the buyout program have offered whole herds to HPI, however they cannot accept these donations since they usually export only bred heifers. "Our requests are mainly for bred heifers," Laurie Rodgers, assistant director of HPI's Mid-Atlantic Regional office, explained. There are several reasons that bred heifers are the age of choice for export. One is that many countries don't have facilities to breed animals; and bred heifers actually offer them improved genetics for two generations. Also, the long flight, 18 hours in this case, would be too stressful for milking cows, Rodgers said.

Jordan requested Holsteins, but HPI will also accept Jersey and Brown Swiss heifers, with the genetic ability to produce over 15,000 pounds of milk. "The pedigrees on these animals is amazing, even more impressive is who they are bred to," Rodgers stated, commenting on the excellent quality of animals that were donated.

Tuesday things were set into motion at 7:30 a.m. when the animals were hauled from the barn to the airport. Here they were moved into 17 freight crates and loaded into a DC-8 cargo plane. At 1:30 p.m. the Air Canada plane taxied down the runway enroute to Jordan.

Following refueling stops in Newfoundland and Paris, they touched down in Jordan at 6:30, Jordanian time. The heifers reportedly survived this trip very well with only a few being down upon their arrival, and they were revived shortly afterwards.

Jordanian recipients of these heifers have been preparing for their projects by learning the proper care and feeding of the animals. These animals will be acclimated by either imported feed, similar to what they may have been fed in the states, or good quality hay.

Future shipment areas include Mexico, and possibly Egypt, Bolivia and Haiti. They are still accepting DTP animals that meet the requirements. Poland has also expressed interest in receiving animals, upwards to 1,000 head. Shipment to Poland hinges on the Polish government providing the shipping arrangements. Domestic trucking costs are covered by tax deductible donations. Dieterly added.

The motto of HPI is "Solving the problem of hunger one farmer at a time." Tuesday however it looked like one plane load at a time.

The crates were loaded into the plane by means of a specially built forklift. This forklift weighed the heifer that filled crates to insure the plane was not overloaded; it was capable of handling 95,000 pounds.

This heifer nervously steps off the truck and into the waiting freight crate.

Farming Tradition Combines Fruit & Milk

JULIE GOCHENOUR
UA Staff Correspondent

KERNSTOWN, VIRGINIA – Combing fruit and milk has been a farming tradition on Hedgebrook Farm, Robert Hockman's orchard and dairy operation near Winchester, Virginia. Now his daughters, Kitty Nicholas and Robin Eddy, have taken the idea even further and added a third operation to the family farm—yogurt.

Although both grew up on the farm and Nicholas had been managing the dairy for several years, making yogurt was a totally new and different enterprise for the sisters. "One reason it appealed to us was because it was an out-growth of our existing dairy facility," Nicholas explains. "We also felt we could do well in marketing and that it was going to be a good money making enterprise."

Nearly four years and over $100,000.00 later, they still feel that way. Their product, Hedgebrook Farm Yogurt, is an all natural swiss-style yogurt with honey sweetened fruit stirred in. While the fruit must be ordered from a specialty company, the jersey milk is from the farm herd and the sisters even use a local honey. What's more, the recipe is all their own.

Production has come a long way since Eddy stirred up the first trial batches in her kitchen. Today, 45 Jerseys with a rolling herd average of 13,000 pounds and 4.7% butterfat provide the milk to make 500 gallons of yogurt a week. The cultured product is 96% whole milk with milk solids, stabilizer and protein added. No thickeners are necessary since Jersey milk is rich enough to do the job alone.

You don't learn that kind of production on the back of a kitchen stove, Eddy admits. Instead, they visited yogurt operations like the Colombo plant in Hagerstown, Md. They also hired professionals to develop a formula and culture for their yogurt...as well as the equipment and procedure to make a marketable product.

The set-up is relatively simple. "The cows are milked and the milk comes directly from the udder into our 500 gallon bulk tank," Eddy explains. "There it's cooled to 38°F as soon as it gets there—almost instantly," she adds. "Our pasteurizer holds 250-280 gallons so we withdraw the amount of milk we want out of the bulk tank and into the pasteurizer which is double jacked and three zoned."

"After we run as much milk into the pasteurizer as we want, we add what we need to add and then heat up the milk and its contents to 185°F with a 30 h.p. industrial boiler. We have three thermometers we use and when it reaches this temperature, we hold it for half an hour. Then we cool it down to 110°F, stop cooling and add the live, active culture."

Their formula is somewhat different than most, including not only lactobacillus bulgarius and streptococcus thermophilus bacterias but also acidophilus. "Acidophilus is the most important one and that's good for your digestive system," Eddy reports. After the culture is added, the mixture is agitated for 15-20 minutes and then rests for 10-12 hours to incubate.

Once the yogurt reaches a pH of 4.5, Eddy breaks the acidity and cools it down to 70°F. It then moves into the 100 gallon blending tank where Eddy adds the fruit and honey, making sure each batch of Hedgebrook Yogurt tastes the same. It's quality control with a personal touch.

"That's our secret formula," she smiles. "We have strawberry, raspberry, blueberry, cherry, peach and vanilla, and we do plain also," the younger sister lists, ranking them in order of popularity. "But the plain is getting more popular for cooking. People use it instead of mayonhaise and sour cream, or in their baking," she elaborates.

Kitty Nicholas scrubs a milk tank in the on-the-farm yogurt operation.

When the fruited yogurt is ready, it moves into an Anderson filler which can fill 40 four or eight ounce cups a minute. These are mechanically dated and hand packed into cardboard trays which hold twelve cups. Once wrapped, they'll be stored in a cooler until delivered locally or picked up by a distributor to fill an order.

Marketing is the other half of the yogurt business. Both Eddy and Nicholas have strong backgrounds in marketing, but understand the idea is not for all farm operations. "It's definitely not something the majority of people have any knowledge of—nor do they want it," Nicholas admits. "There's a better profit margin to be made on a market ready product, but only if you can get your name out there and get people to buy your product. That's the most difficult thing."

Keeping this in mind, the sisters also hired a market research firm to find out (1) what consumers wanted to buy and (2) what would encourage them to buy Hedgebrook Farm Yogurt specifically. The firm found there was a demand for a high-quality, all natural yogurt, especially in a four ounce snack size that would be suitable for small children.

This led Nicholas and Eddy to choose four and eight ounce containers for their product. The jersey (cow) brown plastic cups have a simple sketch of the "gentle jersey" as a logo and include the words "Made in the Shenandoah Valley," something most people respond favorably, Nicholas explains. A Circle around the logo then indicates flavor and provides a touch of color.

They still had to sell their product though, and began knocking on doors. Winchester is a small city about 90 miles west of Washington D.C. and local customers soon included the Frederick County and Winchestr school systems, the Winchester Medical Center, independent grocery stores and an area distributor. The sisters have since picked up other distributors which sell their yogurt to, among others, a chain of D.C. grocery stores called Magruders, and now A&P.

"One problem we have is getting stores to buy our product and then, after they buy it, getting the consumer to buy it...because they don't know who Hedgebrook Farm is," Nicholas explains. "Whenever we do demos in stores, we get people to taste the product and then buy it—lots of it. And then they're going to come back and buy it again. But you have to spend a lot of money to get people to but your product unless you want to wait maybe eight to ten years down the road for your markets."

The proof is in the eating Hedgebrook Farm yogurt packaged in four ounce containers appeals to children.

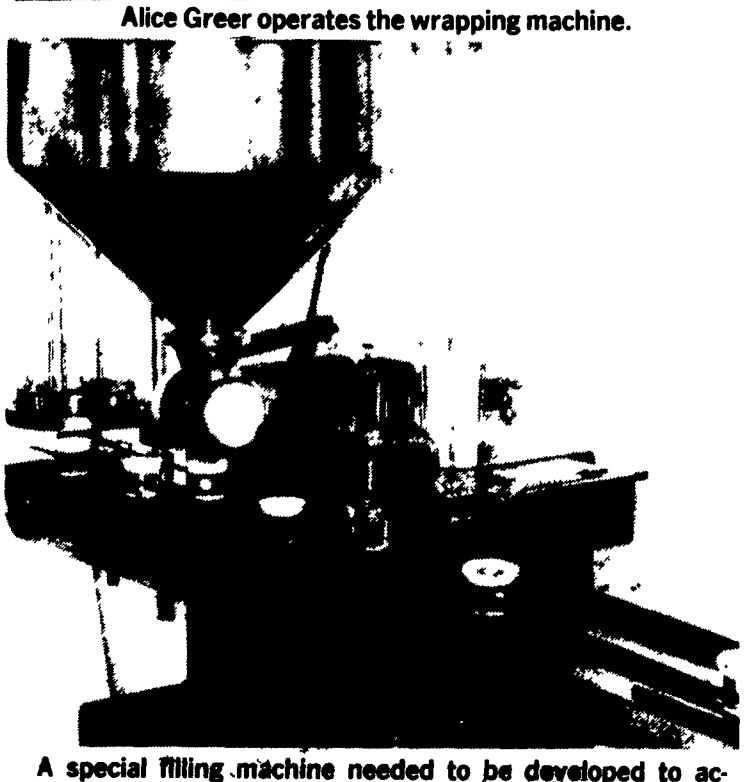
This thinking was paid off. Within a year of beginning commercial production, Hedgebrook Farm Yogurt can be found from Miami to Boston and as far west as Ohio. An advertisig campaign is also planned for the Maryland/Virginia/D.C. market beginning the first week in June. This should introduce more people to the farm fresh yogurt available in their dairy case and make the investment worthwhile, Nicholas says.

All of this is a far cry from marketing milk through a co-op, she points out. "There's no comparison, it's just like night and day. There's no selling involved with producing fluid milk. Our only responsibilities are producing the best quality we can and getting the most our of our cows we can per head for the least amount of money. Now when you get into the yogurt business, you have to do all that plus market your product."

Making yogurt isn't going to change things on Hedgebrook Farm except make them all a little busier, Nicholas promises. Both she and Eddy are committed to the family farm, and Nicholas is very proud to be a dairy farmer. In the past five years, she's brought the rolling herd average of her father's purebred and grade holsteins up to 21,000 pounds. This incudes more than a 2,000 pound jump in 1985 which landed them Virginia's most improved dairy herd award this winter.

Hedgebrook Farm Yogurt, the sisters say, is their joint contribution to the farm their grandparetns started in 1907. Nicholas takes care of the dairy cows and all the equipment while Eddy is in charge of making the yogurt. Both sisters then share the marketing and other responsibilities. "It really doesn't count until you have your own money and your own blood and sweat and tears invested in it," Nicholas says.

Alice Greer operates the wrapping machine.



A special filling machine needed to be developed to accommodate four ounce cups.

or grazing for the 10-year duration of the program. During designated signup periods farmers submit proposed bids on acres they wish to enter based on per-acre rental rates in their area.

Although the cut-off for acceptable bids has not yet been announced for the latest signup period, "If the acceptable bid level is about the same as last time, we'll have a high percentage of those farms in the program," Pennay predicted.

During the program's first signup, 397 bidders submitted bids on 13,662 acres in Pennsylvania. Only 2,463 acres on 93 farms were accepted, since the majority of the bids exceeded the maximum of $65 for Pool 1 and $60 for Pool 2.

These two regional pools were established to take into account differences in rental rates across the state. Pool 1 includes the southeastern counties from Bedford, Blair, Centre and Clinton east, and bordered to the north by Lycoming, Columbia, Schuylkill, Lehigh and Northampton. All other counties are included in Pool 2.

During the current signup, 13,448 acres on 361 farms were submitted for consideration. Pennay predicts that well over half of this acreage will be accepted.

Pool 2 counties topped the signup, with 30 bidders submitting 1,154 acres in Tioga County. Washington County was second with 15 bidders and 1,132 acres.

In Pool 1, Columbia County led the way with 20 bidders and 835 acres. York County's 15 bidders submitted 797 acres for consideration. No participation was noted from Lancaster and Adams Counties.

Pennsylvania's program participation remains a long way from its goal of 82,000 acres. Pennay said that a third signup will undoubtedly be scheduled before fall in an effort to take more fall crops out of production.

Nationwide, USDA hopes to take at least 40 million acres out of crop production through CRP.

Lebanon County FFA Honors Students For Year of Hard Work

BY MIRIAM GREENFIELD
Lebanon Co. Correspondent

LEBANON — Lebanon County's richest agricultural resource is its future farmers, students of vocational agriculture. They gathered with advisors and guests May 15 at Cedar Crest Middle School for their annual banquet to reap honors for a year of hard work.

Dale Balmer, Annville-Cleona High School, outgoing president of Lebanon County FFA, was named 1986 Star Agribusinessman. He was also presented with a plaque and $50 U.S. savings bond for outstanding Farm Credit Record Keeping by Keith Silfee of the Production Credit Association. In addition, his project on soybean production earned him a proficiency award from state. He was a 1986 Keystone Degree winner and in dairy judging, grades 11 and 12, he placed first. Dale is a son of John and Marilyn Balmer, R4, Lebanon.

Tim Elliott, Annville-Cleona High School, outgoing treasurer, was named 1986 Lebanon County Star Farmer by Reed Hoover of the Lebanon County Holstein Club. Elliott's farm project also earned him a proficiency award from state. In addition, he was a 1986 Keystone Degree winner and placed first in extemporaneous speaking, salesmanship, and corn yield. He is a son of Richard and Kathy Elliott, R4, Lebanon.

Harvey Smith, area consultant, also gave state proficiency awards to Jenny Embich, Cedar Crest, and Brenda Reinbold, Northern Lebanon, outgoing secretary of Lebanon County FFA.

Tonya Johnson, outgoing vice-president, was named Star Agri-Businessman of Cedar Crest High School and received first place in conservation speaking and in interview.

Keith Zeigler was Star Agri-Businessman from Eastern Lebanon High School. David Brandt, from Lebanon Vo-Tech, and Matt Hetrick, from Northern Lebanon, were named Star Agri-Businessmen for their schools.

Brenda Balmer was named Star Farmer from Cedar Crest; Gary Mart, from Eastern Lebanon; and Donna Kreiser, from Lebanon Vo-Tech.

Brenda Dice, Northern Lebanon, presented the County Creed and received a first-place check from the Lebanon County Farmers Association. Also receiving checks for second and third place in the creed contest were Mardell Boyd, Cedar Crest; and Mike Balmer, Annville.

Mark Long, outgoing reporter, was named Star Farmer at Northern Lebanon and was a 1986 Keystone Degree winner. He placed first in the agronomy contest.

Long and Lisa Houser, outgoing sentinel, Cedar Crest, conferred Lebanon County Farmer Degrees to the following winners: Kent Hoffer, Sheila Hostetter, Daniel Brandt, Eric Harnish, and Mike Beare, from Annville-Cleona; Jeff Ruhl, Adam Hain, and Kevin Dreibelbis, from Cedar Crest; Ted Zook, Keith Zeigler, Glenn Kurtz, Angie Bollinger, Adam Sonnon, and Dean Nolt, from Eastern Lebanon County; Dan Heisey and Dawn Sourwine from Lebanon Vo-Tech; and Matt Hetrick, Gene Kreitzer, and Julie Grill from Northern Lebanon.

Charles Kline, state vice-president, brought greetings and encouraged members to participate in county contests. It was noted that of the 18 American Farmers named in Pennsylvania in 1985, four are from Lebanon County: Donald Baer, Daryl Balmer, Steven Wenger and Mark Patches.

Other Keystone Degree winners were Eric Morton, Annville-Cleona; David Groff, Daniel Groff, and Brenda Balmer, Cedar Crest; Philip Balsbaugh, Elco; Tammy Weaber, Lebanon Vo-Tech; and Wesley Harding, Mike Kunkle, and Eric Swinehart, Northern Lebanon.

County Contest first-prize winners besides those named above were Lynn Schwenk, Annville, land judging; Gerald Getz, Lebanon Vo-Tech, small engine; Laura Harding, Northern Lebanon, corn quality contest; and Sue Elliott, Annville, FFA prepared speaking.

Other County Contest first-prize winners were Gale Hitz, Cedar Crest, for meat judging; Jeff Ruhl, Cedar Crest, agriculture mechanics; Tom Price, Cedar Crest, dairy foods; Rodney Eckenrode, Cedar Crest, horse judging; Dave Lentz, Northern Lebanon, dairy judging, grades 9 and 10; and Kathy Blatt, Northern Lebanon, greenhand contest.

Glenn Wenger of Wenger Farm Machinery announced the following Lebanon County Project Book Contest medal winners: enterprise, Jeff Balmer, Elco, gold; Becky Smith, Cedar Crest, silver; and Gene Kreitzer, Northern Lebanon, bronze. National Dairy Board Holds Second Annual Meeting

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A trade bill, aimed at the Irish Dairy Venture in Georgia, passed the Congress on Thursday, according to congressman James Jeffords of Vermont. This bill permits the firm to use federal funds to open their dairy and fill the barn with cows, however they cannot sell their milk to a class one or class two market, he explained.

Jeffords, who co-authored the buyout bill, commented on the current success of the program, "The whole herd buyout program is working beyond expectations at this point." Jefford made his remarks at the second annual meeting of the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board.

In reference to the National Cattleman's Suit, he added, "We originally set the program up to be phased in and appropriated $400 million to buy beef on the market in excess of normal culls."

However, Congress members representing beef people came to the Congress committee and suggested the phase out portion of the bill be removed and the program be front loaded. Their reasoning was that the market would be a little tighter and beef prices would be up in spring, Jeffords explained.

However, what did happen was that speculators on the futures market and cattleman panicked, causing the problem, he added.

Continuing, "This program is a temporary solution. If we don't get production under control there will be more price cuts," Jefford emphasized. He added that anyone who is "racing for base" and increasing production in preparation for a quota system are under an "illusion". The net effect of such actions is a cut in the support price.

A new farm bill will not develop until 1990, and, under the present administration there is "no hope for any type of supply management or quota system," Jeffords said.

Highlights of the annual meeting, held on Thursday and Friday, included a report that dairy product commercial use has increased by four percent over last year, and seven percent during the board's existence.

"This is the first time in more than twenty years we have seen a major upturn in dairy products use," said Ivan K. Strickler of Iola, Kan., board chairman. He added that cheese use was up 12 percent and butter use has increased 5.7 percent.

Of all the dairy products available to the consumer," Strickler said, "only non-fat dry milk did not make significant gains."

"We believe the Board's promotional efforts, combined with those of other dairy promotion groups around the country, have made the difference," he stated.

The Board's advertising and sales promotion budget for fiscal 1986, the first full year of its promotional program, was $66.4 million with audiences targeted for use of fluid milk, cheese, butter, ice cream and dairy calcium.

Joseph J. Westwater, Chief Executive Officer of the Board, said the research projects also are beginning to produce promising results.

"We have 51 nutrition projects underway studying calcium's role throughout the life cycle," Westwater commented. "The researchers are among the best in the country, and we think they soon will have some positive new results, especially concerning calcium's role in controlling or preventing hypertension, osteoporosis and colon cancer."

The National Dairy Board has committed $1.5 million to help create Dairy Research Centers at major universities and land-grant colleges throughout the United States. Three additional colleges were approved for projects in the coming year at Thursday's session. A total of 43 basic and applied research projects are currently underway.

These projects range from studies of the physio-chemical properties of dairy constituents to biotechnology in dairy science.

Preliminary media advertising plans for 1986-87 were reviewed. The board watched commercials which focused on five subjects: cheese continuity, adult fluid milk, butter, children's fluid milk, and calcium; then passed their recommendations for changes to the advertising firm. Commercials presented yesterday are slated for airing beginning in September, 1986.

In other action, the Board elected its officers and committee chairmen for the 1987 fiscal year. All officers were re-elected to their respective positions: Ivan Strickler, Kan., Chairman; Louis Calcagno, Calif., John Malcheski, Wis., Secretary; and John Widger, N.Y., Treasurer.

Secretary of Agriculture, Richard Lyng, presented awards to the 13 reappointed board members. In his remarks, Lyng congratulated the Board on an excellent job of promotion in the past year. He suggested that they had done such an outstanding job in the promotion field that other commodities were taking their lead and developing similar programs.

Franklin Co. to Host Fruitgrowers' Summer Tour

CHAMBERSBURG — The Franklin County Horticultural Society will be hosting the 1986 Pennsylvania Fruitgrowers' Summer Tour on June 25 and 26. All Pennsylvania growers, as well as growers from other eastern states and related industry representatives are invited. to participate.

The tour will be entirely by bus and will be within Franklin county. Demonstrations of sprayers, orchard tillage equipment, pruning and picking aids, and other equipment will make up the bulk of the second-day's afternoon program. These will take place at Five Forks Fruit Farm near Waynesboro, which is also the location of a large commercial exhibit area. In addition, Five Forks Fruit will serve as the assembly point for the second-day tour.

The first-day tour will start and end at Twin Bridges Campground, located six miles west of Chambersburg and just north of U.S. Rt. 30. Tour participants will have opportunities to see roadside markets; thousands of acres of apple, peach, nectarine, and cherry trees; modern computerized packinghouses; CA storages; modern trickle-irrigation systems; Penn State University demonstration blocs; and many unique systems of orchard management.

Advance registrations are required, and should be made by June 10 by calling: Jack Mickey, 2197 Lincoln Way West, Chambersburg, PA 17201, phone: 717-263-2195.

Farmers Must Report Wheat, Feed Grain Acreage by June 15

LEBANON — The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service recently closed the sign-up period for the 1986 wheat and feed grain programs. "Farmers who enrolled should now prepare to certify or report their program acres to their ASCS office," Edward Krebs, chairperson of the Lebanon County ASCS office, said.

Farmers have until June 15, 1986 to report the acres and intended uses of their wheat, oats, barley, rye and other fall-seeded crops.

Acreage reports are used to determine compliance with farm programs and to document crop acreage bases. Before program participants can receive price support loans, deficiency payments and other program benefits, they must correctly certify their entire farm after planting. "The reports contain crops and acreages planted, the uses to be made of these crops, and cropland acres to be devoted to the acreage conservation reserve," the ASCS official said.

To verify that the acreage reports are accurate, ASCS randomly checks farms and also provides aerial photographs for farmers to identify their fields.

AGRIPRO™ SOYBEANS
NUMBER ONE IN RESEARCH

HP-2530
HP-2530 is an outstanding mid Group II variety with exceptional yield capability. Very good emergence and standability. Good field resistance to Phytophthora. Good narrow row adaptability. Three days earlier than Beeson 80.

HP-3440
HP-3440, a mid Group III maturity variety, offers you very good field resistance to Phytophthora root rot along with good standability, and good narrow row adaptability. Very good potential to deliver top yields.

AP-240
Rapid emergence; outstanding yield potential
- Very good emergence — far superior to Amsoy 71, Century and Beeson 80; better than Wells II.
- Good standability from medium height plants.
- Very good shattering resistance — better than Amsoy 71 and Century; far better than Wells II.
- Good field resistance to Phytophthora root rot.

Tests prove it outyields Williams and Mitchell.
AP-350 is a welcome addition to Group IV maturity. It was selected because it combines overall yield performance superiority with an excellent chlorosis rating plus resistance to Race I Phytophthora root rot and tolerance to other tested races. Plus good emergence, too. For its maturity, it would be difficult to find a better bean.

Hearing Slated on Dairy Products

HARRISBURG – A hearing May 28 on labeling artificial dairy products could have "profound influence" on the future of the dairy industry in Pennsylvania, according to Don Duncan, Chairman of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program Board.

The hearing will be held at 1 p.m., Wednesday, May 28 in Room 202 of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture in Harrisburg.

Other proposed regulations under consideration include tightening milk standards and easing introduction of new dairy products.

According to the Robesonia dairy farmer, deceptive labeling of artificial dairy products confuses consumers and costs state dairymen millions in sales annually. And the problem is growing.

"Shoppers just can't tell the difference between real dairy products and phony look-alikes," Duncan said.

All artificial dairy products sold in Pennsylvania would be labeled "artificial" in the same size, type style and prominence as the product name if the regulation is approved.

When an artificial dairy product is served in a restaurant, it also is proposed, the product would be so identified on the menu.

Wisconsin and Minnesota have passed similar regulations.

"Dairymen don't oppose the sale of dairy fakes," the Dairy Advisory Board chairman insisted. "We just don't want these phonies riding on the good reputation our natural dairy products have earned for high quality and nutrition."

A big switch to fake cheese has been seen in meat pizzas, with an estimated 75 percent of all meat pizzas now using artificial cheese, Duncan reported. "That alone is 50 million pounds of natural cheese we aren't selling," the Berks County farmer said.

Importer casein is substituted for milk in imitation cheeses, Duncan explained. It also competes for the consumer dollar in cottage and cream cheeses, coffee whiteners and bakery goods.

The National Milk Producers Federation estimates that this broad scale substitution of casein costs taxpayers $300 million each year in the purchase of additional surplus dairy products.

Duncan strongly endorsed another proposed Pennsylvania regulation that would cut the maximum somatic cell count allowed in milk by 50 percent.

"It can only improve the quality of our dairy products," the Pennsylvania dairyman said.

He also favored the temporary marketing permits proposed for new dairy products.

"This will encourage the temporary marketing permits proposed for new dairy products.

"This will encourage research and make it easier for the dairy industry to test-market new products," Duncan said. "It is a benefit for consumers and dairymen alike."

The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program is the advertising, promotion and research arm for 4,000 dairymen-contributors.

Little Dutchmen FFA Tops County Land Judging Contest

Little Dutchmen FFA members swept the top 20 places in the county land judging contest held May 6 at the Kenneth Sellers farm, Lebanon.

The top ten places in order are: Lynn Schwenk, Scott Brinser, Daniel Brandt and Allen Heagy, tied for third, Kent Hoffer, Dale Balmer, Sue Elliott, Brian Meyer, John Gilbert, and Eric Harnish.

ASCS Reports 'Near Record' Acreage Reduction Sign-Up

LEBANON — Calling the preliminary figures "a near record signup," Eugene F. Thompson, ASCS State Executive Director, announced that over a quarter of the eligible farms in Pennsylvania have signed up 588,332 acres of feed grain and wheat bases under the 1986 Acreage Reduction Programs.

The total acreage required to be taken out of production and devoted to an acreage conservation reserve cover totals 122,174 acres.

The enrolled acreage represents 46 percent of the 1,289,497 acres of total crop acreage bases established for these commodities. For the 1985 programs, 36.7 percent of the 1,244,822 acre crop acreage base was enrolled.

Base acreage enrolled in the program includes 499,079 acres of corn, 51,423 acres of wheat, 7,496 acres of barley, 28,065 of oats and 2,269 acres of grain sorghum.

Producers who participate in the acreage limitation programs agree to reduce their plantings by at least 20 percent for feed grains of 107,000 acres; 25 percent for wheat, or 12,900 acres. Winter wheat producers also had the options of reducing their wheat acreage by an additional five or ten percent for diversion payments. The special wheat diversion will take an additional 2,274 acres out of wheat production. This acreage must also be devoted to an acreage conservation reserve.

Nationally, producers have signed contracts to place 186.3 million acres of upland cotton, extra long staple cotton, feed grain, rice and wheat crop acreage bases in the 1986 programs.

The total acreage to be taken out of production and devoted to an acreage conservation reserve totals 43.9 million acres. The final acreage conservation reserve may be smaller since total requirements are based on actual plantings.

Participating producers will be eligible for program benefits such as Commodity Credit Corporation loans and purchases, deficiency payments and diversion payments. At the time they enrolled in the programs, feed grain and wheat producers had the option of requesting 40 percent of their projected 1986 deficiency payments. Also, feed grain and wheat producers may obtain 100 percent of their land diversion payment at anytime between April 30, 1986 and September 30, 1986.

Wilkinson Named to Board

HARRISBURG — Leon H. Wilkinson, Landenberg, was approved by the senate this week to fill the vacancy on the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board.

Wilkinson is a lifelong dairy farmer who also serves as president of Broad Run Valley, Inc., a family farm corporation which involves his four sons. They are currently actively farming 5700 acres in southeastern Pennsylvania and Delaware.

He also continues to advise his sons on the operation and management of Wilkinson Farms.

Wilkinson Farms is a commercial dairy farm with about 2,300 head of cattle. Their 500 milk cows pump out seven million pounds of milk each year. Part of their herd inventory consists of approximately 800 head of surrogate heifers to supply the needs of Genetics Unlimited, an embryo transfer service. They also house 200 head of dairy bulls for a New York investor group that raises young sires for A.I.

Wilkinson has always been interested in milk marketing. Several years ago he assisted the state of Delaware in enacting a milk marketing law. "Since we ship much of our milk to Delaware, I could see what having no regulation of milk prices was doing," he said.

"There has never been a time when our milk industry needed a more stabilized market. I believe our Milk Marketing Board can lend that leadership," Wilkinson noted in remarks before the Senate Agricultural Committee.

Included among the duties of the Milk Marketing Board are: providing adequate supplies of milk for the consumer at fair prices; provide orderly functioning of the industry; assure payments for the farmers' milk through bonding of the milk dealers; and encouragement of efficient and dependable milk dealer operations.

Ayrshire Herd Averages $600

BY CRAIG BINGMAN

WINFIELD — When R.W. Campbell, Narvon, bought the top Ayrshire cow at Roy W. Kline's sale here on May 10, he didn't expect to take home an Appaloosa. At the beginning of the sale, auctioneer Bryan Imes announced that Mr. Kline would give a free horse, of which he raises 15 Leopard Appaloosa, to anyone bidding $1,000 or more.

Campbell, representing Campbell and Becker, bought a total of five animals at the sale and including the top cow for $1,000.

The top selling cow was Gallant Star Delish, a 4-year old that freshened in April with a heifer by Gambler. This cow boasted records of over 18,000 pounds of milk with a 4.6 test. She was sired by Reidina Dawner Gallant Man and her dam is Stars Delight. Dave Imes of Port Royal was the contending bidder.

Commander Julie was the second highest selling animal with a price of $825. This 4-year old, an offspring of Oak Ridge Commander's Star and Gallant Man's Judy, was purchased by Glen Sheaffer of Mt. Pleasant Mills.

The Joys Of Being A Farmer Boy

Last week you saw the second in a series of six articles written by Daniel Luke Fisher about the feelings a farm boy has while he grows up on the Franklin County family farm. Daniel is a 13-year-old Amish boy with seven brothers who live on a 160 acre farm along the Blue Mountain.

Here's his third article:

The sound of pets on this farm is a very original thing.

First there are ponies, 2 of them, Poncho and Rex. Poncho is a riding pony and Rex is a riding and driving pony. We drive Rex to school.

Rex is a very relaxed, good natured pony who takes life as it comes.

He would like to take a walk through the woods and look at the birds, I bet.

One time we were coming home from school and Rex heard the creek on the other side of the road so he ambled over and looked to see what the noise was about.

But he sure has his queer moods too. Like sometimes when I put the bridle on him (or try to anyhow). He just clamps his mouth shut, and its pretty hard to open it.

Sometimes when we hitch Rex up to the ponycart, He doesn't want to stand still. So Samuel gets an ear of corn and drops it in front of his nose.

He stands still then!

Next are the Guinea Pigs, 2 of them. They are both bucks.

We have them out in a pen in the yard where they can eat all the grass they want.

Then there are the rabbits, 2 of them.

They're just bunnies yet. We had 9 of them.

We fed them with an eyedropper at first. After a couple of days they started dying and as it ended up, we only have 2 left.

We got another batch of chicks about a week ago, 25 of them, 1 died.

They are so cute. We have them in a pen out in the cowstable. Sometimes the cats come creeping up. Slowly...Slowly...Slowly .., "Pounce, Slam, Crash!" Right up against the wire. That frightens the chicks!

Then there are the calves. We've had lots and lots of them already.

We have 2 of them right now, Billy and Jenny.

When Jenny was a little calf and we still fed her with a bottle, sometimes we left her loose for a spin around the yard.

One time she ran up to the meadow. The Heifers ran right through the fence just to get a good look at her.

Lancaster Conservation District Seeks Bay Program Cooperators

LANCASTER — Landowners in the Conestoga River Watershed who have not already applied for conservation services and or cost-sharing funds through the Chesapeake Bay Improvement Program are asked to contact the Lancaster Conservation District in Room 6 of the Farm and Home Center at 1383 Arcadia Road, Lancaster, or call them for details at 717-299-5361 or 299-1563. Call them no later than June 15.

The total allotment assigned to Lancaster County is slightly over $1 million. To date 70 farmers have applied for conservation services and/or cost-sharing funds that can be used to apply Best Management Practices (BMP's) on their farms.

The BMP's referred to include: no-till planting, strip cropping and contour systems, cropland terraces, diversions, grass waterways, streambank protection, manure storage, and a nutrient management program.

To date 22 farms have contracts and plans underway that toal $411,367. The Soil Conservation Service furnishes all the technical help and design in the program. The design and plans are first approved by the farmer, before a contract is prepared for cost-sharing.

Bob Gregory of the Conservation District also pointed out that landowners in the Conewago Watershed — the small watershed in Northwest Lancaster County — may also participate in the program.

Gregory pointed out that his district plans to complete the final on-farm surveys necessary to make the entire county available for cost sharing through the Chesapeake Bay Program.

Isaac Wenger, a retired dairy farmer, has been hired to call on farmers in the Pequea watershed. With Wenger's help, the Pequea watershed may qualify for cost sharing by mid-summer, said Gregory.

The Octoraro and Conowingo watersheds will be surveyed by early fall, and the Chickies watershed will be ready later in the year, Gregory said.

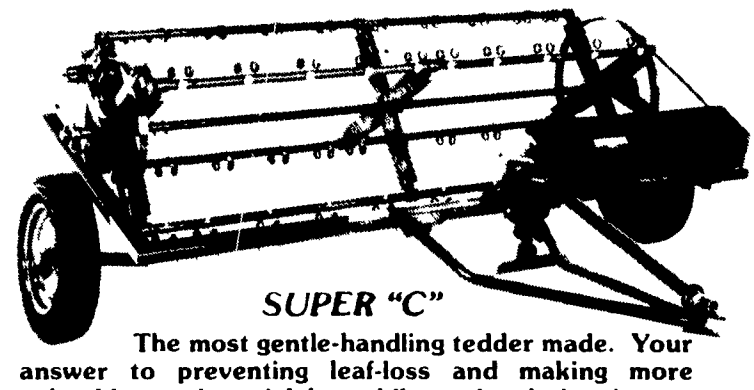
HAY! Where's the leaf?

If your livestock could talk, they might be asking that question. You could be needlessly losing up to half of the ALFALFA and CLOVER leaves because of leaf shatter. Some rotary head tedders can beat much of the protein-rich leaves off the stems - leaving them in the field. (That can cost you money in lost nutritional value because 80% of the protein is in the leaves.)

GRIMM "Leaf-saver" TEDDERS



SUPER "C"

The most gentle-handling tedder made. Your answer to preventing leaf-loss and making more palatable, nutrient-rich hay while cutting drying time up to 50%. 8 ft. wide. Pto-driven thru gear box and V-belt that protects against shock or damage from stones or other obstructions. New simplified design and rugged construction cuts maintenance, lengthens life. "Made in Vermont" assures reliable, fast machine and parts availability. Priced very competitively.

Sodbusting, Swampbusting Prohibited Under Farm Bill

LEBANON – When producers sign up for the 1986 farm programs, Edward Krebs, chairman of the Lebanon County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, tells them that sodbusting and swampbusting will result in the loss of all farm program benefits.

Sodbusting is the production of an agricultural commodity on highly erodible land that is not now in production. Swampbusting is the production of an agricultural commodity on wetlands converted for agricultural production after December 23, 1985.

"Any producer who, after December 23, 1985, brings into production a field which is predominantly highly erodible land, or who converts wetland to production of any agricultural commodity, will be ineligible on his or her entire farm or farms for any farm program benefit or payment," Mr. Krebs said.

Highly erodible land, and hydric soils that contribute to wetland will be identified in the county ASCS office.

Mr. Krebs said highly erodible land is defined as land in capability Classes 4, 6, 7 and 8, or land that if used to produce an agricultural commodity, would have an excessive rate of erosion in relation to the soil loss tolerance level. Wetland is land that generally contains hydric soils and hydrophytic vegetation, and is inundated or saturated by surface or ground water. Converted wetland is wetland that since December 23, 1985, has been drained, dredged, filled, leveled, or otherwise manipulated for the purpose of making the land suitable for producing an agricultural commodity

According to Krebs, there are some exemptions to the sodbuster and swampbuster provisions. Wetlands exempted from the regulations are those used for the production of a crop on (1) wetlands converted or under conversion before December 23, 1985; (2) wetlands artificially created to provide water for livestock, fish production, rice production, irrigation, or flood control; (3) a wet area created by a water delivery or irrigation system; and (4) wetland on which production of an agricultural commodity is possible because of a natural condition such as drought.

The ASCS official said until January 1, 1990, no producer shall become ineligible for program benefits for producing a crop on highly erodible land that was cultivated to produce any of the 1981-1985 crops; set-aside, diverted or not cultivated under a farm program for production adjustment "The producer may be exempt if he or she requests and obtains an approved conservation plan, and the land is farmed according to the approved plan"

Other exemptions include highly erodible land planted in a crop (1) before December 23, 1985; (2) during any crop year beginning before this date, or, (3) in reliance on a determination by the Soil Conservation Service that such land was not highly erodible

Further explanation of the sodbuster, swampbuster provisions or the Farm Act may be obtained from the local ASCS office

New Wrinkle

A new wrinkle has been added to the Dairy Termination Program by USDA to satisfy cattlemen concerned about the effect on beef prices caused by 66 percent of the dairy cattle in the DTP coming to market in the first disposal period that ends August 31. Those producers with approved contracts assigned to the first disposal period can now move the sale of their cattle for slaughter or export to the second or third disposal period at the same bid price they accepted for the first period.

The second disposal period is from September 1, 1986 to February 28, 1987 and the third period is from March 1 to August 31, 1987. The only restrictions are that the number of cattle slaughtered or exported in the first period cannot drop below 50 percent of the total in the program and the producer must notify his local ASCS office and get permission before making the change.

You'll also have to accept a later payment period. This new option will provide an opportunity for producers to ship milk longer for the added income or pick another disposal period that may provide an opportunity for lowering income tax liabilities.

The second disposal period includes two tax years that may provide such an opportunity. It's not expected that many farmers will make any changes now that they've come this far but it does satisfy the complaint of the cattlemen and puts an end to their law suit. It's not much different than the controversy over branding–just an effort to keep everybody happy, if that's possible.

Beef Prices Rebound

Looking at beef prices, that were also a concern to dairymen as well as cattlemen, the wholesale price for cull dairy cows has already recovered to the level before the Dairy Termination Program cattle started coming to market. Back on March 31 the wholesale price of boning or breaking utility cow carcasses was 72 cents a pound according to the "yellow sheet" which is what most wholesale butchers use for market prices. By the first week of May it was back up to 70 cents after dropping as low as 54 cents around the middle of April.

Now it's back up to 72 cents and will probably continue to provide the seasonal increases we expect in beef prices in May and June. These may be the best prices for the year and may not return until the early summer of 1987. This may be a reason for changing, or not changing, your disposal period.

At least the increase in beef prices in May must have been helpful in calming the fears of cattlemen that the DTP would depress prices over a long time. It didn't happen and maybe that's why they settled for a voluntary adjustment in the disposal periods.

The Russians Are Coming

It was back in the 1970's that they helped us get rid of our surplus grain because of crop failures and increasing livestock production in their country and now the Russians are coming again. No one knows for sure at this writing what the effect will be on Russian grain crops as a result of the nuclear accident at their Chernobyl power plant on April 26 but reports indicate that they will be buying large amounts of corn and wheats in world markets and hopefully some of the business will come to U.S.

This is fine for grain farmers who certainly deserve a break but it may also be reflected in higher feed prices for dairymen in the future.

On the other hand, reports of good planting weather in the corn belt indicate a good start for 1986 production that may offset any strengthening in prices because of Russian purchases. Everyone sympathizes with the Russians and their suffering from the world's worst nuclear accident and it will be a long time before all the costs can be added up.

Even now trace amounts of fallout have been detected in air samples all the way to the east coast in the Carolinas and Connecticut. Milk supplies are usually monitored for fallout because it is produced over a wide area; goes to market every other day and can be sampled easily at central processing plants. Remembering the effect on milk consumption in Pennsylvania after Three Mile Island let's pray that doesn't happen again.

And while the weather in the corn belt has been good a severe drought has developed to the south of us all the way to the Carolinas. Reports of it reaching to south central Pennsylvania have already been heard but hopefully there will be relief soon. While we worry about milk prices and the effect of the DTP we may get more of an adjustment in our supply-demand problems from the weatherman and the Russians than we get from the Farm Security Act.

Assessments Begin

The 40 cent assessment for the Dairy Termination Program and the 12 cent assessment under Gramm-Rudman will combine with a 19 cent drop in the farm price in Order 2 to cut your April milk check by 71 cents or six percent below March. Compared to a year ago the blend price at the farm is down 88 cents but adding the 52 cent assessment makes it $1.40 or over 11 percent below April of last year.

The 50 cent assessment for the old Milk Diversion Program ended in March 1985 so you had no assessment in April of last year. It seems like everything that can lower the farm price is happening all at once in April. Even the expected increase in your blend price from a 30 cent increase in the Class I differential only begins with May milk deliveries.

However, looking at the blend price alone without the assessments it will be $11.31 for April deliveries to Order 2 handlers. That's 88 cents below last April and 19 cents below March of this year. Half of the 19 cent difference is in a 10 cent increase in your Louisville Plan payment from 20 cents in March to 30 cents in April. It will go up another 10 cents in May making it 40 cents for May and June.

The remaining nine cent difference comes from another four cent drop in the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series to $10.98 for April that reflects in lower Class prices in Federal Orders.

Total production for April in Order 2 was 1.053 billion pounds, the same as in March, but with one day less in the month to sell it. As a result the Class I utilization dropped from 37.7 to 36.9 percent. This was the highest production for April in Order 2 in 20 years.

With the spring flush of milk coming to market in May and June it is always difficult to get any price improvement but hopefully the sale of cattle from herds in the Dairy Termination Program will begin to make some impact in the next few months to help producers recapture some of the 50 cent assessment they are paying for the program.

Manor FFA

MILLERSVILLE - Eight members of the Manor FFA Chapter traveled to Oklahoma City, Okla. recently to compete in the National Land, Pasture and Range Contests.

Jere Hoover, past president of the chapter, placed 39th in a field of over 1,000 contestants. Other members placed as follows: Troy Musser, 89th; Steve Main, 78th; John Burkholder, 133rd; Gary Broderick, 178th; Dave Breneman, 262nd; John Ressler, 268th; and Rodney Nissley, 271st.

The chapter's two teams placed 23rd and 60th out of 103 teams.

This was the third time in five years the Manor Chapter attended the National Contest.

Experts Wrestle with Supply-Demand at Dairy Forum

Milk: More Than a Four-Letter Word

BY KATHY E. GILL
Special to Lancaster Farming

FT. LAUERDALE, Fla. – Woven like a thread through a tapestry, discussion of supply management as a viable solution to today's dairy supply-demand imbalance surfaced throughout all economic sessions at the second annual U.S. Dairy Forum here earlier this month.

Although proponents were loath to call their concepts "quotas," and quickly defended against any such suggestions, in fact they were proposing some sort of national management plan to bring domestic supply in line with domestic demand.

Interwoven in these discussions was widespread criticism of market service payments and arbitrary increases in Class I differentials, both part of the 1985 Food Security Act.

Want less government intervention? Someone at the Forum felt as you do. Want more government? That side had its cheerleaders too.

However, this second annual gathering of producers, processors and regulators did provide a forum for discussing divergent points of view and for starting to build consensus.

Steve Conerly of Pet Dairy in Tennessee said, "a change in attitude is most important. We can no longer blame someone else for what is wrong, and government programs are not the sole solution. We need a larger pie for all of us."

He was not alone in his assessment. Jim McDowell of Dairymen, Inc. in Kentucky pointed out that as an industry, "we have to stop trying to make all the money on the buying (producer) end of the business." It's time to build margins with value-added products that consumers are willing to pay for.

Regarding advertising and promotion, one way to reach McDowell's goal, Gary Hannman of Mid-American Dairymen in Missouri told the audience of 300 that more brand advertising is needed. "We only have two national dairy brands, Kraft in cheese and Land O' Lakes in butter," he said.

Moreover, he said the time has come to re-think milk and its components. "Milk is not just milk. We have to take it apart and use its ingredients."

Which brings us to component pricing. Hannman noted that milk off the farm averages 8.6 percent solids not fat, whereas the industry standard is 8.2 percent.

However, Dr. David Barbano of Cornell explained that in a study of 50 manufacturing plants in 19 states, the overall national average for raw milk was 8.7 percent. The high in the west was at 8.8 percent; the Mid-Atlantic came in at 8.65 percent.

He demonstrated the varying solids not fat levels, along with two of its components–casein and lactose. His remarks served as a springboard for discussion of national standards and the difficulty of pricing on components because there are no uniform testing procedures.

"Moreover, there are no uniform laboratory certification requirements for end product testing of fat and solids," commented John Adams of the National Milk Producers Federation. He cited a study led by Al Zimmerman of QC Inc. in Southampton, Pa. which clearly demonstrated that there is a complete lack of uniformity in testing end products.

Discussion continued around the age-old problem of which components to use and should there by different componenets for different finished products.

No matter how you price the milk, the panelists agreed that local fluid needs can most efficiently be met with local supplies.

Herd Buy-Out Viewed As Temporary Fix

FT. LAUDERDALE, Fla. – The expert consensus at the second annual U.S. Dairy Forum is that the whole-herd buy-out can only temporarily stem national milk production and over-supply.

However, on a region-by-region basis, the picture changes dramatically.

Speakers pointed to relatively low producer participation in the Northeast and Midwest as signs of plentiful supplies in those regions.

But in California and the Southeast, producers responded in droves to the prospect of getting out of the milk business. Consequently, Jasper Estes of Beatrice's milk procurement division in Alabama said that this fall the region "will be seven percent worse off than in the fall of 1985."

Southern representatives also criticized USDA's decision to accept bids based primarily on dollars rather than taking milk out of regions on equivalent percentages.

USDA's Charles Shaw, of ASCS, indicated tha analysts had examined the 105,000 bids in a variety of ways. He said it was quickly apparent that trying to reduce an equal percentage in each state would have been exorbitantly expensive and unfair.

"We would have had to accept bids of $50 in Pennsylvania, New York and Wisconsin but cut off bids at $11 in Alabama," he said.

Despite predictions of regionally short supplies this fall, southern spokesmen agreed with others in the assessment that increased production per cow and increased herd sizes among remaining dairy farmers will serve to bring production levels back by spring, 1987.

California Milk Producers Council spokesman Fred Douma tried to put the California situation into a picture that East Coast people could understand. Annual production in California is equivalent to total production in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia. This area reflects the geographic size of California as well.

The volume of milk in California slated for the buy-out is 10.67 percent, an amount equal to the total production in Georgia and South Carolina.

A minority viewpoint was presented by Rich Stammer of Agri-Mark. Stammer was optimistic about the long-term effects of the buy-out, but conceded that his optimism rested in part on continuing the current commercial sales trend and a delay in the introduction of bovine growth hormone.

"Economics does eventually work," he said. "It is just a long, slow process as farmers are forced out," Stammer said.

He predicted that economic pressures on the remaining producers will lead to an additionaly 100,000 cows per year being sold over the next four years.

Some Midwestern analysts are concerned that the ever-increasing discussion of supply management programs is stimulating producers to add cows. Donald Kullmann of Prairie Farms indicated that 50 percent of those producers plan to increase production from five to 100 percent. "They are planning for a quota or base," he said.

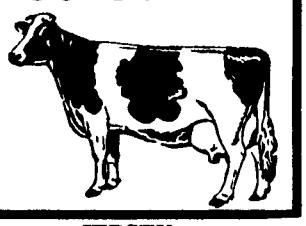
Major Dairy Sales And Dispersals Nationwide



Reports from seven sales for the week of May 15 to 22 showed 291 head averaging $988.65. These sales were held in Vermont, Kentucky, and as far west as Oregon. The top prices at the sales ranged from $19,000 to $415. Here is a brief look at the results of these sales.

AYRSHIRES

The WESTERN NEW YORK CLUB SALE averaged $705.88 on 57 head. The top price of $1,625 was garnered by a bred heifer from Otter Creek Count Lancer. She is bred to Des Peupliers Rebel and her dam had a high record of 19,000 pounds of milk.

Second high in the bidding was bred heifer sired by Lincolnshire Red Baron. Her dam was classified EX-95.

The high selling calf was sired by Bur Aire Farms Buster. This calf selling for $550 was junior sweepstakes calf, part of a program designed to help the junior members of the club.

Nine cows in the sale averaged $1,033.33 and the 26 bred heifers averaged $887.50. Auctioneer for the day was Victor Kent.

BROWN SWISS

The KENTUCKY NATIONAL SALE averaged $966 on 40 head. Topping the sale was a male embryo sired by Bridgeview Combination with a price of $4,000. The dam of this embryo was sired by Norvic Telestar and has records up to 20,360 pounds of milk with a 3.9 test. This entry's granddam is classified 3E and is an elite cow. She has a record of 32,160 pounds of milk with 1,251 pounds of fat.

A 4-year old sired by White Cloud Jason Elegant was next in the bidding with a price of $3,100. She produced a 212-day record of 20,390 pounds of milk, 659 fat and 657 protein. Her dam classified excellent and has a record of 21,400 pounds of milk and 708 pounds of fat.

This sale was managed by Brown Swiss Enterprises and auctioneered by Garland Bastin of Kentucky.

JERSEY

The TOP OF VERMONT SALE averaged $700 on 29 bred heifers, $453 on four open heifers, and $415 on seven calves. A bred heifer topped this sale, selling for $1,150. She is bred to Schultz Performing Legend and her dam has a 4-year-old record of 12,351 M with a 6.7 percent test.

Second in the bidding was a July 1985 calf with a price of $850. Her dam has seven records over 500 pounds of fat. Auctioneer for this sale was Tom Whitaker.

The OREGON STATE SALE averaged $1,308 on 21 head. Topping this sale was a 3-year-old daughter by Favorite Saint.

Held in connection with this sale was the TILLAMOOK PROTEIN SALE. This sale averaged $1,200 on 18 head. A springing heifer by Top Brass out of Mercury topped this sale with a price of $3,000. Next in the bidding was a Shadewell Fascinator daughter out of a Favorite Juan daughter. She sold for $1,650.

Both sales were auctioneered by Roy Benson and managed by the Oregon Cattle Club.

HOLSTEIN

The RICHMOND HERITAGE SALE held in Utah averaged $2,100 on 44 head. A VG-85 daughter of Bell sold for $19,000 for the high bid of the day. This 3-year old has a record of 23,660 pounds of milk and 885 pounds of fat.

Coming in with the second high bid was a yearling sired by Valiant, selling for $10,000.

This sale was sponsored by the Utah Holstein Association and the auctioneer was Jim Ellis.

The LUCKY HILL DISPERSAL held in Wisconsin averaged $1,050 on 71 head. An Elevation Pabst daughter topped the sale with a price of $2,000. This 3-year old produced a record of 20,116 pounds of milk. Next in the bidding was a 5-year old sired by Straight Pine Elevation Pete with a price of $1,700. This cow has a high record of 20,856 pounds of milk.

The auctioneer was Henry Bartel.

Test Tube Corn Research Offers Promise for Plant Breeders

ITHACA, NY – Corn and other crops that someday will grow on America's farms could be bred from plants that first took root in laboratory test tubes.

The groundwork for such an advance in plant breeding is taking place at Cornell University, where researchers are growing this "test-tube corn" as the result of a research breakthrough in the application of tissue culture techniques.

Vernon Gracen, a plant breeder, and Elizabeth Earle, a tissue culture specialist, both in the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell, have successfully created new corn breeding lines by using culture techniques. Tissue culture is a laboratory used to coax plant cells to grow into whole plants. Tissue culture research is not new. The work at Cornell, however, is notable because it brought the research out of the laboratory and proved it in test fields.

techniques. Tissue culture is a laboratory procedure used to coax plant cells to grow into whole plants. Tissue culture research is not new. The work at Cornell, however, is notable because it brought the research out of the laboratory and proved it in test fields.

The development of Cornell test-tube corn begins in Earle's laboratory. Using a special blend of growth hormones and nutrients, Earle nurtures tiny pieces of corn embryo tissue into whole corn plants. These test-tube plants are transferred to a greenhouse, where they grow to maturity. After the plants mature in the greenhouse, Earle harvests the seeds and hands them over to Gracen.

Gracen then plants those seeds in Cornell's research fields located in Aurora, NY, and Homestead, FL. Once those field plants mature, Gracen selects those with favorable characteristics and develops them into new breeding lines. Some of the traits developed in such test-tube corn plants include enhanced resistance to diseases, faster growth and maturity rates, and alterations of cytoplasmic male sterility, to name a few.

Gracen has tested these test-tube lines of corn for as many as six generations. His conclusion: "Tissue culture is a viable method of producing new or modifying existing corn varieties, and it has several advantages over traditional plant breeding methods."

A major advantage to test-tube corn breeding is speed. Gracen says he is able to produce new lines of corn in 18 months by selecting for variations that arise during culturing. When conventional techniques are used, it takes two or more years to accomplish the same task.

Another benefit of test-tube corn breeding is that it enables a breeder to engineer genetic changes into a plant without having to deal with the "dilution" of certain traits that occurs when plants are cross-bred.

"In layman's terms, it enables us to fine-tune a corn variety without the danger of disrupting favorable genetic characteristics," Gracen says.

Gracen and Earle have been studying corn tissue since 1980. They became interested in using the technique for plant breeding because of a phenomenon that sometimes occurs when plants are grown in tissue culture – some offspring of the plants recovered from culture are genetically different from the original "parent" plant.

"Theoretically, if you take cells from one plant and grow them into whole plants in tissue culture, the new plants should be identical to the original," Earle explains. "In practice, that is not the case. Certain genetic changes occur when these corn plants are produced via tissue culture."

How and why such changes take place in tissue culture plants is not well understood, but the Cornell researchers are taking advantage of those changes, or "spontaneous variations," to improve corn crops.

"If this technique proves to have widespread applicability to other popular lines of corn, it could become a standard procedure for making genetic improvement to corn plants and, possibly, other agricultural crops," Earle says.

Field testing work by Gracen and Earle is attracting considerable attention from the American seed industry. The two scientists are currently testing 31 popular corn lines through a project funded by six commercial corn companies. The object of these tests is to determine whether the Cornell tissue culture technique will work on these corn lines. If it does work, seed companies may soon adopt the Cornell tissue culture approach into their own seed development programs.

The Dairy Business

By Newton Bair

Spring Cleaning Is Treasure Hunting

Spring housecleaning is a ritual usually performed in April and May by the head of the house. It is strictly a female chore, except for a few odd jobs that require more muscle, or some extra hand or leg power. It serves several purposes in our society, so I'll explore only one or two.

Why housecleaning got started in the first place, we can only conjecture. In the dim and distant past, the cave just got too clogged up with bones, trash, dead dogs, or last years mammoth hides. It was either dig it out or find a new cave. With inflation and population growth, caves weren't that easy to find, so spring cleaning became a necessity for survival.

But most housekeepers do it weekly now, so the annual spring cleaning has become more of an instict than a tradition, especially in the female of the species.

Now I'm sure that our modern houses can't be compared with a cave, and we might be able to live in the same house for several years without the kind of cleaning that Mama does every spring. But how would we find the little goodies that got lost during the past year, if the house didn't get torn around, everything that is downstairs moved up, and all things painted, scraped and dusted?

Nothing gets thrown out, but everything is moved somewhere else. Nothing is permanently lost, just shuffeled and repacked. It'll turn up next spring if we forget where we put it.

Housecleaning turns up some long forgotten treasures that were carefully stuck away in the attic thirty odd years ago. Like the old DHIA books, and milk check statements that had to be saved.

In my case, they have been carried along on several moves since we quit the farm. With every flitting, they were carefully dusted off, packed in a fresh carton, and pushed way back under the eaves behind more substantial stuff in the ledges of the new cave, -uh, house. They turn up every spring, prompting the perennial question of why do we save this, and should it be pitched out with the bones and hides?

Well, the inevitable has happened. The check stubs and milk statements from 1953 have finally hit the garbage can. But not before I carefully sifted them for a few choice bits of nostalgia that survived thirty three years of housecleaning. Interesting stuff, but not World shaking.

For example, Ryders Dairy in Lemoyne Pa. paid $4.73 for 3.6% milk in August, 1953. That was the blend price for milk that was 57% class One, and 43% class Two. Hauling charges came to $0.39, leaving a net price of $4.34 a hundred pounds for 3.6% milk.

That looked pretty good then, considering that prices were climbing slowly but steadily. Farming was a tough job, but optimism was high and we took chances, knowing that things would get better.

That was the year that we put up a new Unadilla silo. It cost $710.00 without the hoops. We salvaged the hoops from the old one which it replaced. The charge for erecting the structure came to $105.00, making the total cost of the new silo $815.00, which was paid for out of the next milk check.

So much for the trash and garbage from my attic. If it has any relevance to the present, it must be that, when we root among the artifacts and junk from the past we usually find that things are somewhat better now than they had been in the good old days.

The cost of the essentials we buy are still proportional to the prices we get for our products. Notice that I specify the essentials, not the luxuries. If we include the many things that once were luxuries but are now considered essentials, the income-outgo difference is somewhat tighter than it was. So maybe it is a matter of sorting the needs from the wants.

Maybe a little spring cleaning in the Barn or shop might turn up a few lost items. Or better yet, unclutter the work spaces and brighten the passageways that we walk and work in every day. Or sort the needs from the wants. Even our mind and spirit will benefit from a good dusting and cleaning occassionally.

Sports Stars to Promote Milk

Dairy Marketing

Golf Promotion

TOWSON, Md. – It's called Central Pennsylvania's most spectacular sporting event, the $250,000 Lady Keystone Open (LKO). As part of the Ladies Professional Golfing Association's (LPGA) tour, it will draw the top women golfers and an estimated 75,000 spectators. This year's LKO is scheduled from June 10-15 at the Hershey Country Club.

Proceeds from corporate sponsors support Central Pennsylvania's Health Care Organizations. Since it's inception the LKO has raised more than $1 million for this worthy cause. MAMMA, the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Area, will join Hershey Foods and other area businesses as a corporate sponsor for this prestigious women's sporting event.

As a corporate sponsor MAMMA will have a full-page ad for milk in the LKO program. Signs advertising milk and ice cream will be up in all the concession stands on the golf course, where milk and ice will be available for sale during the three-day tournament. On-course signs will also mention milk.

By advertising directly to the spectators of this prestigious women's sporting event, MAMMA hopes to make stronger, in the mind's of women, the association between dairy foods and fitness.

"Women are becoming more physically active and much more fitness conscious," reports MAMMA Communications Director, Trish Williams. "As they do, we have to sell them on the idea that dairy foods are part of a balanced diet necessary for total health and fitness."

Most of the top LPGA players will be in the tournament, including, Jan Stephenson, Pat Bradley this year's top money winner, Val Skinner who is ranked number three, Juli Inkster the LKO defending champion, and Amy Alcott.

Tuesday, June 10 is Youth Day. A Pro-Am Tournament is scheduled for Wednesday, June 11. A practice round will be held on Thursday. The LKO Tournament will start on Friday, June 13 with the first round, the second round will be on Saturday, the final round of the tournament and presentation to winners will be on Sunday, June 15.

Tickets for the event can be purchased at the gate the day of the tournament or by contacting the Lady Keystone Open, 2101 North Front St. Harrisburg, PA 17110; (717) 238-9344.

Baseball Promotions

TOWSON, Md. – Two baseball stadium milk promotions have been scheduled with the Philadelphia Phillies and the Baltimore Orioles during June Dairy Month.

The promotions are being sponsored by MAMMA, the Advertising and Promotion Agency of the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Area. Each promotion will feature a giveaway item for fans attending the game.

On Fathers' Day, Sunday June 15 all men 15-years-old and over will receive an AM transistor radio as they enter Veterans Stadium, home of the Philadelphia Phillies. The radio giveaway is jointly sponsored by the Phillies and MAMMA.

Embossed on the radio is the Phillies logo and a picture of a carton of milk with the words, "50th Anniversary of June Dairy Month." The transistor can receive the radio broadcast of all Phillies games on WCAU-Radio 1210AM. As an advertising sponsor of the Phillies, MAMMA has commercial advertising for milk on each Phillies broadcast.

The Phillies will be playing the Montreal Expos that day. Game time is 1:35 p.m., but you will want to get to the stadium a little early to see a cow milking contest on centerfield. Two media teams will compete.

Mike Schmidt, MAMMA's milk spokesman in Philadelphia will award the prize to the winning team. A representative for MAMMA will throw out the first ball to start the game. In-stadium advertising will tout "Milk Has Less Than 4% Fat."

The following Thursday, June 19th MAMMA is sponsoring a milk promotion with the Baltimore Orioles at Memorial Stadium. That evening the O's will be playing the Detroit Tigers in a game scheduled to start at 7:35 p.m.

All fans 14 and under that come to the game will receive an Orioles rain jacket embossed with "Milk. It's Fitness You Can Drink." On the front of the poncho is the number 8, the number worn by shortstop Cal Ripken, Jr., MAMMA's milk spokesman. In-stadium advertising and a pre-game salute to Ripken will also take place.

Tickets for the Phillies game can be purchased at Philadelphia area Ticketron locations or by contacting the Phillies ticket office (215) 463-1000. The Orioles ticket information office number for the Baltimore Metro Area is 792-4001, outside the Metro Area call toll free 1-800-448-9009.

Dairy Sales Continue Gains

Dairy Marketing

SYRACUSE, N.Y. – Dairy sales showed a strong increase in 1985, marking the second year of growth for the dairy industry. Total sales of dairy products in 1985 were up 3.7 percent over 1984 figures. This comes on top of a 3.5 percent increase in 1984.

The most positive area of growth has been the increase in fluid milk sales. Consumption of milk, which for years has been on the decline, has risen almost 3 percent since 1983. Low fat milk sales have been the leading factor in this trend.

Butter sales were up about 3 percent in 1985 to 932 million pounds, the second highest total in 17 years. Commercial disappearance of American cheese rose about one percent, while other varieties of cheese increased six percent. These sales increases are expected to continue throughout this year, with sales remaining strong during the early months of 1986.

Economists have cited three major factors for the recent growth in dairy consumption; promotion, price and the economy. The generic advertising program funded by dairy farmers has generated an annual national budget of $200 million. $11.6 million of this budget is used locally by the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council to promote dairy products in the New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania area.

In addition to promotion, dairy sales have been boosted by low retail prices and the strong economy. Retail dairy prices were down one percent in 1985, compared to an increase of 2.5 percent for all foods. This made dairy products an attractive food item for consumer purchases.

The strong increase in commercial sales is one of the bright spots on the horizon for dairy products. These sales increases combined with lower production due to the herd buyout program could bring about the long awaited balance in the supply and demand for dairy products.

MAMMA Balloon Finishes Fourth

Centre County 4-H Sheep Club

The Centre County 4-H Sheep Club met May 7 at the Center County Extension office. Dirk Wise, assistant shepherd at Penn State University, spoke to the club on feeding and caring for market lambs.

Martha Hartle, cookie sale chairman, reported that the club sold 58 cases of cookies. She also gave the following report on the officer meeting: June 4, identification and marketing of wool; July 2, fitting at the grange fairgrounds with members actually fitting a sheep; August 6, showmanship. The officers also discussed a July tour to Rock O slaughter house in Virginia.

The club will serve food at the Keystone Sheep show and sale in July.

The next meeting will be held June 4 at 8 p.m. at the Rider Farm.

Large Production Increases Possible With Somatotropin

Short term studies have shown "responses at all stages of the lactation cycle and actually responses that were fairly consistent on a quantity basis," Chalupa reported. And although the studies have shown an increase in fat and protein yield, milk composition was not affected. Any increase in milk and fat, Chalupa explained, is largely the result of the increase in milk volume.

The extra energy needed to produce this milk comes from calories in additional food consumed and from calories that normally would have gone to adipose body tissues, Chalupa said.

Long term studies have shown that feed intake in cows injected with somatotropin increases within one to three weeks. And, he continued, cows treated with product "have a higher peak of production and stay at that level of production for a longer period."

In addition to eating more feed, treated cows will use feed more efficiently. "Even though the animals are eating more, the transfer of dietary nutrients to milk is greater," he said.

Two reasons for the increased efficiency are that the animals are producing more milk more; therefore, maintenance requirements are diluted. Secondly, some nutrients that normally go to body tissues, are transferred to milk production.

The percentages of fat and protein in milk do not appear to be affected when energy and protein balances are positive; however, when energy balances are negative, the studies usually showed an increase in milk fat. Chalupa said the fat increase is the result of long chain fatty acids being mobilized from body tissue and extracted to synthesize milk fat.

And, if the protein is in negative balance, Chalupa said, the protein percentage in the milk usually drops. The lactose content remains constant.

With the increase in production, making sure the cows are getting the proper nutrients becomes a challenge, Chalupa said. In general, cows in the studies were close to being in a positve protein balance. By increasing feed intake, cows have the extra nutrients, including protein, they need for production.

In the University of Pennsylvania study, cows were fed a good, but not exceptional diet, Chalupa reported. The feed had 1.72 megacalories per kilo, with 16.4 percent protein. Of the total protein, 61 percent was rumen bypass protein.

A diet for cows on somatotropin will need to contain higher levels of protein just like a diet for a high producing cow. However, it will be important to pay close attention to the ratio between rumen degradable and nondegradable protein.

Chalupa suggested two methods of achieving the high energy diet a cow treated with somatotropin will need. One way, he said, is to increase grain at the expense of forage. But, he said, buffers, such as bicarbonate, should be added to counteract the undesirable effects of an altered acid-base balance in the animal

Another option is to supplement the rumen with a type of by-pass fat to increase the caloric density of the diet withoug having to compromise fiber.

But, Chalupa cautioned, "In order to realize a 20 to 25 percent improvement in feed efficiency and milk production with bovine somatotropin, there are going to also have to be advances in disease control, pest control, animal nutrition, the environment that the animal is in, management, communication and information. We're gong to have to have all of these advances to realize the advantages that are potentially possible with somatotropin," he concluded.

Kuhn has engineered Mower Conditioners that cut hay up or down, wet or dry, even in toughest conditions. They operate fast, resist clogging, and condition hay thoroughly to speed drying time up to 50% There's less chance of "rained-on hay," and the palatability is improved with a Kuhn Mower Conditioner.

Highly efficient oval disc cutting system severs crop at base and feeds it through free swinging fingers and reversible conditioning comb. As grass goes through conditioning comb, natural wax is stripped. Conditioner is adjustable to 20 positions to suit crop and weather. Adjustable swathboards provide light fluffy swaths to ensure fast drying times. Cutterbar is height-adjustable to suit terrain and incorporates blade protection features. Built tough to last!

Partime Farmers Socially Acceptable

gricultural products are influenced strongly by government rograms. However, sometimes e forget that the other half of the income comes from products that are not supported."

"We do have a major surplus problem in agriculture. Not so much because of changes in export demand, but simply because productivity has increased much more rapidly than I think most people would have projected 10 years ago. In the mid 1970s people were concerned about the world not having enough food. They were worried about us running out of technology and ruining our soils and depleting our underground water supplies. This has happened to some extent. But it's just remarkable what happened to world ag production."

"Africa has stayed behind to some extent and the problems there are extremely serious. But in western Europe and in Asia as well as in the U.S. production has increased dramatically. Ten years ago India was a deficit country but now while there are hungry people in India you can see that their food supply relative to the ability to purchase has put them in much better shape than they were 10 years ago. The so-called green revolution has increased wheat and rice supplies so they have actually exported grain."

"China, which five years ago imported 15 million tons of grain, has exported grain in the last year. In the U.S. change in the productivity of dairy cows has gone up much faster than the rate of the population. Wheat production has gone up 25 percent in less than 10 years. And the optimism about increases of productivity continues. The bovine growth hormone and additives to make feed convertion more efficient add to this optimism. Many people now think we have not nearly reached our potential in crop yields. Even in our water supplies we are pumping water from lower resources but we are also making more efficient use of our water."

"So the results have been an increase in production that has surpassed our ability to find markets. We will likely put into storage about 70 million tons of grain this year. We started the year with 90 million tons so we'll be up to 160 million tons. That is equivalent to about 20 percent of our grain production being registered as surplus. Dairy products are about nine to 10 percent surplus. And even soybeans has an eight to 10 percent surplus over needs."

"Since the population is growing at only about one percent per year, the prospects of doing away with surplus by increasing demand is not likely to be encouraging. Effects of income on food consumption are not nearly as great as they were 10 years ago. Even when people get a wage increase they do not buy very much more food. At the rate we are going for grain supplies, it would be at least 10 years before we could use up the kinds of excess production we have seen. In dairy products we are about five years ahead of our population needs."

"Even if Chernobyl did affect Russia's grain fields, we still have enough surplus grains to fill the gap. Prices jumped from a psycological effect. But in fact, we have enough grains to accommodate any increase in the demands the Soviets are likely to make."

In a question and answer period following Dr. Robinson's discussion, he said it will take longer to incorporate some of the new technological advances than was expected concerning the bovine growth hormone. He said farmers still need to innoculate the cows daily, and goverment approval for the product is still necessary. On a question regarding marketing, he said we should develop products for the market, rather than markets for the products.

Vernon Ross Promotes Incredible, Edible Eggs All Year Long

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

HARRISBURG — May is Egg Month, and for Vernon Ross that means a concentrated effort to do what he does all year long — promote the incredible, edible egg.

Ross, a marketing specialist with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, says that eggs are one of the most perfect, natural foods we have. He points out, "Eggs have no preservatives and have all the nutrients except Vitamin C. It is one of the best foods for protein and the cost per pound hasn't changed for years."

Ross promotes eggs three ways -- as an Agriculture Department employee, as the "Omelet King," and as "The Bird," a huge feathered mascot for the egg industry. He performs each role with the enthusiasm of a man who loves his work, and says frankly, "It's the most gratifying job I've ever had."

Eggs have suffered their share of bad press, but Ross believes the single most influential factor in the declining consumption of eggs is the fact that so many women are working outside the home. "We have lost the art of eating a good breakfast. We live in a different age. My mother never worked and we always had a super breakfast in the morning."

Noting how important breakfast is, Ross says, "Breakfast is brain food. Teachers have told me that they can't teach children who haven't eaten breakfast because they are out of energy by 9 or 10:00 a.m."

Ross, speaking as the Omelet King, decries the excuse of lack of time in the morning, pointing out that it takes just 40 seconds to make his famous omelet, using 2 eggs and 2 tablespoons of water. Furthermore, with the proliferation of microwave ovens, the ease of preparing eggs for breakfast has been cut to 20 seconds.

To change breakfast habits, Ross, working closely with the Pennsylvania Egg Marketing Board, has developed a pilot project for schools, which will be fully underway in September.

Focal point for the breakfast and school program is "The Bird," a bright, fun, eye-catching mascot. The Bird will visit schools and will provide nutritional information along with an "Egg Eater Club" membership card, a book marker and a pin which reads "I love eggs." Coloring contests will be part of The Bird's visits, and winners will get a T-shirt.

The Bird will distribute breakfast charts, on which children can place a red star if they eat eggs, a blue for any other prepared breakfast, and a green for cold cereal. Ross thinks this will help get children on the right track for breakfast. The Bird will also have information for mothers.

Ross says, "Teachers love the idea. It will be very entertaining and it doesn't cost school districts a penny." Word of mouth will spread the program, and the goal is to reach two schools a week.

The next year there will be a follow up with book covers, which say, "I still love eggs."

The Bird, formerly known as V.I.Peep, has been making appearances for about two years. As the man behind the bird, Ross loves people's reaction to the costumed bird. The Bird never speaks and was trained by the Pittsburgh Pirates' mascot.

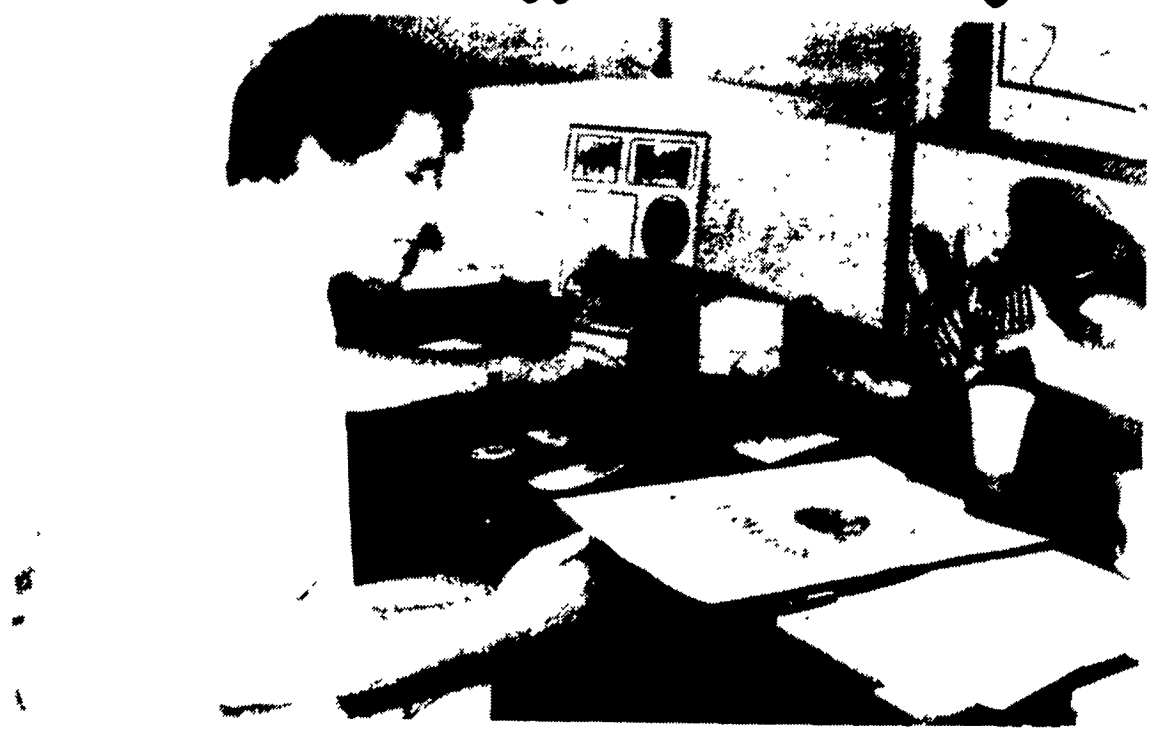
Ross has appeared throughout the state as The Bird, and even attended the Easter Egg Hunt at the White House. There he was enthusiastically received by the terminally ill children. One child gave Ross his egg, autographed by the president, and said, "Thanks for making the kids happy." It is comments like these that keep Ross going strong.

The Bird likes to go to parades, agricultural events and other activities, but Ross admits that he can make only about half the appearances he has requests for.

Ross says that egg producers are the first commodity group to concentrate on school age children who are at "an impressionable age."

In the two-pronged approach of promotion, Ross also makes appearances as the omelet king. He said most people think of having eggs as "scrambled" or "dippy" and the french name omelet sounds different. But an omelet can be made in 40 seconds, and can be eaten for any meal of the day.

The most important part of the omelet is using the correct pan, according to Ross. Silverstone or teflon must be used over a very high, intense heat. "It should never take more than one minute, and it must be made with wholesome butter, which is just beginning to brown." After adding the egg mixture, Ross says the pan should be tilted and the cooked part pushed into the middle. At this point it is ready to fill.



The Bird plays a big part in promoting eggs in Pennsylvania and here the man behind the costume looks over some of the materials which will feature this friendly, feathery mascot.

He adds that an omelet can be "the garbage dump of the ice box," noting that broccoli, cream cheese, hamburger, ham, cheese or "whatever is left over" can be used as filling. He added, "If you're right handed you fill the left side of the omelet, if you're left handed you fill the right side." After filling, he said the omelet should be folded and allowed to sit for 10 seconds.

Inevitably someone asks why he doesn't use milk for his omelets, and he answers that while milk is fine for scrambled eggs cooked over a lower heat, it shouldn't be used with the high heat for omelets. Water also makes the omelet fluffy.

Last year Ross made over 20,000 omelets as he traveled throughout the state extolling the virtues of eggs. He likes to think of his demonstrations as entertainment, and his humor helps get the message across. Last year he went to 112 banquets, and entertained 12,000 people. He has spoken to groups of up to 900, and says he gets his best reactions from large groups. He has a repertoire of 32 stories from his own life, and uses appropriate ones after sizing up the audience.

Ross states firmly that he is his own critic and completely criticizes each presentation he makes so it can be improved the next time. He also mentions that he likes to inject positive thinking into his demonstrations, and indeed, thinks of his own ability to talk to groups as his "personal victory."

It is hard to believe, but when he was elected class treasurer of his sophomore class in high school, he was unable to give an acceptance speech because of lack of self-confidence and was forced to forfeit the position. He says his shyness came from having to recite Shakespeare in an English class and having his classmates embarrass him.

Fortunately for him his father pushed Ross to conquer this problem, and he eventually took a Dale Carnegie class and joined Toastmasters. Now he easily gives his presentations with no prepared speech, and enjoys every minute of it. In fact, he admits to getting great satisfaction just from knowing that he has done the job right.

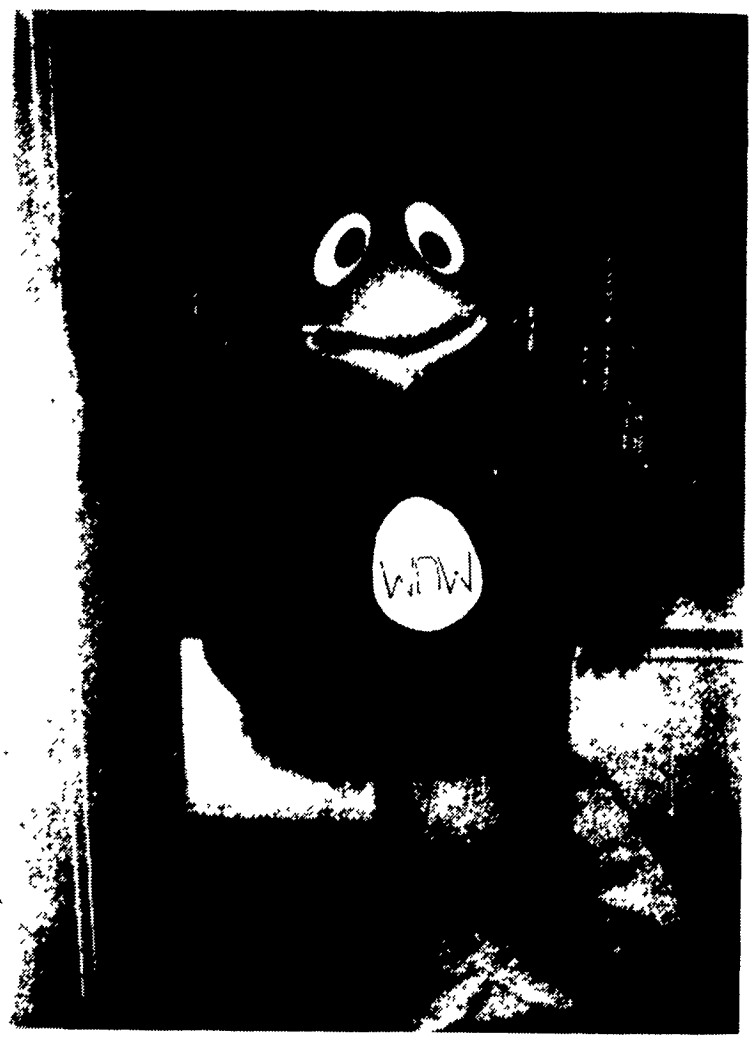
Another promotion which will be repeated this summer is the egg recipe contest, which attracted 1,600 people last year.

Money for promoting eggs comes from the producers themselves, organized as the Pennsylvania Egg Marketing Board. Ross works closely with them in developing promotional ideas and with the Poultry Federation. He takes a close look at other commodity promotions, always watching what is successful and what works well. He says their budget at this point is modest, and they have only begun to scratch the surface of egg promotion. He adds confidently, "We can turn around the decline in egg consumption. This job is so challenging."

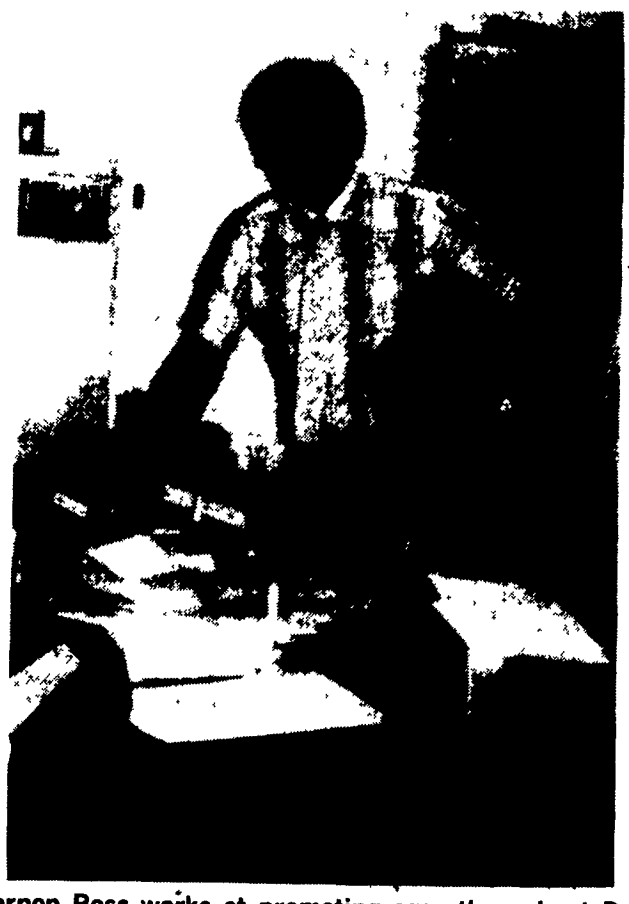
Billboards across the state will promote eggs this summer with an egg in disguise and the message, "Can you recognize your favorite breakfast food?" PEMA has also mailed 25 egg recipes to restaurants for consideration on their menus. Ross notes, "Eggs are very profitable for restaurants."

Ross said he enjoys the cooking portion of his job, and, in fact does much of the cooking at home. "It is a hobby to me," he says. He often tells audiences that the reason he looks so young is that he eats eggs every day.

(Turn to Page B4)



The Bird is the busy mascot of the Pennsylvania Egg Marketing Board, and makes appearances throughout Pennsylvania promoting eggs. Watch for this friendly creature at parades, fairs and other events. He never speaks, but he carries a big message about the nutritional benefits of including eggs in your diet. This fall he will be the focal point of a statewide promotional effort aimed at school children.



Vernon Ross works at promoting eggs throughout Pennsylvania, and his secretary Katherine Gruich works behind the scenes to keep schedules moving smoothly.

Vernon Ross Promotes Eggs

Vernon Ross hopes The Bird will become a familiar personality throughout the state and that it will work in making people think about eating more eggs.

Ross thinks people are more conscious of health and their eating habits today, but adds that eggs have gotten much undeserved bad press. "Someone who is overweight will have a heart attack at 55 and blame it on eggs, but some people can eat four eggs a day and have no problems with cholesterol. Each human has different chemistry and we produce cholesterol whether or not we intake it."

He suggests that people can determine if they have a problem, and if they don't then there's no reason not to eat eggs. He said, "Eggs can be eaten any time of day, and hard cooked eggs are great for snacks instead of junk food. They are one of the most versatile foods."

Pennsylvania is the third highest egg producer in the nation, with 4.7 billion eggs annually, and Ross said he expects it soon to rank second. He adds, "Human hands never touch an egg." Through automation, they are moved quickly and easily to the consumer, with inspectors watching every step of the way. "It is a quality process," he notes.

It is quite clear that Ross enjoys his job, and he is not shy in telling how much he likes it. "I get a lot of satisfaction from being the bird, and I've met some super friends when I give omelet demonstrations."

During the month of May, it would make Vernon Ross very happy if everybody would make a conscious effort to "Make it light, make it right – with eggs."

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

After 20-plus years of marriage, a wife can usually take one glance at hubby's face and know instantly if something is very wrong.

And the face above the body that had come bursting through the front door told me indeed that something had gone way out of whack this late evening hour.

"We have heifers ALL OVER the place."

Oh, groan.

Combine the elements of a hectic day of hauling manure, evening milking visit by the DHIA tester, and broken feed cart that needed repair before the herd could be fed. Blend with that about 70 yearling and bred heifers whose pasture is drying up, and who hadn't yet had their bunk feeders supper — due to feed cart repairs underway.

Then, top off that combination with a gate accidentally left open.

Just call it a foolpı oof recipe for farmstead disaster.

Heifers. Everywhere. The lower yard. The upper yard. Up the road — down the road — and rattling doors, dumping feed and snitching hay out in the calf nursery.

Our standard battle attack plan goes into instant action.

One chaser takes off on the three-wheeler in one direction. Another heads in the other direction on the cycle. And the other putts off on — don't ask me why — a bicycle. Which leaves yours truly to protect the farmstead area. I snag a small piece of maple branch and hold forth to six cats my opinions of heifer breakouts after dark.

In moments, the shuffling of hooves sounds from the paved road running past the house and black and white blotches form a shadowly flow in the glow of the porch light.

The ludicrousness of this bovine stampede under sparkling stars and dying sliver of moon — for some inane reason — strikes me funny. I stand in the blue glow of the night light in my powder blue jogging suit (looking no doubt like a Smurf) and laugh out loud. Any bystander would figure I've flipped my marbles.

Chasing heifers does funny things to people.

With the wheeled roundup trio at their heels, the bulk of the heifers come from three directions through the yard. Wielding my trusty maple-twig baton, I direct the troublemakers through the yard gate and into the dairy barn. To get in a last lick, several snatch bites of my daylilies as they pass by.

Now to corral the stragglers — number and location unknown. The wheeled trio again departs. Lights grow smaller as vehicles head for distant points of the farm.

"You keep the heifers from coming back out of the barn," had been my assignment.

Sure, Lesse. Some 50 heifers averaging maybe 800 pounds. Hey people — that's 20 tons of heifers. Come back. Don't leave me here alone.

Minutes pass. The barn is quiet. A cat chews on the end of my trusty twig armament. More minutes pass. Darkness over the horizon and peace over the farmstead. The phrase "calm before the storm" runs through my mind.

Then the sound of hooves swishing through the hayfield, the roar of motors, lights sweeping the field above the house, and suddenly, black and white bodies explode around the edge of the yard fence. My twig and I do our thing, and the cats scatter. Peace is restored. And the only thing moving in the darkness is the twinkling of the stars.

Twinkling? Probably more like giggling.

Combine Eggs With Foods from Four Food Groups

Eggs are so versatile they can be combined deliciously with foods from all of the four food groups.

For a tasty egg casserole, quiche or souffle, team eggs with any type of meat, poultry, fish or shellfish.

In the fruits and vegetables category, eggs shine again. Serve your favorite vegetable as a souffle or in a quiche or egg casserole. Or, just slice a hard-boiled egg over a spinach salad.

For the milk group, combine eggs with milk in custards. Cheeses also work great with eggs in omelets, souffles, quiches and casseroles.

Creamed eggs are great served on rice or noodles from the bread and cereal group.

The possibilities are endless. Try some of the recipes below or create your own during May Egg Month.

Keep in mind that June Dairy Month is almost here and Lancaster Farming's search for dairy recipes continues. Some of you have already sent your recipe and your gift will soon be on its way. If you haven't taken the time to send your recipe featuring dairy products, don't wait any longer! We'd like you to be an important part of our Dairy Month issues.

HAM DEVILED EGGS

6 hard-cooked eggs
1 2¼-ounce can deviled ham or ¼ cup finely chopped cooked ham
3 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1/8 teaspoon onion powder
Paprika

Cut eggs in half; remove yolks and mash well. Add ham, mayonnaise, mustard and onion powder. Mix thoroughly. Spoon mixture into whites. Sprinkle with paprika. Makes 12 egg halves. Preparation time: 20 minutes.

PAVLOVA

3 egg whites
3 tablespoons cold water
1 cup powdered sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
⅓ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon vinegar

Beat egg whites until stiff. Add water and beat some more. Add sugar gradually, add cornstarch, salt, vanilla and vinegar. Spray 8-inch round pan with nonstick vegetable spray. Dust with confectioner's sugar. Smooth pavlova mixture in pan. Bake at 350°F. for 5 minutes, then turn off heat and bake 1 hour.

Remove from pan, cool, spread with whipped cream and decorate with fruit. Store in refrigerator.

FRUIT STREUSEL PIE

1 cup dairy sour cream
3 large eggs
¾ cup sugar
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 9-inch unbaked pie shell
1½ cups prepared fruit filling for pies (apple, cherry, blueberry or peach)
¼ cup light brown sugar
¼ cup flour
¼ teaspoon pumpkin pie spice, or apple pie spice or ground cinnamon
2 tablespoons butter, softened

In large bowl, beat together sour cream, eggs and sugar until thoroughly blended.

Combine flour, cinnamon and salt. Blend into sour cream mixture.

Blend vanilla into sour cream mixture. Portion 1½ cups mixture into pie shell. Portion 1½ cups fruit filling over sour cream mixture in pie. Mix together brown sugar, flour and spice. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Sprinkle ¾ cup mixture evenly over pie. Bake at 375° F. until set, 25 to 30 minutes. Cool on racks at least 1 hour before cutting. Cut pie into 6 wedges.

Featured Recipe

May is Egg Month, but Vernon Ross, the man behind the egg producer's mascot The Bird, spends his entire year promoting this commodity. This week's featured recipe comes from Vernon, who says Peanut Butter Banana Grillwiches are easy for kids to make.

Look for a story about Vernon on page B2 of this week's issue.

Peanut Butter Banana Grillwiches

8 slices bread (white or raisin or whole wheat)
Peanut Butter
2 bananas
4 eggs
½ cup milk
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter

Spread the bread slices with peanut butter, using as much or as little as you always like. Peel the bananas and cut them into slices. Arrange the banana slices on 4 of the bread slices. Then close the sandwiches with the 4 remaining bread slices, putting the peanut-buttered side inside. Break the eggs into a small bowl. Pour in the milk and add the salt. Beat with a fork or rotary beater until all mixed up. Pour the egg mixture into a pie pan or plate.

Now get out a large skillet, griddle or electric griddle. Put the griddle or skillet on the burner and set the heat at medium or plug the electric skillet in and set the temperature control at 325°F. Put the butter in the skillet or on the griddle.

As it melts, push it around the skillet or griddle with a pancake turner so it covers the bottom of the skillet.

Dip the sandwiches, one at a time, into the egg mixture. Turn each sandwich over so it gets a dip on the other side. Each side should have a nice, even yellow coating. Put each sandwich in the skillet or on the griddle after you dip it. Cook until nicely browned on the bottom, about 3 minutes. Use a pancake turner and turn each sandwich over when it is browned. Cook the second side about 3 minutes or until nicely browned. Lift sandwiches out of the pan with the pancake turner. Put each on a plate and cut in half. Now eat!

If you are looking for a recipe but can't seem to find it anywhere, send your recipe request to Cook's Question Corner, care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 366, Lititz, Pa. 17543. There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address.

QUESTION - Mrs. Samuel Fisher, Ronks, would like a recipe for corn chips.

QUESTION - Celia Dickinson, Fredericksburg, Va., would like a recipe for easy-to-make yeast rolls.

QUESTION - Mrs. Stella Myszkowski, West Reading, would like a recipe for Friendship Cake and would like recipes for using the dough one it starts to ferment.

QUESTION - Hattie Diehl, Mifflinburg, would like a recipe for making homemade soap using wood ashes.

CORRECTION - The recipe for Calf's Head soup that appeared in last week's Cook's Question Corner contained an error. The corrected version of the recipe appears below.

Calf's Head Soup

1 calf's head or veal shin
3 potatoes
1 medium onion
½ pound fresh sausage meat
½ teaspoon marjoram
¼ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon allspice
2 hard cooked eggs
½ cup flour
2 tablespoons butter

Cook calf's head or shin in 2 quarts of salted water for several hours until quite tender; meanwhile, dice peeled potatoes and onion, cook 20 minutes. Shape sausage into ½-inch balls and fry until brown. Make dough balls as in recipe below. When meat is tender, remove from broth, cool slightly, take meat off bones and cut fine. To the broth, add meat, potatoes, sausage balls, spices, chopped eggs and dough balls. Lastly, stir in the flour which has been browned in a dry pan over medium heat, stirring constantly, and then mixed to a smooth paste with 1 cup of broth, simmer for 5 minutes. Serves 8.

ANSWER - Mrs. Betty Biehl, Mertztown, requested recipes for moist chocolate and yellow cake to serve 50 people, and recipes for honey cake and honey cookies. Thanks go to Fran Pierman, Stockton, N.J., for the moist chocolate cake recipe; to Mrs. Belinda Myers, Dallastown, for her Bonnie Butter Cake recipe for 50; to Mildred Martin, Pine Grove, for her Honey Cookies recipe; and to Mrs. Joanne Heeres, Stewartsville, N.J., for her Honey Cake recipe. Thanks also to all the other readers who shared their recipes.

Honey Cookies

1 quart honey
1 pound light brown sugar
¼ pound butter
¾ pint hot water

Heat until lukewarm. Cool and add

1 cup corn oil
2 tablespoons baking soda
2 eggs, beaten

Mix together well Add 5 pounds flour. Mix well. Allow to set several hours in warm place Roll out and cut in desired shapes. Bake at 300°F for 12 minutes or until done Makes 9 pounds of cookies Can be spread with butter icing.

Bonnie Butter Cake

⅔ cup margarine or butter, softened
1¾ cups sugar
2 eggs
1½ teaspoons vanilla
2¾ cups flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1¼ cups milk

Grease and flour pans, 13x9x2 inches or 2 9-inch round pans. Mix butter, sugar, eggs and vanilla in large mixer bowl. Beat until fluffy. Beat on high speed 5 minutes or longer, scraping bowl occasionally (make sure not less than 5 minutes.) Beat in flour, baking powder and salt alternately with milk at low speed. Pour into prepared pans. Bake at 350° F. for 30 to 35 minutes.

When making a large quantity, you can use a half sheet or full sheet pan. They usually call for number of cups of batter. A cake decorating supplier can rent these pans to you and can tell you the number of cups of batter for that pan. Always bake at lower temperatures (300° F. or lower) for larger pans.

Chocolate Cake

6 cups flour
6 cups sugar
6 eggs
6 teaspoons baking powder
6 teaspoons baking soda
1½ cups oil
1½ cups cocoa

Mix all ingredients together until blended. Then add 6 cups boiling water. Beat 2 minutes, scraping bowl. Use a large baking pan and bake at 350° F. for about 1 hour and 15 minutes or 2 13x9x2-inch pans. Batter will be very thin.

Honey Cake

4 eggs
¾ cup sugar
1 cup (12 ounces) honey
⅓ cup salad oil
3 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon ground allspice
½ teaspoon ground cloves
1 cup strong coffee

SCRAMBLED EGGS AVOCADO

6 slices bacon, diced
8 eggs
½ cup milk
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 avocado, pitted, peeled and cubed
Parsley sprigs, optional

In 10-inch omelet pan or skillet over medium heat, cook bacon until crisp. Remove from pan, drain and set aside. Pour off all but 2 tablespoons of bacon drippings. Beat together eggs, milk and seasonings. Over medium heat, heat reserved bacon drippings until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in egg mixture. As mixture begins to set, gently draw an inverted pancake turner completely across the bottom and sides of pan, forming large soft curds. Stirring in avocado before eggs are completely set, continue until eggs are thickened but still moist. (Note: It is better to remove scrambled eggs from pan when they are slightly underdone. Heat retained in eggs completes the cooking.) Do not stir constantly. Turn out onto serving platter and sprinkle with reserved crumbled bacon. Garnish with parsley, if desired.

Cook's Question Corner

Preheat oven to 325°F. Grease 2 loaf pans. Prepare a strong cup of coffee with 3 teaspoons instant coffee and 1 cup water. Set aside to cool. Separate the eggs. Put the yolks in a mixing bowl and beat with sugar until creamy. Add the oil, then the honey, beating after each addition. Beat until mixture is smooth and creamy.

Sift the flour and measure 3 cups. Combine with salt, baking powder, soda and spices. Add the dry ingredients to the egg/honey mixture alternately with the coffee. Stir with a spatula until well blended. Do not overmix.

With clean beaters, whip the egg whites until stiff and they hold peaks. Add ⅓ at a time to the batter. Fold in gently until the batter is smooth. Pour into greased pans and bake 40 to 50 minutes. This cake improves with age, so bake a few days ahead.

ANSWER - Esther Kurtz, Elverson, requested a recipe for bundt cakes. Thanks go to Brenda Oberholtzer, Ephrata, for the following recipes.

Jello Swirled Bundt Cake

1 package yellow cake mix
1 cup sour cream
¼ cup water
2 eggs
1 3-ounce package gelatin (raspberry, cherry, lime or strawberry)

Combine cake mix, sour cream, water and eggs in large bowl. Blend, then beat at medium speed 2 minutes until creamy Spoon ⅓ of batter into well-greased, floured 10-inch fluted bundt pan. Sprinkle with half the gelatin Repeat layers Spread remaining batter over gelatin to cover Bake at 350° F. for 45 to 50 minutes. Cool in rack. Sprinkle with confectioner's sugar if desired.

Pumpkin Bundt Cake

1 package yellow cake mix
2 eggs
¼ cup water
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 16-ounce can pumpkin
2 teaspoons pumpkin pie spice

Grease and flour bundt pan or 13x9-inch pan. Blend all ingredients in large mixer bowl. Beat 4 minutes on medium speed. Pour batter into pan. Bake at 350°F. for 40 to 45 minutes. Cool 10 minutes, remove from pan.

More Walls and Fences Going Up Between International Neighbors

WASHINGTON – The Great Wall snaking across Western Sahara from Algeria to the Atlantic Ocean? It has to be a mirage.

But a 1,550-mile wall of sand and stone, which took more than five years to build along the brutal desert frontier, was completed last year to defend Morocco's claim to Western Sahara (formerly Spanish Sahara).

"Something there is that doesn't love a wall, that wants it down," wrote Robert Frost.

Rather than coming down, more walls – and fences – are going up along once-open international borders. And existing walls and fences (the infamous Berlin Wall will be 25 years old in August) are being reinforced and equipped with the most sophisticated electronic sensors.

Headlines Tell Trend

At the State Department, George J. Demko, director of the Office of the Geographer, monitors the phenomenon in the headlines of the 1980s:

Morocco Tries to Foil Rebels with 1,550-Mile Wall of Sand

India is Planning to Fence Off Its Border with Bangladesh

South Africa Building a Wall Along the Zimbabwe Border

Malaysia-Thailand Border Fence Cuts Smuggling

"It's a sign of international paranoia, an indicator of stress," Demko says. "There's more movement of people – 8.8 million refugees crossed borders last year – more illegal activity, famine, political insurgency, hostility. Situations seem to get worse, not better, but I don't buy that 'Good fences make good neighbors.'"

Indeed, along most of the hundreds of thousands of border miles, there are no barriers between countries. And where walls and fences exist, experts believe they have been more effective when erected to keep people in, not out.

Morocco, however, contends that its great sand-wall strategy succeeded in securing its hold on the former Spanish colony by keeping out guerrillas who have fought for 10 years to make it an independent nation.

By making a movable wall nine feet high and pushing it farther and farther into the desert, Morocco has brought at least two-thirds of Nevada-sized Western Sahara inside its massive barrier. Ultimately the wall is to reach to the national borders.

Guarded with command posts every few miles, it is equipped with electronic sensors and antipersonnel radar that can detect a person more than 12 miles away. Considered a colossal folly by some observers when it was begun, the wall is being studied by military strategists for its success in using high-tech tactics against a guerrilla force armed with sophisticated Soviet weapons.

Threat in Subcontinent

India has threatened to seal off Bangladesh with a barbed-wire fence. Whether it would stop the flow of impoverished Bangladeshis is doubtful.

The controversial 2,300-mile fence was first announced by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi in 1983 and was to be erected in stages over five years, starting with the most troublesome sections of the border, where violent protests against illegal immigration had erupted. Except for its coastline on the Bay of Bengal and a short border with Burma, Bangladesh is surrounded by India.

To Bangladesh, the idea of the fence is a national insult. Only a few symbolic posts have been set up so far, and there is some hope that Rajiv Gandhi's India may seek to build better relations instead of a fence.

South Africa's electrified fence, capped with coils of razor-sharp wire, was put up last year along strategic sections of the border to keep illegal immigrants from Zimbabwe from crossing over in search of work.

On the Malay Peninsula, a chain-link fence with dozens of watchtowers stretches across at least 35 miles of Malaysia's narrow northern border. It is credited with cutting down on gun and drug smuggling and communist infiltration from Thailand.

One of the most high-tech-secured borders in the world lies between Israel and Syria along the Golan Heights. "The barbed-wire fences are so sensitized that a single wandering sheep could trip the devices, and half the Israeli army would probably converge on that spot," says Julian V. Minghi, professor of geography at the University of South Carolina and an authority on international border regions.

'Security Landscape'

"Along the entire length of the Syria-Israel border and for a few kilometers into the hinterland is a single strip...characterized by a large number of fences, minefields, roads, mounds of earth-fill, pillboxes, etc., placing the area completely under the domination of the military and creating an extreme security landscape," Minghi writes in the February 1986 issue of The Professional Geographer.

"By 1985, the security landscape of Israel had reached a peak; it now covers more than 50 percent of the country," he reports.

The most infamous modern-day barrier dividing the world's peoples was begun 25 years ago to halt a mass exodus from East Germany into West Berlin. The 100-mile long wall and heavily patrolled "death strip" turned West Berlin into an island inside East Germany. Today, amid increased international tensions, along other once-open borders, more walls and fences are going up, most erected to keep people out, not in.

WEAVER BIRDS ARE GIVEN THIS NAME BECAUSE OF THE WAY THEY WEAVE THEIR NESTS TOGETHER. THESE BIRDS TEAR THE LEAVES OF REEDS INTO STRIPS AND USE THEM TO WEAVE A BOWL-SHAPED NEST. THEY PLACE A BAR ACROSS THE OPENING TO KEEP TWO OR THREE GREEN EGGS FROM ROLLING OUT.

Less well-known than the Berlin Wall, an 840-mile barbed-wire fence still divides the two Germanies, running the length of the border from the Baltic Sea to Czechoslovakia. In what was considered a counciliatory move, East Germany within the last two years has made the 9-foot-high barrier and fortified zone "less foreboding, less ugly, less lethal," Minghi says, "although no less penetrable."

During modernization of the barrier in the 1970s, it was armed with some 60,000 self-starting scatter guns that sprayed shrapnel when activated by trip wire.

The weapons have been taken down from the fenceposts, and the mine fields have been removed from the no-man's-land. In their place, better electronic detectors and higher fences have been installed.

The main border fence and the 100-mile wall isolating West Berlin — both built to half a mass exodus to the West — are the most-often-cited examples of effective walling-in. The Soviet Union's borders with Finland and Turkey are also sealed with a series of heavily fortified fences.

In parts of the world, says geography professor Robert McColl of the University of Kansas, there is a great concentration of activity along borders. Some are crowded with refugees, who are often armed or better provided for than the citizenry. In such places, he says, governments may be in danger of losing control of their borders.

Strategy of Futility

State Department geographer Demko hopes that walls and fences are "only a temporary resurgence" of a foreign-policy strategy that has been tried since ancient Chinese and Roman times. Physical obstacles may slow down the movement of people, but they cannot stop it.

Periodically there are proposals to fence the entire 1,933 miles of the porous U.S.-Mexican border. About 28.5 miles are closed off with chain-link fencing, most of it in California.

"It's cut with regularity. They make more holes than we can patch," says Verne Jervis of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service. "It would be easier to guard the holes than patch them."

Egg Recipe Contest Deadline Nears

HARRISBURG — One good egg deserves another...if that's your philosophy in producing an "eggceptional" recipe, then mix the secret ingredients to cook up your favorite dish for the 1986 Pennsylvania Egg Recipe Contest. That something "eggstra" may mean a state title, a trip to the National Egg Cooking Contest and a share of $8,000 in total prize money.

The recipe should include at least one egg per serving, and specify exact amounts of each ingredient in the recipe method. Be sure to state cooking utensils, time and temperatures. Recipes should not include garnishes. Entries must be received by July 31, 1986.

Top prize in the Pennsylvania Egg Recipe Contest is $1,000. The winning state recipe will be forwarded to the American Egg Board for national judging and a chance at winning one of three top cash awards: first, $4,000; second, $2,000; and third, $1,000.

Entries will be accepted only from current Pennsylvania residents. Food professionals, staff, board members and immediate family members of any of the sponsoring organizations are not eligible.

Recipes should be sent to EGGS, Bureau of Marketing Development, PA Department of Agriculture, 2301 N. Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408. More than one entry may be submitted per envelope, but each recipe must be on a separate piece of paper. Contestants are requested to print or type their name, address, county and telephone number on each recipe.

The state cook-off contest will be held on September 6, 1986. The winning candidate will be notified (by mail). The contest is sponsored by the American Egg Board, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Pennsylvania Egg Marketing Association and the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation.

Dora Kay Hettinger is Centre County's New Dairy Princess

BY MARY MAXWELL
Centre County Correspondent

PLEASANT GAP – Dora Kay Hettinger of Rebersburg was recently crowned 1986 Centre County dairy princess.

Dora Kay, the daughter of Kenneth and Mary Hettinger, is a senior at Penns Valley High School. She is a member of the National Honor Society, Drama and Aerobics Clubs and yearbook staff. She also belongs to the Rebersburg United Methodist Youth Group. Designing gowns, singing, ballroom dancing and teaching herself American sign language, along with helping on the family's dairy farm keep her busy.

After she graduates in June, Dora Kay plans to work for a year before pursuing a college degree in education of the deaf.

Centre County's alternate dairy princess is Joy Gates of Warriors Mark. The daughter of Arva and Dorothy Gates is a senior at State College High School. She is vice president of FHA and a member of FFA. Joy is also active in the Gatesburg 4-H Club, Centre County Dairy Club, Centre County 4-H Council and is Sunday school secretary for Ross United Methodist Church.

Joy regularly shows Holsteins from her family's farm and has competed at the state level twice. She hopes to have her own dairy farm some day.

The third contestant, Tammy McTavish was named second alternate. She is the daughter of Darlene McTavish and a junior at State College High School.

Beth Heald, 1985 Centre County dairy princess and present Pennsylvania state dairy princess, crowned her successor. She spoke to the contestants about her experiences during the past year and thanked the Centre County dairy farmers for the opportunities she had to represent them at county, state and national events.

Boyer Elected Jr. Holstein President

YORK – Bridgette Boyer, Biesecker Road, has been named president of the York County Junior Holstein Association following the group's recent reorganization and election.

Assisting her sister, as vice-president, is Jenelle Boyer. Angie Lang, Glen Rock, is secretary-treasurer. News reporter is Rich Bupp, Seven Valleys.

Junior Holstein members have been invited to participate in a clipping workshop on June 21, hosted by the York Central Dairy 4-H Club. The workshop will be held at the Rodman Thompson farm, East Berlin, from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., with lunch provided.

Noted Berks County Holstein breeder Jim Shaw is lined up to lead the clipping workshop, with both individual and group instruction on the fine points of clipping show heifers. Participants are asked to bring their own equipment, including clippers, extension cords and brushes. Reservations are available through Shirley Trimmer, R1, East Berlin, 717-259-0773.

York Junior Holstein club will host the annual regional Junior Holstein Judging School, scheduled for July 14 and 15, with headquarters at the Ramada Inn, York.

Artist Jan Funk poses with the larger of the two farm murals she painted for the Brandywine Hospital in Coatesville. The paintings were dedicated to the farms' owner, Ernest Pyle.

Farm Murals Bring Cheer to Brandywine Hospital

BY SUZANNE KEENE
Home and Youth Editor

COATESVILLE — Two murals depicting farm scenes brighten the walls of Brandywine Hospital. Visitors, patients and nurses alike pause to study the colorful paintings, which upon careful scrutiny reveal painstakingly accurate reproductions of two farms that border the hospital.

The 4-by-8-feet mural on the third floor of the hospital illustrates the Ernest Pyle farm, a 75-acre steer farm. A second, smaller mural on the hospital's second floor shows the Robert Lynch farm.

The murals were a gift from artist Jan Funk, who dedicated them to the farmers who owned the farms. They are also a tribute to all farmers for their hard work and dedication, Funk says.

Ironically, Funk came to know the local farmers and to love farming through her job with Homemaker's Home Health Service of Exton, which provides home health care for primarily terminally-ill patients.

In 1981 Funk began taking care of Laura Martin, a farm woman who introduced Funk to her neighbors, the Pyles; Funk later cared for Ernest Pyle, who owned the farm depicted in the third-floor mural.

"That's how I grew to love farming," Funk says, remembering the friendship she shared with these farmers and their families. While caring for the ill farmers, Funk was impressed by their dedication to the farm and with their uncomplaining attitude toward hard work.

"I have a high respect and admiration for farmers," she says. "It's not a nine to five job. There's nothing such as vacation or sickness."

While caring for Ernest Pyle during his stay in the Brandywine Hospital, Funk said she spent many hours peering out the hospital windows watching the activity on the farms.

But the view from the window showed only the rear of the Pyle farm and she decided that weary visitors or lonely patients would enjoy seeing the front as well.

Now that Funk's completed mural hangs in the hallway, patients can see the front of the barn and farmhouse and the neat, white board fence that ensconses them. Bob Pyle and Bob Lynch work in the field baling hay, while Ernest Pyle directs the activity.

Both murals contain caricatures of people who live and work on the farms, and the mural of the Lynch farm contains 39 animals.

Funk says she hopes her mural will brighten the days of hospital patients and staff. Through her work with the terminally ill, Funk has grown to appreciate her own health and she tries to make life more cheerful for her patients.

"I think I'm so grateful not to be in the hospital that I want to brighten the lives of those who are," she says.

Funk has fought her own battle with illness, having had a successful corneal transplant in 1981. She was legally blind in the right eye before the operation restored her vision.

And although she continues to suffer from keratoconis, a deteriorative eye disease, she

This mural of the Lynch farm hangs in the second floor hallway of the hospital. Although smaller than the Pyle mural, it still contains 39 animals, Funk said.

Jan Funk Donates Farm Murals

refuses to believe she will ever be completely blind. "I choose to belive it is impossible for me to become blind," she said.

Funk's appreciation for life and health is manifested in her lifestyle. During the day she works for Homemaker's, but in her "free" time, she paints, writes and works on the Pyle farm as the "unofficial hired hand."

In the summer, she works night shift as often as possible so she has her days free to work on the farm. She keeps a strawberry patch and a vegetable garden there and helps out wherever she can. Last year, Funk recalls with a good-natured grin, Bob Pyle, who now owns the farm, placed a disclaimer on her garden because the rows were so crooked.

In addition to maintaining her garden, Funk gives faded farm equipment a fresh coat of paint and helps with the baling. "When I'm driving that baler, all I can think is, this is contentment," she said.

Along with her enthusiasm for the job, Funk brings a healthy sense of humor. Last year, for example, she planted watermelons in her garden despite disparaging comments from Bob Pyle. To show him just how good her gardening talents were, Jan drove to the nearest Acme, bought the largest watermelon in the store, and planted it in the field. Both enjoyed a hearty laugh over the prank.

Funk approached the mural project with the same enthusiasm she gives to her nursing and farm work. She presented her mural idea to hospital president Norman Ledwin in 1981 and "he was very receptive," she noted.

With Ledwin's approval secured, Funk began to work on the project. She had never painted a mural before and was not accustomed to working with acrylic on wood, the medium she chose for this project.

Funk said the simplistic panoramic view of the farm and hospital is a departure from her normal style. She usually works with pastels and waterolors.

She began by snapping countless pictures of the farms from a variety of angles. And, when she actually began painting, she was careful to represent the farm and machinery accurately. She even asked Bob Pyle to loan her his baler manual so she could be sure to get every detail correct in the painting.

"These men are very precise and they like things done the right way," she said.

Now, when Funk returns to the hospital to view her work on display, she can feel a sense of satisfaction in a job well done. Hospital staff who recognize her stop to tell her how much they appreciate her murals and the cheer they bring to the hospital.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

Let's Barbecue!

Memorial Day traditionally opens the summer season, and summer means barbecues! Your microwave can be a real boon to home barbecues, both for precooking meats and in reheating side dishes.

Have your accompaniments prepared ahead of time, so you can enjoy your guests while your microwave gets things cooking.

Try precooking meats like chicken and pork in your microwave to shorten their grilling time. It also helps the inside get done without charring the outside!

To precook ribs and chicken pieces, put the meat in a flat dish with the larger pieces in the corners or around the edge. Cover with plastic wrap and microwave on medium (50,5) for 7 minutes per pound. Use medium power, rather than high, to keep the meat tender and for even cooking in to the center.

To finish grilling, brush with barbecue sauce, marinade, etc. and grill for about half the time for raw meat. I can't tell you exactly how long, because it depends on your grill, how hot the fire is, etc.

For your next cook out try one of these recipes for stuffed potatoes. They are delicious with grilled meat.

Stuffed potatoes are baked potatoes that have the insides removed, mixed with goodies like cheese or mushrooms, then stuffed back in the shells. These can be prepared the day before, if desired, and reheated with no loss of flavor.

Baking the potatoes in your microwave cuts way down on the preparation time. Then stuffed potatoes can be reheated in the microwave in a few minutes. Or for more crispiness, in a 350 degree oven for about half an hour.

In these recipes, I'm giving you the quantities for only 2 baking potatoes, stuffed. This will make 4 halves, or 2 to 4 servings. For larger quantities, just double, triple, etc. the amounts. Use regular baking potatoes such as Maine or Idaho, for best results.

These vegetable stuffed potatoes are my favorites. They have a delicious flavor without adding too many extra calories.

Vegetable Stuffed Potatoes

2 large baking potatoes, about 1 pound
2 tablespoons margarine or butter
2 chopped scallions
½ cup shredded carrot
½ cup sliced mushrooms
½ minced clove garlic or a dash garlic powder
3 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon prepared, Dijon-style mustard
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper

1. Scrub potatoes and pierce with a fork. Microwave on high for 7 to 8 minutes, turning them over halfway through. Let stand for 5 to 10 minutes to cool slightly.

2. Cut potatoes in half lengthwise, and scoop out potato, leaving about ¼-inch shell. Set shells aside.

3. In a small bowl or casserole, combine margarine or butter with garlic, scallions, carrot, and mushrooms. Cover and microwave on high for 3 to 4 minutes, stirring once, until vegetables are tender.

4. In a large bowl, whip potatoes with remaining ingredients, beating until smooth. Stir in sauteed vegetables, mixing well. Spoon filling back into potato shells.

5. If serving immediately, place potatoes on serving plate, cover with waxed paper and microwave on high for 2 to 3 minutes to heat filling. makes 4 halves.

6. If making ahead, refrigerate, covered, until serving time. To reheat, cover with waxed paper and microwave on medium high (70,7) for 5 to 6 minutes for 4 halves.

Bacon and Cream Cheese Potatoes

2 large baking potatoes, about 1 pound
2 slices bacon
1 ½ ounces cream cheese (half a 3-ounce box)
2 to 3 tablespoons milk
1 chopped green onion (or 1 tablespoon minced onion)
¼ teaspoon salt

1. Scrub potatoes and pierce with a fork. Microwave on high for 7 to 8 minutes on, turning them over halfway through. Let stand for 5 to 10 minutes to cool slightly.

2. Place bacon on a paper towel on a plate and microwave 2 minutes on high, until crispy. Crumble each slice separately.

3. Cut potatoes in half lengthwise, and scoop out potato, leaving about ¼-inch shell. Set shells aside.

4. Mash cooked potatoes with milk and cream cheese, whipping until smooth. Stir in one crumbled bacon slice (reserving second slice for topping) and remaing ingredients. Spoon filling back into potato shells.

5. If serving immediately, place potatoes on serving plate, cover with waxed paper and microwave on high for 2 to 3 minutes to heat filling. Top with reserved bacon just before serving. Makes 4 halves.

6. If making ahead, refrigerate until serving time. To reheat, cover with waxed paper, and microwave on medium (50,5) for 8 to 9 minutes for 4 halves, until hot. (The lower power is necesary because of the cheese content. The filling tends to bubble out on higher powers.) Top with reserved bacon and microwave on high for 30 seconds to heat bacon.

Tips: To increase the quantity of these recipes, microwave 4 large potatoes on high for 14 to 15 minutes; microwave 6 large ones on high for about 20 minutes. Check a chart in your oven's cookbook for larger quantities.

Invent your own recipes, by mashing potatoes with cheese; or mayonaise and onion for a hot potato salad taste; or pepers, tomatoes and mozarella cheese for an Italian flavor!

Note: the recipes above are for microwaves with 600-700 watts of power; for 500-600 W, add 10 seconds to each minute; for 400-500 W, add 20 cents to each minute.

How to Clean Ceiling, Walls and Woodwork

With fresh air streaming through open windows, it is a good time to give painted ceilings, walls and woodwork a thorough cleaning. Though it is a big job, careful organization and proper techniques will get the job done well and as quickly as possible.

First be sure you have the necessary equipment. Gather supplies: pails, detergent or household cleaner, scrub brush, sponges, cloths, plastic drop cloths, and a sturdy stepladder or stepstool.

Before getting underway, test the finish for washability. Choose an inconspicuous area and wash with a sudsy sponge or cloth. Fading, running or peeling are signs that painting or wallpapering rather than washing may be in order if the surface is really dingy. In this case, the surface must still be cleaned so that fresh paint or wallpaper will adhere securely. If there are no problems, it is safe to proceed.

Remove wall decorations. Move furniture away from walls. Cover items that cannot be taken from the room temporarily. Beginning with the ceiling, dust away cobwebs and surface dirt. Use a clean dust mop, a broom wrapped with a cloth or the vacuum cleaner with brush attachment.

It is easier to use two pails or basins, if available. Fill one with a sudsy detergent solution and the other with warm rinse water. When using a household cleaner, dissolve in water following manufacturer's directions for amount. Set pails on a plastic drop cloth to protect floors.

Begin with the ceiling. Be sure stepladder or stool is steady. Do not lean in any direction for greater reach. This is a common cause of falls. Use a scrub brush or sponge to wash. Wash and rinse in overlapping sections. To rinse, dip a sponge or cloth in clean water, wring out excess water and wipe the section. Repeat to be sure all dirt is removed.

Wash walls from the bottom up. Rivulets of water running down on dirty sections will leave hard-to-remove streaks. Work a manageable section at a time and overlap washing and rinsing. Change to fresh suds and rinse water as often as necessary.

Finish by washing baseboards, door and window frames. Gloss or semigloss paint is generally used on woodwork and is not difficult to clean. But for stubborn spots, use a full strength liquid cleaner or a spray type. Rinse well.

Don't Buy Blind

These days buying furniture is serious business — few of us can afford to make mistakes. Yet many consumers are buying blind because they don't know how to judge quality. It's often quite difficult to see the difference between a well-made piece and just a high-priced one. Good and bad furniture comes in all sizes, descriptions and price ranges.

There are four clues to juding the quality of upholstered furniture. Investigate these and you will be a much wiser buyer.

• Look at the Tailoring — if the outside workmanship is sloppy, the inside may be too. Make sure the seams are strong and straight and that the fabric is well matched. Cushions should fit snugly into corners and there should be no lumps at all. Generally, cushions with welt cording at the seams wear better than those with butt seams. Furniture with loose seat and back cushions give extra wear because you can turn them over.

• Look at the Fabric — tightly woven, knit or tufted fabrics wear longer than thin or loosely constructed fabrics. Light weight fabrics can be durable if quilted. Read all the tags to know if the fabric has been treated to repel water and stains and if it carries a wear warranty. Furniture arms should be made of exposed wood or, if upholstered, should be covered with an extra set of arm covers.

• Look at the Construction — since you cannot see inside you will have to feel, read the labels, and ask questions. First ask about warranty in case of defects in workmanship or construction. Higher quality furniture is usually made with polyurethane foam as cushioning and polyester fiberfill as filling materials.

• Try it — if it is comfortable, well padded, sturdy, and you like the shape and design, you may have found the piece you were looking for. It is better to ask a few more questions than to buy blind and be sorry. You will probably live with the furniture you buy for many, many years.

Boots and Saddles 4-H Club

In June members and parents of the Boots and Saddles 4-H Club will have the opportunity to spend three days studying coastline ecology and the wild ponies of Assateague Island. Reservations were accepted for the trip at a recent meeting at the Farm and Home Center.

During the meeting the group heard reports on the successful All 4-H Open Horse Show held April 26. Sponsorships were collected and club jacket orders taken.

Members voted unanimously to contribute to Hospice of Lancaster County in memory of Jim Hickey, one of their leaders. Jim had been a loyal supporter and faithful leader for 11 years. As a token of appreciation for all he gave to the club, members and their parents participated in a work day at his home May 10.

As a community service project, members will paint the fences at the Columbia Riding Club. The group also discussed dates for upcoming shows, and summer and fall overnight trail rides.

Following the business meeting a film on Quarter horses titled, "Survival of the Fittest," was shown.

The group will meet next on June 13 at the home of Tammy Long at 7 p.m. Members unable to attend are expected to inform Rose or their teen leader.

Guernsey 4-H Club

The Guernsey 4-H club met for the second time this year at the home of Judy Rohrer on May 13.

Janice Garber and Tina High demonstrated how to fill out a record book.

Kim Stroud explained the dairy bowl and encouraged members to join. Later, the group had an auction.

Lehigh Ann Kimmel Shines as Indiana County Dairy Princess

BY BETH NESBIT
Staff Correspondent

INDIANA — Leigh Ann Kimmel was crowned 1986 Indiana County dairy princess at Marion Center High School on May 17. 1985 dairy princess Susan Nehrig presented Leigh Ann with her crown and a bouquet or red roses.

First runner-up was Anita Hazlett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hazlett, Cherry Tree. Susan also presented Anita with her banner and a bouquet of pink carnations.

Leigh Ann is the 17-year-old daughter of Robert and Doris Kimmel of R1 Home. She will be a senior at Marion Center High School in Marion Center. Leigh Ann's activities include helping on the family farm, being an active member of her local 4-H dairy club as well as actively participating in the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association.

Seventeen-year-old Anita enjoys helping on her family's 250-acre farm with a total of 52 milking Holsteins. Anita's favorite activity on the farm is working with the younger stock. In addition to helping at home Anita enjoys swimming.

The evening began with each of the three contestants presenting a two to five minute skit they had prepared to promote milk and its by-products. Leigh Ann explained how important milk is to all ages by way of a television news broadcast.

1985 dairy princess Susan Nehrig gave her farewell speech and thanked her family and the dairy promotion committee for their support during her reign. The Dixie Land Band entertained the audience while the judges made their final decision.

Musical entertainment for the evening was provided by Kenneth Black. Following the pageant a reception was held for those in attendance.

Gladys Trimble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Trimble of Indiana, was named Miss Congeniality for the event.

Twin Valley FFA Hosts Contests

The Twin Valley FFA recently hosted three contests for fellow FFA'ers from Berks and Lebanon counties. In the interview contest, Sue Burkhart, Twin Valley secretary and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Burkhart of Green Hills, earned a first place area award.

Competitors were required to write a letter applying for a job, complete an application form for a job of her choice, and finally, be interviewed for the job.

Other competitors were Tonya Johnson, Cedar Crest, second; Bob Bell, Twin Valley, third; Kim Brossman, Twin Valley, fourth; Adam Sonnen, Eastern Lebanon County, fifth; Ann Saylor, Annville-Cleona, sixth; Jerome Litz, Northern Lebanon High School, seventh; Sherry Donmoyer, Norlebco, eighth; Melissa Ritchie, ELCO, nineth; and Valerie Sherinski, Lebanon Vo-Tech, tenth.

Finishing with the highest overall score was Gretchen Frederick from the Grassland Environmental Chapter; she was ineligible for area awards.

First place area award went to Tim Elliott from Annville-Cleona High School. Kevin Dreibellis from Cedar Creast was second; Mike Stoltzfus from Twin Valley was third; Tobi Ulinsett from Annville-Cleona, fourth; Trudy Schneck from Lebanon Vo-Tech, fifth; Kevin Stoltzfus from Twin Valley, sixth; Rick Hicks from Twin Valley, seventh; Laura Harding from Northern Lebanon, eight; Shawn Martin from Annville-Cleona, nineth.

In the small engines contest the Lebanon County Vo Tech team of Gerald Getz and Louie Fondolle placed first with Gerald finishing first in individual competition. Second place team was the Cedar Crest team of Mike Wenrich and Jeff Ruhl. Third place went to the Twin Valley team of Scott Burnett and John Keenan. Finishing in fourth place was the Conrad Weiser team of Blair Wartzenluft and Troy Souders.

"Agriculture" in the broad sense encompasses production inputs made for farmers, farming itself, and the processing, transportation, and retailing that moves food and fiber from the farm to consumers. That economic activity employs 21 million people and accounts for 20 percent of the Nation's Gross National Product.

Susan Fisher to Promote Milk as Mifflin County Dairy Princess

BY SALLY DUNMIRE
Mifflin County Correspondent

McVEYTOWN — Susan Fisher will be helping to advertise the benefits of milk during her reign as 1986 Mifflin County dairy princess. The 17-year-old senior at Mount Union Area High School received her crown from Pennsylvania dairy princess Beth Heald May 17.

Susan is the daughter of William and Faye Fisher of R1 McVeytown. In high school, she was a member of the Future Business Leaders of America and the Press Club.

She is active in FFA and hopes to become a state officer. Through FFA, Susan shows both sheep and dairy animals. In 4-H, she has been president of the local Wayne Township club. Susan exhibits her sheep and sewing projects in 4-H.

This fall, Susan will be off to Shippensburg State College to study elementary education. But until then, she will have a busy summer promoting Pennsylvania's dairy industry and its products.

"Mifflin County hasn't had a dairy princess for three years. I felt the program needed restarted," she said.

On hand at the presentation were Beth Heald, state dairy princess, and Mim Kauffman, co-chairman of the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Service. Mim Kauffman spoke of an elderly woman who now suffers osteoporosis because she "didn't drink enough milk during her youth." According to Kauffman, the cliche "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," applies.

Annville Cleona FFA Tops Regional Speaking Contest

The Annville Cleona Little Dutchmen parliamentary procedure team captured first place in the regional speaking contest held recently at Kutztown High School.

The team now advances to the state level where it will defend its 1985 state title. Team members are president, Dale Balmer; vice president, Tim Elliott; secretary, Sheila Hostetter; treasurer, Kent Hoffer; reporter, Mike Beare; chaplain, Scott Brinser; sentinel, Eric Harnish; and student advisor; Daniel Brandt.

In the extemporaneous speaking contest, Daniel Brandt placed first and Dale Balmer placed second. Sue Elliott placed first in the prepared speaking contest.

Bradford 4-H Leaders Attend Wilderness Weekend

Three Bradford County 4-H leaders attended the Northeast 4-H Leader's Weekend in the Wilderness at Cayuga Nature Center in Ithaca, N.Y. The purpose of the weekend is to teach 4-H leaders new ideas to take back to their clubs.

Those attending were Cindy Williams, North Towanda 4-H Club; Ted VanDerKarr, Hillbillies 4-H Club; and Tom Maloney, assistant county agent.

Highlights of the weekend included workshops on birdhouse building and hiking survival, a presentation on whitetail deer by Mike Ondik of the Pa. Bureau of Forestry, and a presentation of Project Wild.

Project Wild utilizes a novel approach to teaching knowledge about wildlife and environmental awareness to any age group. The active involvement and learning by doing method employed by Project Wild is ideally suited for groups such as 4-H and school.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

The meadow in front of our house is overrun with animals. And, are they noisy? Yes indeed! The three pair of wild geese honk from early morning until late into the night. They fly from one area of the river to another, honking the whole time.

Our own six white geese have produced goslings that float beside them on the water. Then there are the ducks — dozens of black and white ones that our neighbors say belong to them. They have crossed with the wild ducks, which we also have here. Our corn crib is a big attraction for all of them. One hatched a dozen ducklings in a vacant dog house and another had a batch in our barn.

Not only is our meadow populated with animals other than our cows, but our front yard is also full of furry grey animals. It is not unusual for me to notice four squirrels at one time digging for walnuts in the lawn. They are not satisfied simply doing that — they go into the garden and dig up the gladiola bulbs as fast as I plant them. I think it is time to get rid of a few of these pesky animals.

So far I've kept my cabbage under half-bushel baskets so that the rabbit that had a nest in my strawberries won't eat them. But I know that someday, I'll have to uncover them to the elements.

My early sugar peas are almost ready to pick and when I'm working outside in the late afternoon, I often see groundhogs. It seems that we can't keep the raspberry patch clean and they've dug a hole in the middle of it. Last year I even managed to step into it and fall.

One animal that I do enjoy is a bright red cardinal that sits on a mulberry shoot just one foot from my kitchen window. He hops from branch to branch and sings his "tsip-tsip" as I suppose he sees his reflection in the glass. But, if we didn't have the animals, it would be too quiet around here as we are a mile from the highway.

CABLEVEY

Cablevey - the PROFIT CONVERTER
automates feeding

8 Reasons For Considering CABLEVEY For Your Dairy Barn

(1) CABLEVEY Saves Labor - That's important when you want to maximize milk production by feeding more often.
(2) CABLEVEY Saves Feed - Many dairy producers have found the milk production increased even with equal or less feed after installing CABLEVEY.
(3) CABLEVEY Pays For Itself - Just from the increase in milk production alone, many systems have paid for themselves in 12 months or less.
(4) CABLEVEY Reduces Feed Separation — Unlike flex augers, feed separation is minimal... that means a more uniform ration to all cows.
(5) CABLEVEY Handles High Moisture Corn — The 2" system and plastic drops are specially designed to handle high moisture corn without constant hang-ups.
(6) CABLEVEY Takes The Corners — Specially designed 90° corners allow efficient system operation for nearly any barn layout.
(7) CABLEVEY Saves Energy — 1 Motor and 1 system handle many livestock operations.
(8) CABLEVEY Controls Feed By Weight Or Volume — Cows individually fed a pre-set amount by Weight or Volume automatically 5 to 8 times per day for highest efficiency.

Missy Walker is New Somerset County Dairy Princess

Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET — Missy Walker, 17-year-old daughter of Richard and Nancy Walker of Shanksville, is the 1986 Somerset County dairy princess. Missy was chosen from a field of three at the county's 18th annual pageant, held Saturday, May 17, at the Somerset Country Club.

The blue-eyed brunette princess is a junior at Shanksville-Stoneycreek High School. In addition to her work on the family dairy farm, she is a cheerleader, majorette, yearbook staff member, and chorus member at school. She also studies dance, a talent she demonstrated during her presentation for the pageant.

For her presentation, Missy appeared on stage in a bathrobe and spoke about getting her energy to start the day from dairy products. After drinking a glass of milk and announcing that she felt a burst of energy coming on, she unzipped her robe to reveal a red spangle-trimmed top and black-and-white stripped pedal pusher pants. In this outfit she performed a jazzercise routine to the "Make It Milk" song.

Princess candidates were also judged on their interview responses. Asked to name her favorite dairy product, Missy named ice cream. Her description of its taste on a hot day brought more than a few smiles from spectators seated in the humid room. Asked what qualities a dairy princess should have, she noted that speaking ability is important and added, "She should have the ability to convince people not only about milk, but also about other dairy products that are good for you."

Somerset County Dairy Princess

In the coming year, Missy will be called on often to use those talents. Jillyn Friedline, 1985 dairy princess, told the audience she participated in 108 promotional events in the county and around the state in addition to competing at the State Dairy Princess Pageant in September. The county's Dairy Promotion Committee has already planned at least one local event each month in the coming year for the 1986 princess and her court.

Alternate dairy princesses for 1986 are Rita Barclay of Somerset, daughter of David and Chris Barclay, and Lisa Paul of Garrett, daughter of Leon and Dorothy Jane Paul. The alternates will spend the year assisting the princess or substituting for her at promotional events.

The 18th annual Somerset County Dairy Princess Pageant was judged by Lamar Witmer of Royal Dream Holsteins, Manheim; Eleanor Stokes Karpa of Karpa Valley Farm, Avella; and Rev. Rosalind Kummer, former extension service home economist, of Elwood City.

During the pageant, the princess candidates received savings bonds from the Highland Mutual Insurance Company and commemorative jewelry from the Laurel Highlands Animal Hospital. The dairy princess was presented with a bouquet of red roses from the Somerset County Chamber of Commerce. Floral decorations for the event were donated by the White Oak Veterinary Clinic and Rainbow Connection Embryo Transfer Service.

The pageant was arranged by the coronation sub-committee of the county Dairy Promotion Committee. Members of the sub-committee were Sandy Baer and Tomalee Will of Somerset, Amy Petenbrink of Myersdale, and Penny Reiman of Shanksville.

Lincoln Community 4-H Club

The Lincoln Community 4-H Club met May 13th at the home of Jonathon and Carrie Davis.

Club members looked at Jonathon Davis' 4-H strawberry project and Carrie Davis' rabbit project. The club also saw the Davis' capon facilities.

The next meeting will be held June 10 at the home of Matt and Kevin Hurst.

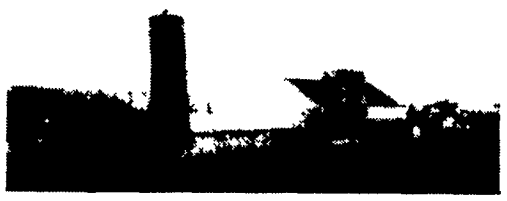
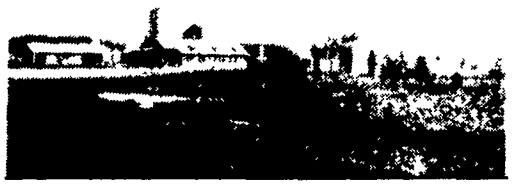
"NOW IS THE BEST TIME"

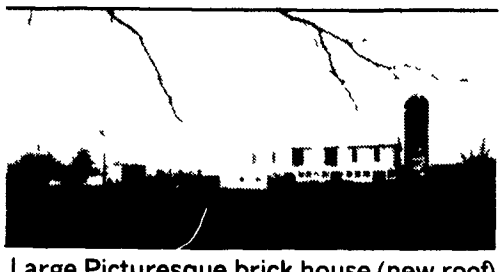
To inspect these extraordinary farms; where the corn is young & you can really see what you are getting.



If you have the physical help to farm this type of an operation, then let me show you a tremendous opportunity. Total 342 Ac. w/about 235 T.A. Has 2 good houses - huge bank barn & a 60 tie stall addition w/rubber mats & manure storage. Large blue silo & 2 - 14x54 concrete silos, 2 nice streams and nearly level land in high state of cultivation. (He boasts 170 bu. corn/ac) Punch line: At their age & physical condition & with no children to take over, it leaves an excellent opportunity for a younger man wanting his own operation at very reasonable interest rates and a price you can truly "live" with!! Note: Large Equip. Shed. Call me today for more details! Possible Turn Key Operation.



342 Ac. - 228 Presently tilled on two adjoining farms. #1 Has an older 5 BR two story brick & stone mansion - large heifer barn & 66 stanchion bank barn w/pipeline - tank, barn cleaner etc. #2 has 4 B. 2 story (very nice throughout) house & bank barn for heifers, etc. This is mostly level limestone (highly productive) soil w/small stream. Very Nice Setting!! This package comes with financing possibilities and/or turnkey operation. This partnership has been in business many years.



Large Picturesque brick house (new roof) lots of big trees in front yard overlooking some of the nicest level limestone soil in the country! A large obsolete dairy barn - new equip. shed - three car garage and approx. 1.8 mile of road frontage. Very nice setting!! Cash deal only!

Any one of the above farms can be taken over immediately in mid-season.

P.S. Please call for Info. on another executive style farm, over 400 acres available.

The Groundwater Connection

When Sinkholes Become the Farm Dump, Groundwater Pollution Is the Result

HARRISBURG — Farms in limestone soil areas are often dotted with holes in their fields, commonly called sinkholes. These openings can vary from a foot or two across to the size of a barn or larger.

On many farms, the larger sinkholes became the farm dump. "Unknowingly, farmers may be polluting the very water that the farm family drinks," reports Frederick Bubb, USDA Soil Conservation Service. "Sinkholes are a direct connection to underground water supplies."

Sinkholes form when water from rain and runoff dissolve the limestone rock, collapsing the soil above it. The opening in the limestone bedrock permits a direct connection from the surface to the ground water.

"Therefore, the farm sprayer rinsed and dumped into the sinkhole can end up in local wells and springs in a matter of an hour or two," added Bubb. "Unfortunately, over the years a variety of water polluting materials have been put in sinkholes. These include dead animals, fertilizer bags, pesticide and herbicide containers, tires, roofing materials, waste oil, and batteries. All of these materials can pollute the ground water, especially when aided by rainfall."

Sinkholes have also been used to dispose of surface water and to serve as an outlet for underground field drains. These practices can carry animal wastes, fertilizers, and other farm chemicals into the ground water

Several corrective actions should be taken around sinkholes to protect against ground water pollution, states Bubb. All water flows on the farm should be diverted away from the sinkhole. Surface water should not be permitted to flow into the sink area. Materials dumped in sinkholes should be removed and properly disposed of in a landfill.

It is not necessary to fill a sinkhole. Often this is not feasible due to the size of the hole. "Left to natural succession of plants, sinkholes become a haven for wildlife and songbirds," said Bubb.

Attempts at filling sinkholes should start with some type of rock or concrete plug in the bedrock opening. "Without the plug, the soil will soon collapse again," added Bubb. "However, the important thing is to make sure that the sinkholes on your farm are not polluting the ground water upon which you and your neighbors depend for family and livestock use. It is one way an individual can take a positive step to cleaning up the environment."

Guidance on protecting sinkholes from surface water is available from the USDA Soil Conservation Service office in your county.

Farmers get 27 cents of the consumers' food dollar spent for food raised on U.S. farms, down from 33 cents 20 years ago

An average one-pound loaf of bread contains 4.3 cents worth of wheat and 8/10th of a cent of other farm-produced products

THIS WEEK

—The top cow at the Brandywine Angus Association Sale at the Guernsey Sales Pavilion in Lancaster brought $3,100. She was a show winner and helped make 50 lots total $19,465 for an average of $389.

—The Pennsylvania house has approved on a 196 to 0 vote a measure appropriating $10,000 for establishment of six district dairy shows and an annual state dairy show This figure is a reduction from the original $30,000 grant which met house approval. Final senate approval is needed —Pennsylvania's Governer George M Leader and his State Secretary of Agriculture Dr William L Henning were both buyers at the Brandywine Angus Association Sale.

—Broilers averaged 21.5 cents a pound at the Lancaster Poultry Exchange in Royerstown this week. Prices ranged from 22.5 to 28.5 on seven lots totaling 11,620 key pets. Hogs gained 1.00 on th market this week in Lancaster with the highest prices of $19.50 paid.

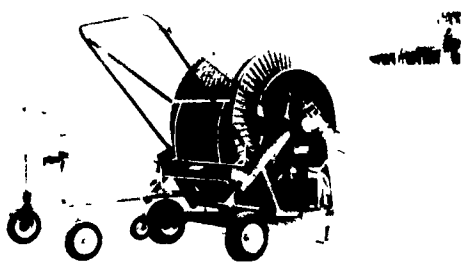
ABI irrigation

AGRICULTURAL IRRIGATION SYSTEMS



FEATURES:

- CONSTRUCTION Fully welded reel and main frame
- BELLOWS DRIVE. The patented water bellows drive offers a reliable 'no pressure loss thru drive system' using only 1%-2% of pumped water which is then applied to the crop, saving up to 25 psi when compared with turbine drive. It also enables gun nozzles to be changed to give light applications of water for seed-bed irrigation.
- LOW MAINTENANCE. The simple drive unit offers really low maintenance — No cylinders to repair, No chain or sprockets to wear, No seals to leak, No gearboxes or pulleys to maintain
- AUTOMATIC SPEED CONTROL Ensures an even hose pull-in speed
- TURNTABLES OR FIXED MODELS
- PTO WIND-IN.

OPTIONAL EQUIPMENT:

- Hydro Drive
- Automatic Shut Down Kit
- Delayed Start Unit
- Riser Pipe
- Blow Out Attachment
- Auxiliary Drive Kit

The most popular food in total pounds sold is whole milk — 123 pounds per person annually.

People in the U.S. can purchase their food for an average outlay of 15 percent of their after-tax income. That is down from 20 percent 25 years ago. Eating at home takes 11 percent of after-tax income; eating out takes 4 percent.

People spend $279 billion a year eating at home and $111 billion eating out in 700,000 eating establishments that employ more than 6 million people.

Check With Us For The Bale Chopper You Need For Commercial And Agricultural Uses

THE BALE CHOPPER IS THE GOOSSEN SOLUTION FOR LANDSCAPE, NURSERY AND BERRY MULCHING

Nursery
The Bale Chopper chops then blows straw around trees, bushes, on bedding areas or any place where you need mulch. Apply mulch with the 30' flexible hose; hand held as shown at right.

Residential & Commercial Landscaping
The Bale Chopper evenly applies straw over large areas, and is easy to use around trees, behind bushes, or in any hard to reach spot. And it takes the Bale Chopper less than a minute to thoroughly shred and distribute an entire bale, so even large mulching jobs are completed quickly.

Berry Farming
The Bale Chopper is ideal for mulching strawberries or any row crop.

E — Economy
Q — Rhino Quality
R^SE* — Rhino SE Economy Mowers

Economy plus quality nicely sums up the NEW RHINO SE Economy Mower line We added a four six and a seven foot Mower to the already popular SE5 five foot Economy Mower to suit your needs better

Like the SE5 these new Mowers have full equipment included standard such as full length Skid Shoes shielded Drivelines smooth undersides a swivel Tailwheel and much more And since it's a Rhino their high quality is guaranteed

With many economy Mowers you're not sure how long they'll stand up With a New Rhino SE4 SE5 SE6 or SE7 you'll know it will last for a long time to come even after the Warranty expires

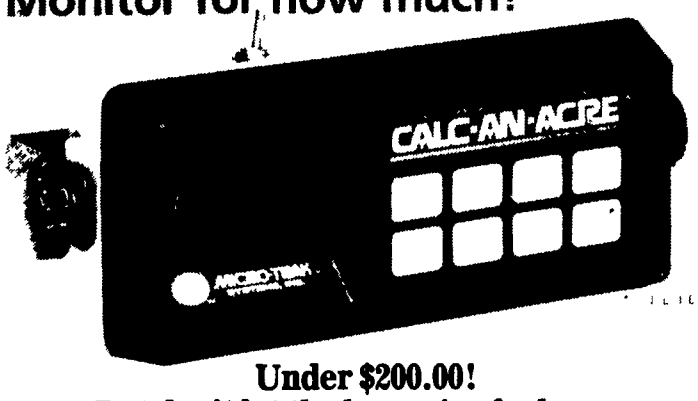
A Fully Digital Monitor for how much?



Under $200.00!
But don't let the low price fool you...

CALC-AN-ACRE is a state of the art acre counter that accurately calculates and displays acreage with the touch of a button It incorporates a dual counting system that makes it possible to reset and record individual fields while maintaining a running total of area worked CALC-AN-ACRE is also a digital speedometer that provides true ground speed

The compact console features a five digit vacuum fluorescent readout and sealed control panel with touch sensitive function keys.

CALC-AN-ACRE includes:

The electronic console with adjustable mounting bracket, complete cabling and installation hardware, and a magnetic speed sensor with universal mounting kit for all farm equipment.

30-Day Money Back Guarantee - 1 Year Warranty

Try CALC-AN-ACRE for 30 days If you are not completely satisfied, return it for a complete refund - no questions asked.

If a unit fails due to materials or workmanship within one year from date of purchase, it will be repaired or replaced free of charge.

How it Pays Off

CALC-AN-ACRE can be used in a variety of situations that can help make your operation more productive and profitable

- Verify Chemical and Fertilizer Application Rates
- Set and Maintain Correct Ground Speed
- Measure and Monitor Test Plots
- Perform Yield Checks During the Harvest Season
- Maximize Tractor Performance by Monitoring Slippage
- Know the Exact Areas Covered When Leasing Equipment
- Keep an Accurate Acre Count When Performing Custom Work

YIELD TRAK™

HARVEST MONITOR

Low Cost - Easy-to-Use

Accurate yield measurement with each tank unloaded.

REAP THE BENEFITS

Yield Trak Monitors four basic functions ground speed, acres harvested, bushels per acre and total bushels harvested The bushels per acre function is divided into two counters with independent resets, so you can pinpoint yields with each tank-full or measure an entire field

Yield Trak provides the information you need at harvest to operate at maximum efficiency and make the best possible decisions for next season's crop

- Record exact number of acres harvested
- Increase productivity through accurate monitoring of ground speed
- Establish yield records for each field or soil type
- Assess the effects of weeds or insects on yields
- Determine next year s fertilizer and chemical requirements
- Measure yields from test plots to determine best performing varieties
- Establish a more accurate grain inventory
- Load trucks within legal limits

Yield Trak can be used with any make or model of combine and calibrated to accurately measure corn soybeans, wheat and other small grains Whether you run your own farm or do custom combining, efficient operation is more essential than ever Yield Trak eliminates the guess work that can cost you time and money

Ingersoll HI SWEEP
The Ingersoll exclusive HI SWEEP 38" lawn sweeper gives you trailing gear drive for high performance.

The HI SWEEP two-stage lawn sweeper provides two gear driven polypropylene brushes...a lower brush for pick-up and an upper brush to propel swept material deep into the 11-bushel capacity hopper. The hopper fills completely without annoying stops to hand adjust the load.

A height selector allows six sweeping positions plus a transport position.

Easy Dumping
Wheels located at the rear make backing easy and pivoting hopper dumps to the rear, behind the path of the sweeper. No need to unhook unit from the tractor drawbar.

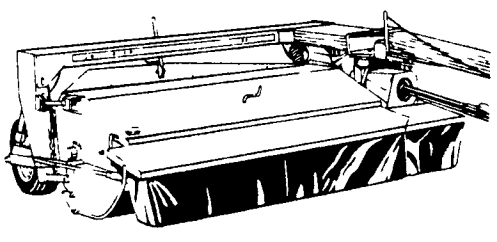
DESTROYS ANT HILLS



Ant hills seldom choke John Deere's new 1327 Rotary Mo/Co

Forget about unplugging a cutterbar filled with fire ants John Deere's new 9 foot 3-inch 1327 Rotary Mower/Conditioner slices through fire ant hills like a hot knife through butter

The secret? Seven rotary disks speed you through fire ant hills, gopher mounds and thick, tangled grasses with little chance of plugging

The 1327's talent doesn't stop with clean cutting Its advanced hay-conditioning system can trim hours off drydown time Stop by today and find out how a 1327 can give your fire ants their lumps

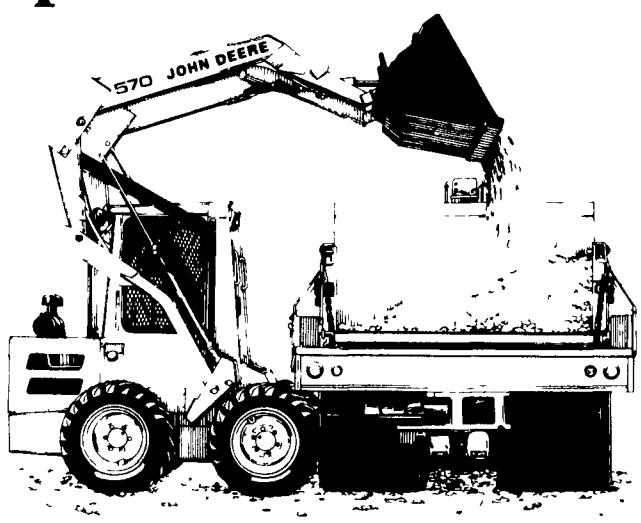
JOHN DEERE

Vertical Path Boom. A leap ahead in loader logic.



New John Deere skid-steer loaders give you up to 30% more reach

Boom arch is eliminated! John Deere's Vertical Path boom lifts loads up and out. So you've got up to 30% more forward reach than most other skid-steers for good truck loading ability.

These new John Deere skid-steers also have 30% more lift per pound of weight than conventional units, thanks to high strength steel and uniframe construction.

And they run the ground well. A low center of gravity, low profile and long wheelbase provide the stability for better rough-terrain performance and faster travel. Hydrostatic drive allows precise speed control. Shorter overall length and narrower width make for superior maneuverability. Two-lever steering and foot controls increase operator efficiency.

226 Head Registered for NW Keystone Junior Beef Classic

MEADVILLE — Ron Boales, beef extension specialist at Ohio State University, will judge the Northwest Keystone Junior Beef Classic at the Crawford County Fairgrounds tomorrow.

In the breeding classes 114 animals have been entered to compete for $1000 worth of trophies. Entries have been received for the following breeds: Angus, Charolais, Polled Hereford, Shorthorn, Simmental, Limousin, Belted Galloway, Chianina, and commercial.

In the steer show, 112 entries are scheduled to compete for the $200 and $100 grand and reserve champion prizes. Steer classes will be divided by hip height.

Divisional champion and reserve steers will receive a rosette.

The 226 head of cattle will be shown by approximately 130 exhibitors. Many exhibitors will arrive today to prepare for Sunday's show and take part in the judging contest. The judging contest starts at 2 p.m. and is open to all livestock judging teams and individuals interested in judging beef cattle.

The various breed associations will have display booths to promote their breeds. The Pa. Beef Council Queen along with the Pa. Polled Hereford Queen will assist in awarding prizes. The program is open to the public.

Franklin Co. To Hold Baby Beef, Lamb Preview Shows

SHIPPENSBURG — For southcentral Pennsylvania 4-H'ers eager to start the show season, one of the year's first opportunities takes place at the Shippensburg Fairgrounds next Saturday, May 31.

The event is the joint beef and market lamb preview show sponsored by the Franklin County 4-H Baby Beef Club and the Keystone 5 Star Livestock Association.

Both shows are open to 4-H members only, with the beef show getting underway at 10 a.m., and the sheep show starting at 1:30 p.m., or at the conclusion of the beef event.

The steer show entry fee is $5, and premiums will be paid on the first five placings, as well as for the champion and reserve. There will also be four showing and fitting classes by age groups. Members from Adams, Cumberland, Dauphin, Franklin, Fulton, Lancaster, Lebanon, Perry, York and Washington County, Maryland are invited to enter their steers and sheep.

The sheep show entry fee is $2.50 per lamb, and premiums will be paid to exhibitors of the champion, reserve, and first five placings. Three age groups will be featured in the sheep showmanship and fitting contest.

For information on the beef show contact Leon Lebo, 717-597-2176, or 597-2618, evenings. Entries should be payable to Franklin Co. 4-H Baby Beef Club and mailed to William Reagan, 191 Franklin Farms Lane, Chambersburg, Pa. 17201.

Entries for the sheep show will be accepted until 11 a.m. on show day and may be mailed to Loretta Berkheimer, 1321 W. Lisburn Rd., Mechanicsburg, Pa. 17055. Make checks payable to Keystone 5 Star Livestock Association.

NY Cattlemen Prepare Fall Direct Marketing Program

CORNING, N.Y. — Although New York beef cattle producers are just finishing the spring calving season, they are being urged by Direct Marketing Coordinator Lee Kraszewski to "plan now for fall marketing."

Kraszewski, who is charged with implementing and conducting the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association statewide program for direct marketing of feeder calves this fall, is continuing the informative phase of the program.

"We plan to direct market quality feeder calves in October and November but producers who are interested in participating will need to start getting ready now," Kraszewski said. He added, "the emphasis will be on quality and this means calves will have to be castrated and dehorned this spring in order to qualify for the pre-conditioning requirements."

The New York Beef Cattlemen's Association received a $30,000 grant from the State Department of Agriculture and Markets to develop and implement the direct marketing program in order to provide a competitive marketing alternative for the state's beef cattle industry. Kraszewski said, "direct marketing programs have consistently returned more dollars to producers than they would receive by marketing their calves in traditional means- i.e. weekly livestock auction sales."

Kraszewski will, in the next weeks, be making personal contacts with feedlot operators and buyers in Pennsylvania, Virginia and the midwest to determine their needs as to volume and quality. This information will enable him to assemble feeder calves at times and in areas to meet buyer demands.

Cattlemen interested in this program of direct marketing are asked to write Lee Kraszewski, RD1, Box 120, Corning, N.Y. 14830 for guidelines and information.

Tulsa To Host Nat'l Polled Hereford Juniors

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Sooner State will be opening its doors to junior Polled Hereford breeders from across the U.S. in mid-summer. Tulsa, Okla., will be the center of activities as the host city for the 13th Junior National Polled Hereford Heifer Show and Forum, July 20-24.

There will be an abundance of activities at the Tulsa State Fairgrounds for all members of the family, with the main event being the heifer show on Wednesday, July 23, through Thursday, July 24. Steve Radakovich of Earlham, Iowa, will be the lead judge for the Junior National, and serving as associate judge will be Bill Tufts of Hillsboro, Texas. There will also be a Hereford/Polled Hereford steer show at 1 p.m. on Thursday.

Highlighting this year's Youth Forum will be keynote speaker Faye O'Dell of Kansas, Okla. He is a coach and counselor for the Cookson Hills Christian Home, and was previously coach and athletic director at Perry High School. O'Dell combines humorous anecdotes with highly motivational messages addressing national and spiritual values. The Forum will be held Monday afternoon, July 21.

The National Junior Merit competition will be the highlight of the week for a number of outstanding youth being honored for their achievements. In addition, officers and directors for the National Junior Polled Hereford Council will be elected. Other special activities at the Tulsa Show will include a livestock judging contest, speech, scrapbook and beef bowl competitions as well as team and individual showmanship contests.

For more information on the 13th Junior National Polled Hereford Heifer Show and Forum, contact the American Polled Hereford Association Youth Department, 4700 East 63rd St., Kansas City, Mo., 64130 (816) 333-7731.

Fleece Day scheduled In Berks Co.

WOMELSDORF — Wool will be the watchword at the second annual Fleece Day and Sale scheduled for June 7 Amazing Acres near Womelsdorf.

The event gets underway at 10 a.m., with craft demonstrations and displays of fleece and sheep that will be offered for sale. A sheep shearing demonstration is scheduled for noon, with carding machine demonstrations running from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wool dying with natural dyes will also be featured.

Amazing Acres is located in Berks County, four miles north of Womelsdorf on Route 419. For information call Debbie Mikulak, 215-589-4023.

Recognizing Feed Problems

How often can you blame production problems on the feed program? Not too often. Deficiencies in health, environment or management cause most problems in a hog operation. But occasionally, the feeding program is the culprit. When it is, I have found that feed problems fall into one of these categories:

Low Feed Intake

Even though this one's a little hard to believe, inadequate feed intake is a common nutritional problem. For example, you might house sows in partially slatted pens and feed them on the floor. You provide the recommended 18 to 20 square feet per head, but it's difficult to spread the feed out enough to provide the same amount of feed for each sow. So you have some sows getting only two or three pounds of feed each day.

Feeding stalls are an effective solution but they're also expensive. A cheaper answer is interval feeding. Feed twice as much every two days or three times as much every third day. When the "boss" sow gets her 10- or 15-pound share, there's enough left for the timid sows. Except during the coldest times of the year, this scheme does a nice job of keeping sows uniform.

Feed intake in the farrowing house can be a problem too, especially during hot weather. Commercial drip coolers are a good investment. I've even seen effective drip coolers that were made from ¼-inch black plastic with a small hole over each sow. Holes can be made in the plastic line with ear tagging pliers. Constructing enclosed hovers for the baby pigs will also let you lower the farrowing house temperature during the cooler months. That will help increase sow feed intake.

Market hogs can be shortchanged on feed intake. The empty feeder is an obvious cause, but a full feeder with clogged holes will have the same effect. The waterer has to be working, too. Hogs without water will stop eating within a few hours.

Moldy Feed

It's no secret that moldy feed can cost you a lot of money. When the mold toxins are high in concentration, the results are easy to see — swollen vulvas, prolapsed rectums, feed refusal, vomiting or abortions. But there could be just enough of the toxins present to cause losses that aren't so obvious — like slower rates of gain or lower feed efficiency.

If you discover a mold problem, the best alternative is to get rid of the moldy ingredient. If that's not practical, dilute the moldy ingredient with uncontaminated grain. Use only clean grain for gestation feeds.

Two aggravating things about moldy grain: 1) The grain may look and smell normal, but still contain mold toxins. 2) Moldy grain can sometimes be diluted to as little as 100 pounds per ton, and still cause problems.

Not Following Directions

Most commercial feed companies provide adequate levels of nutrients in their supplements and premixes — when they're added at the recommended amounts. If you add 30 pounds of premix instead of the usual 50, the cost per pound of gain will be higher even though the cost per pound of feed will be lower.

The mistake we see most often is when producers make gestation feed with corn and supplement. Most companies require a mineral pack in addition to the corn and supplement. Leaving the mineral pack out will save a few bucks, but it also shortchanges the sow on some critical minerals like calcium, phosphorus and selenium. As a result, the sow may not cycle or settle normally or she may have increased incidence of mastitis.

Low Supplement Levels

Even when feed is mixed properly and according to directions, deficiencies can occur. For example sows should get 18 grams of calcium and 14 grams of phosphorus each day. If you're feeding five pounds per head per day, that translates into .8 percent calcium and .6 percent phosphorus. If you're feeding less than five pounds, these percentages should be increased. That's where some companies fall short.

Vitamin E is another nutrient that's often short, in my opinion. Many feed companies will match NRC guidelines for vitamin E, but little more. Increased storage time, pelleting, or molds can have drastic effects on vitamin E. Why? Because it's antioxidant. It acts like a preservative. So it's the first vitamin to go. The symptoms of vitamin E deficiency are endless — white muscle disease, mastitis, gut edema, stomach ulcers — just to name a few.

How much vitamin E should be added? For gestation, prestarter and starter diets, 20,000 to 30,000 I.U. per ton. For grower and finisher diets, 10,000 to 15,000 I.U. will be adequate. At these levels, you'll spend a little more for some good insurance.

Biotin, another vitamin is often supplemented at low levels, or not at all. Limited research is showing improvements in production when sow diets contain 400 mg of biotin per ton. That costs less than one penny per sow per day.

Summary

When you suspect a nutritional problem, check for obvious things like low feed intake and mold symptoms. If it seems more complicated than that, don't hesitate to ask the Extension Service for help. That's why we're here.

In Swine, Good Looks Won't Bring Home the Bacon

BY RICHARD BARCZEWSKI
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — Like many other rural youth, I grew up in the 4-H system and was a member of my county's judging team for a few years before assisting as a team coach. My experiences in 4-H (especially those related to judging) were responsible for my becoming a confident individual, able to stand up in front of a group to voice my opinions or present information.

One of the schools I attended had a strong livestock judging team, and judging was taught as a college course as well as integrated into most of the other animal science production classes. Livestock judging, of course, is based entirely on visual evaluation. And this approach has some definite pitfalls — especially when you're selecting breeding stock.

I can't tell you how many times I've picked outstanding looking livestock at people's farms, only to learn that the animals in question were duds as breeders, milkers, or mothers. The same thing has happened with the sheep flock on my father's farm. It's a shock to purchase or select an animal with all the characteristics you're breeding for, only to be disappointed when the offspring arrives.

So my opinion on visual evaluation has changed. Don't get me wrong! Visual appraisal is still an important part of selection; it's just not the most important part.

Performance is the key to a selection system — performance with regard to the number of offspring born and weaned as well as the performance of the offspring on the finishing floor.

Buying a boar without any knowledge of his performance, or at least the performance of his brothers and sisters, is like betting on a horse. Maybe you'll win and maybe you'll lose. There are never any guarantees, but if you select animals based on performance records, the odds will be in your favor.

The dairy industry is a good example of how selection for performance can pay off. By utilizing performance-proven sires, milk production has increased steadily over the past few decades.

Now, I know what you're going to say. Look at all that surplus milk! What will they do with it? And I must admit, the dairy industry will have to solve that problem through increased sales or decreased production. But by increasing production per cow, costs are cut because fewer cows need to be kept for the same output of product.

If all dairy farmers decreased the size of their herds, a price based on supply and demand would prevail. Although a farmer would have fewer cows, production would remain the same and so would the milk check.

What about the swine industry? Selection based on performance can increase productivity (number of pigs weaned) or increase performance (feed per gain and growth rate). Selecting for performance in feed per gain, growth rate and carcass traits can improve the profitability of your herd without increasing your output of product. You can select for the traits that affect you the most.

Visual appraisal is important in determining physical defects, and only you know what defects cannot be tolerated on your farm. It is hoped that good underlines and sound feet and legs will be selected for, but beyond that the numbers are the key.

It amazes me how many producers don't ask key questions when buying a boar — questions like: Have you performance-tested any of this boar's relatives? How did they perform? What was this boar's average daily gain to 230 pounds, feed efficiency, back fat?

By demanding this information, boar producers will be forced to keep performance records, if they're not doing so already. This, in turn, will provide you with better, more accurate data to assist you in your selection programs.

Use visual appraisal to cull out undesirable defects and let the numbers be your guide to selection.

I've done a 180-degree turnaround with regard to methods of selection. More and more boar producers are also implementing selection based on performance in their programs. As a matter of fact, a recent meeting was held to discuss the possibilities of implementing performance data along with visual evaluation in the National 4-H Judging Contest.

Who knows what the future holds?

Horses Require Clean, Dependable Water Source

CONRAD, Iowa — Water needs of horses are determined by many factors: dry matter intake, growth, work and lactation. Water deprivation can lead to digestive disturbances such as colic for horses.

The National Academy of Sciences (NAS) notes that voluntary consumption of water by horses is two to four times the intake of dry matter. Also, water requirements rise 15 percent to 20 percent when environmental temperatures climb from 55 to 95 degrees.

Work may increase the water needs from between 20 to 300 percent and lactation, 50 to 100 percent above maintenance. The tissues of young horses contain 70 to 80 percent water, showing the need for water to grow.

Livestock watering manufacturers have designed equipment to meet the water needs and drinking habits of horses, according to Leland Wiseman, chief operating officer, Ritchie Livestock Fountains.

Fountains with durability to withstand lot and pasture conditions, simple installation and easy access to working parts are on the market, says Wiseman. Most importantly, they keep water in front of horses at all times for good health.

"For maximum return on investment dollars, horse owners are encouraged to provide their animals with all the water they want," notes Wiseman. "Automatic equipment keeps fresh, clean water available 24 hours a day. Heated or unheated equipment is available to keep water flowing for a few dollars a year, even through winter's worst."

For more information on horse watering equipment call Ritchie Livestock Fountains toll-free at 1-800-247-0025 (Iowa 1-800-542-0001), or write to Ritchie Livestock Fountains, 120 South Main, Conrad, IA 50621.

Brown Swiss Bulls Enter Sampling Program

7B669 Wind Mill JEDSTAR-ET and 7B671 Towpath JUPITER-ET are two young sires that have been chosen to enter Select Sires' Program for Genetic Advancement (PGA) Sire Sampling system. Based on their outstanding pedigrees, JEDSTAR and JUPITER have been selected as two of various bulls from throughout the United States to enter the program in 1986.

In addition to being sampled through PGA Cooperator herds, these young sires have been selected as super samplers. With this designation, they are also available to all interested Brown Swiss breeders.

7B669 JEDSTAR was bred by William Daubert, Pine Grove, Pennsylvania. He is sired by Telstar, one of the breed's greatest total yield improvers. The dam, Wind Mill Joan T, is a Very Good (89) Toro daughter with a January 1986 cow index of +581M +32F and +$87. She has consistently produced over [illegible] and 860F in four records with a top of 2-9 359d 24,150M 4.3% and 1.040F. The grandam is also Very Good (86) with over 26,000M and 1,100F as a six-year-old. Her lifetime credits stand at 108,610M 4.0% and 4,375F.

7B671 JUPITER was bred by Gordon and Kathy DeMay, Palmyra, New York. He is also sired by Telstar, the breed's highest CY$ sire. The dam, Arnola Louie Jessie, is an Excellent (2E) (EX-MS) Arnola Lolas Delite daughter with a January 1986 cow index of +721M +20F and +$76. She has two records over 20,000M and 800F with a fine four-year-old record over 22,000M and 800F and lifetime totals of 112,890M and 4,209F.

Charles Receives Company Honors

DeForest, Wisc. – James Charles, of Columbia, Pennsylvania, was recently honored by his company, American Breeders Service, for outstanding achievement in 1985. He was selected as the top performer from among ABS Representatives in eleven states in northeastern United States.

Charles joined ABS as a sales representative in 1973 and serves in parts of Lancaster, Lebanon, and Dauphin counties. He has received numerous awards and other recognition in this capacity.

In honor of his being named the outstanding Representative, Charles and his wife, Charlotte, participated in a company-sponsored three-day visit to ABS Headquarters where a number of events were planned for their enjoyment in and around Madison, Wisconsin.

Mount Joy Business Never 'Tires' of Serving Farmers

MT. JOY — Making it easy for Lancaster County farmers to do business with him has contributed to the growing success of Mummau Tire Center, a dealership some gave little hope to survive when it was opened 23 years ago.

But, Clair Mummau's vision for his new business went beyond supplying tires for the passenger cars in Mt. Joy. A farmer, he saw an opportunity to meet local farmer's needs for an increasing variety of specialized tires for tractors and implements.

"Actually the business was my father's dream," he recalls. "Dad had a dairy farm, but he always wanted an automotive parts store and after I got more involved in 1965, I took it into tires." He sells primarily those produced by Armstrong Tire Company, but also carries other brands.

He reports that last year his sales were 100-times as much as his first year in business. He estimates two-thirds of that came from farm sales. Approximately $250,000 came from service on cars, trucks and farm equipment, he adds.

The business hasn't been hurt by the depressed farm economy; in fact, it's been increasing, he notes.

"I'm a farmer myself. I own a farm. I know how to talk to farmers and I understand what they're doing," Mummau explains. Not far from his tire shop his family lambs-to-finish sheep from a flock of 150 ewes.

"I bought the farm primarily for tire storage; it has a big, big barn," he explains. "I wanted to raise my family on a farm. I decided on sheep because it was something my sons could do and the buildings and land lent themselves to sheep real well." To feed the sheep, the family grows corn for silage.

Because of his farm background, Mummau relates well to farmers' needs, which he explains differ from those of other customers. "Your passenger tire customers are looking more for safety and mileage, while, with a farmer, you're talking more about warranty, and price, which is a big factor," he says.

A $200 rebate on radial tractor tires currently offered by Armstrong, he says, for example, has been especially well-accepted by farmers, who are increasing their interest in the value of radial tractor tires which offer a longer useable life-span, better traction and better fuel mileage.

To meet his customer's needs, he maintains a large inventory of tires. Mummau Tire Center has two buildings containing more than 35,000 square feet surrounded by piles of new tractor tires. Of that, some 6,000 square feet is dedicated to the company's six service bays; another 6,000 to the retail hardware store and another 6,000 to storage of passenger car and light truck tires in an attic that also serves as a tire showroom.

A separate building that contains 12,500 square feet on the ground floor, has a unique storage system; three floors with platforms on each floor approximately five feet below the floor. These platforms make it possible to move tires more easily up or down the three levels.

Mummau Tire Center has 22 employees, not counting Clair's wife, Jean and their three sons; Kent, Kevin and Keith.

There are seven service trucks whose drivers spend 10 hours a day delivering tires, mounting and providing other service to area farmers.

This is another important part of Mr. Mummau's philosophy of being easy to do business with. Experienced servicemen on these trucks know what farmers need — many of the servicemen were born and raised on farms — and they know the farmer's equipment and how it is used.

Farm service isn't what others envisioned when Mr. Mummau took over his father's hardware store and decided to specialize in tires. "They told me this was just about a ghost town and a tire business wouldn't survive," he recalls. And, his advice to his sons, and anyone in business is to, "Find something that the community needs and that nobody else is doing, and do it well. Make it easy for people to buy your products and service."

FCA Proposes 'Borrowers Rights' Regulations

McLEAN, Va. — The Farm Credit Administration (FCA) has issued proposed regulations spelling out the rights of borrowers obtaining loans from institutions of the Farm Credit System. The regulations were published in the Federal Register for public comment May 8.

The action was preceded by a directive issued by the agency Feb. 7, which called for the implementation of the "borrower rights" provisions of the Farm Credit Amendments Act of 1985 pending the issuance of regulations.

"The regulations are quite simple," according to Kenneth J. Auberger, FCA's acting chairman. "They ensure that applicants have the information they need when obtaining loans and that they are treated fairly if a loan request is denied or its amount reduced. They also ensure that borrowers have access to loan documents and are informed of the forebearance policy of their lending institution."

Auberger said the new regulations call for the full disclosure of interest rates to borrowers. Because borrowers are required by law to purchase stock or participation certificates as a condition to obtaining a loan, examples of how the interest rate is affected by those purchases must be included, he said.

For variable rate loans, the borrower must be told how much and how often the rate can increase. If there is no limit, Auberger explained, the borrower must be told what factors go into determining the increase, including the cost of funds, operating expenses, and provisions for loan losses.

"We're also providing an appeal process for applicants whose loans have been denied or the amount requested has been reduced. Each institution will form a committee that includes farmer board representation to review those loans. That review must take place within 30 days after the applicant requests it," Auberger said.

Auberger said the regulations provide borrowers with access to all loan documents that they have signed. "This doesn't mean everything in their loan file," he said, "but it does include everything with the borrower's signature on it."

'Lead Alternative' additive available from Miller Diesel

HARRISBURG — Miller Diesel Inc., of Harrisburg, a distributor of FPPF Products, announces the availability of a gasoline treatment known as BVP, "The Lead Alternative."

This new additive has been developed for the protection of engines designed to operate on leaded gasoline and is registered with the E.P.A. for this purpose. The lead level in gasoline has been reduced to a maximum of 0.1 grams per gallon (from 0.5 grams per gallon) as a result of the EPA's action to ultimately eliminate the use of lead in gasoline. While this reduction of lead content will mean a cleaner and healthier environment for everyone, there are millions of engines originally designed to operate on leaded fuel which now require an additive.

Engines designed for leaded gas do not have the hardened valve or hard alloy seats of those designed for unleaded fuel. Without them, severe or prolonged use may result in the exhaust seats wearing rapidly. Engine performance can deteriorate, resulting in engine failure and replacement of the cylinder head.

The dangers of valve seat wear or recession are greatest under sustained high speeds and heavy loads. Consequently, farm tractors and machinery are at greatest risk.

BVP (Best Valve Protector) Gasoline Treatment acts as a protective lubricant between exhaust valves and seats. It prevents direct metal-to-metal contact which would result in high wear. This protection against valve seat recession is maintained while FPPF BVP Gasoline Treatment is used. In addition, BVP is superior in cleaning the carburetor and fuel injectors to maximize fuel economy.

The product is available in eight ounce bottles (24 per case), five gallon containers, and 55 gallon drums. Other FPPF Products are also available. For more information call 1-717-545-5931.

New Forage Harvester Designed for Tractors to 150 h.p.

NEW HOLLAND — A new 1[illegible]-knife forage harvester from New Holland is designed for tractors up to 150 HP. The new Model 790 is available with windrow pickup and one or two-row heads for row crops. A six-foot direct-cut sickle bar head and an ear corn snapper head are also available.

When equipped with Metalert II metal detector, the harvester cutterhead is backed by a special five-year protection against damage from tramp iron or steel.

The Model 790 features an electric clutch on the reversing gear box to give the operator instant forward and reverse feed roll control. Easy shear-bar adjustment and a larger knife-sharpener stone simplify knife sharpening and make it easier and less time consuming to maintain length of cut and extend knife use life.

Recutter screens are available. The discharge blower has a high tip speed for excellent forage box filling when haylage is harvested. A lower blower speed minimizes power requirement for corn, sorghum and other higher-moisture forage crops.

New Holland's Model 790 forage harvester features a new cutterhead design and a two-speed blower.

Hog Slat Flooring Reduces Abrasion

NEWTON GROVE, N.C. — Hog Slat, Inc., a developer and manufacturer of innovative hog production equipment, now offers the new Delta-Dek flooring system for farrowing crates, nursery decks and growing houses.

The new system greatly increases the comfort of sows and nursery pigs by providing much less teat and skin abrasion on a smooth steel floor. Furthermore, the Delta-Dek system allows manure to fall through and is easily cleaned by simple water spray to provide superior sanitation to your profitable breeders.

The flooring is hot-dipped galvanized 3/8-inch triangular steel for strength, comfort and durability. It is self-supporting in spans up to 10 feet in length and requires no other floor support system.

Available in seven, eight, and 10-foot lengths by 30 inches wide, the Delta-Dek is easy to install on new frames, in expansion projects or while remodeling to upgrade hog production facilities.

For more information: call or write: Hog Slat, Inc. Box 308, Newton Grove, NC 28366 (NC: 1-800-682-1103) or US: 1-800-334-6465)

Farm Business Transfers

How can a farm business be transferred from one person to another? The question is not as simple as it would appear. There are a number of things that everyone concerned must consider before action takes place. First let us explore some of the items that a person must think about before embarking on the not so easy road of an actual transfer. After reading these over, perhaps you will begin to see the potential complexity of a farm business transfer.

Some Major Considerations

Tax implications are often a major concern, as they well should be, but some people only consider one or two taxes instead of the entire group. A farm business transfer may involve local, state, and federal income taxes. It also may involve gift, inheritance, and federal estate taxes. In some cases there could also be transfer and real estate taxes. Finally, a business transfer may directly affect social security taxes and social security benefits. All of these taxes should be considered before deciding on the best way to transfer the business.

Affordability is often overlooked in the desire to keep the business perking along under new management. It is important to consider the big question, "Can this business generate enough income for the buyer or acquirer to make the payments?"

Economics for the Transferor may be neglected if those wishing to transfer a farm to a family member in the least painful way for that member do not do some serious pencil pushing. Will the transfer provide the transferor enough income to maintain a reasonable standard of living?

Subsequent transfers may be a forgotten issue until it is too late. Farm property may be lost to a family through divorce, death, a forced sale, or just plain "tired of farming".

Security is somewhat connected to the economics issue. However, it may actually be more than an economic problem. Those of us who have passed through a large part of life realize that if we do not take care of ourselves, we may be out in the cold. Owning property or a guaranteed home or something tangible may mean peace of mind that can actually enhance physical and mental health.

Transfer Methods

Outright Sale is possibly the most common method of transfer. In this case the seller determines the price and terms and the buyer borrows the money from somewhere including the seller. The deed changes hands and each party is left to pay his or her own taxes, invest his or her own money, and make his or her own decisions independent of the other party.

Installment sale is another way to sell or transfer a farm business. An installment sale simply means receiving payments over a period of time, usually in excess of a year. It can be secured by a mortgage (real estate), a note (usually other than real estate), or a sales contract (a type of promissory note). Present tax laws make some installment sales a poor choice. Sales of equipment are no longer feasible candidates for installment sales because federal income taxes will be charged on the entire profit of the sale in the year of the sale. Thus a seller could actually pay more in taxes than he or she received for the property in the year of the sale.

An annuity is a special type of installment sale whereby the sale usually is completed with the death of the seller. The seller actually has little or no security. Changes in the federal estate tax laws have probably helped to cause this method to be a less viable alternative.

Gifts can often be used to advantage if they are well thought out. There are a lot of considerations that should be made before a gift is used in any major transfer situation. Gifts are usually most useful as a way to partially transfer the farm business. Gifts under $10,000 are often called "tax free". This may lead a person into a trap. They are free from "gift taxes" but may cause income taxes, since the cost basis of the gift for the person receiving the gift is the same as the cost basis of the gift when the person giving the gift owned it. Thus income generated by the gift or income from the sale of the gift may be taxable.

Inheritance is another way to transfer business assets. In Central Pennsylvania most farm businesses are no longer subject to federal estate taxes because of a combination of tax credits and valuation options.

Gehl Auto-Max harvesters beat the competition

Auto Max lets you operate at top capacity without ear of downtime due to overloading Theres no need to hold back so you get maximum harvesting done with your available horsepower in less time In fact you can increase capacity 15 to 20 percent

The Gehl Auto Max system is really two systems in one an automatic load sensing system to protect the feedrolls and attachment from overloads and a speed monitoring system to protect against plugging caused by loss of tractor rpm

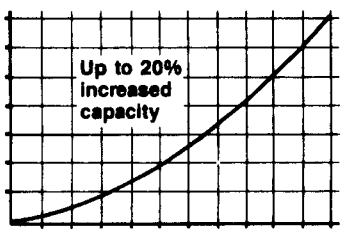
Save more time with the patented one side cutterbar adjustment Its the easiest cutterbar adjustment in the industry

A[illegible] keeping knives factory sharp is fast and easy with Gehl's patented in head hydraulic knife sharpener It resharpens the entire bevel not just the tips The same system will resurface the cutting edge of the cutterbar



Metal Stop eliminates downtime

Auto Max harvesters can be equipped with a Metal Stop electronic metal detector This proven system keeps stray metal out of your harvester It not only lessens the chance of cutterhead damage and the associated downtime but also keeps metal out of your feed to reduce the risk of hardware disease in your herd

Gehl's total package

Put it all together—Auto Max Metal Stop the long list of standard features plus options like tandem axles and the exclusive haylage water tank that reduces gumming—and you've got a state of the art forage harvester that the competition can't match Ask your Gehl dealer for a demonstration Gehl Company West Bend WI 53095

Farmers increase in productivity has made it possible for them to use even fewer acres to produce the food and fiber for a one-third larger U.S. population than 25 years ago. Meantime, they use three-fourths more acres to produce the food and fiber to feed and clothe people in overseas markets.

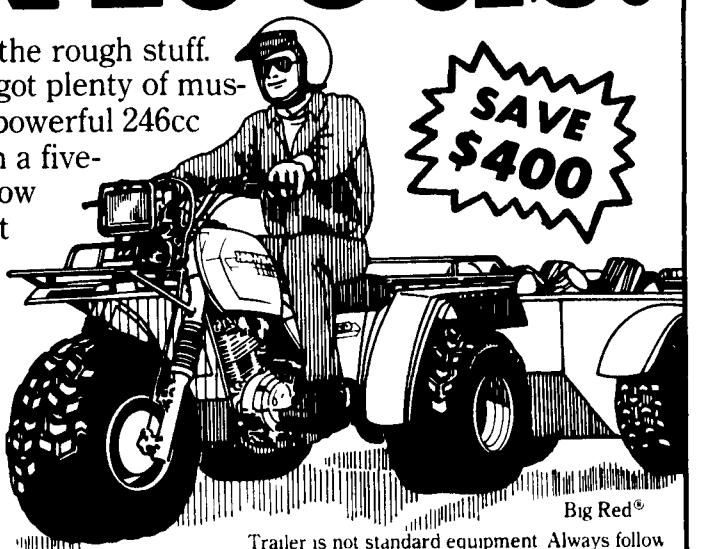
Work it out.

For hauling. Towing. Or handling the rough stuff. Big Red® works like a charm. It's got plenty of muscle. And the drive to go all day. A powerful 246cc four-stroke engine is matched with a five-speed transmission, with a super-low first gear, plus reverse. It's also got electric starting. Shaft drive. Front and rear carrier racks. And even a trailer hitch. So, whatever size your job is. Put Big Red® to the task. And work it out.



Big Red®

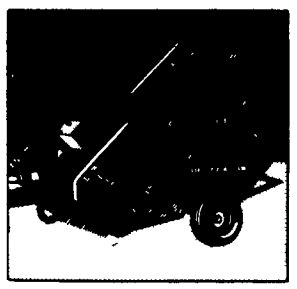
Make hay with the tools designed to save crop quality!

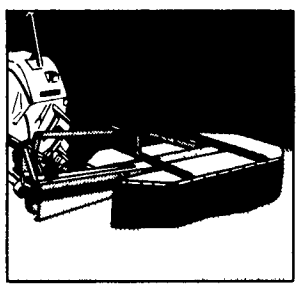
DEUTZ ALLIS

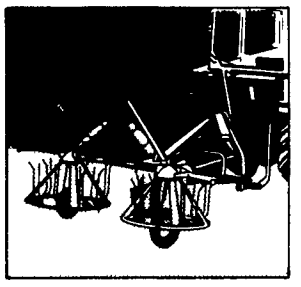
Round balers. Compress material from the outside in. Produce a smooth, firm outer shell for excellent weathering. Three sizes available packed with labor saving features that adapt to your harvesting needs.

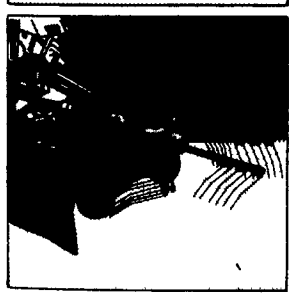
Drum mowers. Produce a loose windrow that fans out 25" Disc mowers. Feature rotating discs with paired knives that cut even down, twisted crop. Leave clean stubble. Both models years ahead with nonplugging design

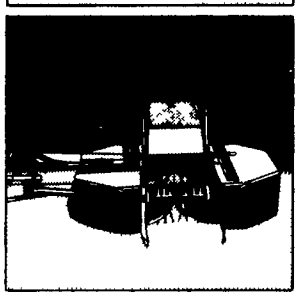
Rotary haymaker tedders. Combine conditioning, fluffing, spreading in a high-efficiency system that speeds up drying. Rotary tedder/rake (shown below). Does the work of two machines. Converts to tedder or rake in just minutes.

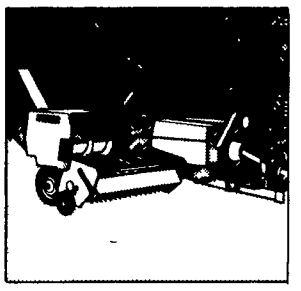












Rotary rakes. Long-tine design features rotary raking action that minimizes crop movement and leaf loss Produces loose, fluffy windrows for fast drying, curing

Disc mower/conditioner. Disc mowers with conditioners speed up drying. A 7' model features over-the-top tines for gentle handling. 10½' unit offers choice of tine or an intermeshing roller conditioner

Square baler. Designed for high production from its wide 77" pickup to bale chamber! Plunger operates at 100 strokes a minute to form uniform, high-density bales

The satisfaction that comes from doing a good job of farming

Liming is one of the most important factors in keeping your soil in the highest productive range A good pasture with a pH of 6 5 or higher for example will make 300 to 400 lbs of beef per acre and produce up to $100 gross income per acre This means with the help of lime profits from pastures can compare favorably with feed or grain crops

Tough Hay?
It's ready for baling with Culbac!

CULBAC® Liquid Hay Treatment preserves high moisture hay when applied at baler or swather.

The effectiveness of CULBAC in preserving high (18-23%) moisture baled hay has been demonstrated by university and field research as well as many years of successful experience by CULBAC-users.

- UNIVERSITY RESEARCH — New Mexico State University research has shown "CULBAC effectively preserved hay baled at up to 23% moisture," and "CULBAC and propionic acid were equally effective." Arledge, et. al. 1983-85
- MORE PROTEIN & HIGHER YIELD — Field trials* demonstrated CULBAC-treated hay contained more protein and yielded more dry matter than low moisture hay.
- SAFE, EASY TO APPLY, NON-CORROSIVE.
- ECONOMICAL, less than $2 a ton

Research data available on request*

Dairy Products of the Month

Available now, a new breed of dairy feed for quality, nutrition and convenience

- A High-Energy Complete Feed
  for increased milk production and persistency. Contains enough nutrients to provide two pounds of milk per pound of consumption.
- Completely Balanced
  Results in better digestion and more efficient use of nutrients.
- Block Form
  Convenient and easy to feed. Compliments any feeding system.
- Weatherproof
  Rain rolls right off it, the sun can't melt it and snow and cold won't cause it to break down. The cows get it all!
- Palatable - with Intake Limiters
  Molasses makes it highly palatable but intake limiters prevents over consumption when fed as recommended.
- Contains Vitamins-Minerals-Selenium and Magnesium
  Meets Vitamin A and D requirements of dairy cows when fed as recommended. Provides Selenium and Magnesium known to aid in reproductive performance and in the control of grass tetany.
- Weatherproof
  Like its companion product, Easy Care Blocks stands up to all kinds of weather, so waste is minimal.
- Highly Palatable - with Intake Limiters
  Molasses-based for palatability but contains intake limiters to prevent over consumption when fed as recommended. Dry cows and heifers get what they need — no more, no less.
- Balances Forages
  Supplements forages to provide the balanced nutrition important to dry cows and heifers. Easy Care Block is formulated specifically to the nutrient requirements of dairy dry cows and heifers.
- Self Fed
  Saves both time and labor — especially on hard to reach temporary pastures.
- Contains Vitamins-Minerals-Selenium and Magnesium
  Meets Vitamin A and D Requirements when fed as recommended and supplies Selenium and Magnesium lacking in some forages.
